Barkley Seems 2d Place Choice

Reinforcing By British In Germany Reaffirmed

London, July 12 (AP).—Authoritative government sources reaffirmed tonight that Britain has been sending troop reinforcements to Germany over the last three or four weeks as the Berlin crisis heightened.

They made the reaffirmation in the face of a denial from the British War Office. The War Office declined to confirm or deny the report when it was first questioned. Later it issued this statement:

"There is no truth in the report that considerable numbers of troops are being flown from England either to Berlin or the British zone of Germany."

The government sources could not be quoted by name. They are in a position to report authoritatively on what the British have been doing in Germany.

They said "considerable numbers" of fresh troops were being sent to the British occupation zone as reinforcements, and that a number of these would be flown from western Germany to Berlin.

The informants added that deployment of the fresh forces, mainly young conscripts, was a topic of conferences today between Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, British commander in chief in Germany, and service and government officials.

The War Office customarily refuses comment on reports of troop movements.

The Whitehall (government) informants said whole military formations had been withdrawn from Palestine and were now in the British occupation zone.

U. S. Denies Increasing Berlin Troop Strength

Berlin, July 12 (AP).—Lively diplomatic activity today indicated new moves by the western powers in the Berlin crisis.

London reports of British troop reinforcement in Germany brought a United States denial it was increasing troop strength.

An American Army representative in Frankfurt said no reinforcements are contemplated for U. S. forces in Germany. Gen Lucius D. Clay, the American military governor, said recently he had not requested any additional troops for Germany.

Allied political sources here indicated the next Western move is being mapped in the event Moscow replies in the negative or fails to answer the American, British and French notes demanding the lifting of the Soviet blockade. The notes were sent last Tuesday. There has been no official Soviet reaction.

Lewis W. Douglas, American Ambassador to Britain, held a last minute conference here with Clay, then returned to London, where he met with Gen. Sir Brian

Panama Assembly Votes to Unseat President Jeminez

Panama, Panama, July 12 (AP).—The National Assembly voted tonight to unseat President H. Enrique Adolfo Jimenez and install Henrique Obarrio as provisional President.

The vote was 26 to 25. Jimenez said later he will not obey the assembly action.

The resolution would annul the recent presidential election which Arnolfo Arias Madrid, a former President, won on the basis of complete unofficial returns.

The anti-Jimenez group insisted on its proposal despite a warning from Minister of Government Jacinto Lopez y Leon that "representatives of public force will not obey the resolution." Leon contended the resolution was unconstitutional.

Operation 'Vittles' Grows

Americans Expand Airfield To Boost Berlin Supplies

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Wiesbaden, Germany, July 12.—American airmen are building another runway at Tempelhof Airdrome in Berlin and are surveying sites in the city for additional airfields. The objective is to make possible a five-fold expansion of the western powers' airlift into Berlin, if and when ordered by Washington.

Lieut. Gen. Curtis Lemay, commander of the United States Air Force in Europe, outlined the plan to this reporter at his headquarters here today. He was positive that operation "Vittles" could be enlarged to provide western Berlin's needs, including coal as well as food, despite the Russian blockade.

"We can keep western Berlin going indefinitely," said Lemay, "if we are willing to pay the price." He noted, however, the cost would be high in money and perhaps in American airmen's lives.

This statement by the man in charge refutes prior "expert" opinion that "Vittles" could not last through the winter if the Soviet blockade continues. The contention was that the present thousand tons a day of air freight was close to the maximum.

Here's the way Lemay would beat the Red blockade if ordered:

1. Substitute DC-4 Skymasters for the approximately 118 DC-3s now in use. The latter carry only 3 tons per trip from this base to Berlin. Skymasters carry 10 tons each trip. He has 45 now in use.

2. Build another runway at Tempelhof, one of two airports now in operation in western Berlin. Workmen already are laboring 24 hours a day to complete the new strip using rubble from the city's bombed-out buildings.

3. Construct three or four additional airports. Lemay's aides already have surveyed two likely sites, the abandoned Frohnau airfield in the French sector and another spot about eight miles from Tempelhof. Defects and the heavy cost of these plans, however, were emphasized by Lemay. The new Tempelhof runway must have steel mats such as were used in the war because repeated landings will break down the existing runway unless it, too, can be reinforced.

The use of more DC-4s would strip other Air Force or American commercial operations. The use of B-29 bombers to drop coal in flight without landings was not favored because it would wear out our bomber fleet, Lemay said. Any increase in planes operated would raise hazards, increasing the loss of life. Fuel costs are astronomical, but the Air Force is ready if foreign policy demands. Officials contrast this with the low Soviet blockade cost of a few armed soldiers.

Court Upholds Auto Resale Agreements

An automobile "resale" backfired in Municipal Court yesterday, costing the "reseller" a net loss of $2.36 and court costs.

Judge Thomas D. Quinn, attacking the so-called "gray market" in new automobiles, ruled that new car dealers may demand repurchase-option agreements from the buyer to deter him from reselling the automobile.

Quinn ruled that Francis & Parsons, Inc., at Nichols ave. and V street se. was entitled to $197.36 damages from Fred F. Allen of 200 36th st. ne. under a repurchase-option agreement covering a new Dodge custom club coupe.

Repurchase Time Set

The agreement provided that the dealer was entitled to repurchase the car within six months at 10 per cent less than the purchase price of $1973.57, if it was placed on the market. If the purchaser failed to offer the option to the dealer in selling the car, the dealer became entitled to the 10 per cent fee as liquidated damages under the agreement.

According to the evidence, Allen was given the purchase price of the automobile by the Greenway Motors, Inc., 707 Maine ave. sw., before Francis & Parsons delivered the car to Allen last January.

Quinn ruled that the evidence showed that Allen turned the car over to Greenway immediately after receiving it, making a commission of $195 on the deal. The court judgment of $197.36 will leave Allen a total of $2.36 out of pocket.

Before the day was over, according to the evidence, Greenway had sold the automobile to a physician at an undisclosed profit.

Clause Not Penalty

Judge Quinn held that the 10 per cent clause was not a "penalty." He said it was a reasonable amount of damages that was computed in advance.

"The evidence showed that the Francis & Parsons seal was visible on the automobile while it was in the Greenway lot. It is reasonable to assume that Francis & Parsons suffered $193.36 damages because of a possible loss of prestige since one of its new automobiles was on a used-car dealer's lot," said Judge Quinn.

The judge added that in this case Allen was at fault and "the used-car dealer was not lily-white either."

"I am going to uphold the reputable dealers in their efforts against the gray market. The gray-market type of transaction could cause chaos in the automobile industry," Quinn said.

It was learned that perhaps 10 persons a week are coming to court officials to seek advice on the validity of the conditional-sale contract involved here.

160 U. S. Transports On Berlin Food Run

By The Associated Press

The U. S. Air Force disclosed last night it is stepping up the number of transport planes available to supply Russian-blockaded Berlin.

All told, the U. S. Air Force will have on hand today in Germany a total of 160 two-engine and four-engine transport planes.

Nine C-54 Skymasters were scheduled to arrive today in Germany, bringing to 54 the number of airforce four-engine transport planes available.

Six other Skymaster transports arrived in Germany last week to supplement the 39 C-54s sent two weeks ago.

U. S. Jet Fighters, Germany Bound, Land in Labrador

Bangor, Me., July 12 (AP).—Fourteen U. S. Air Force jet fighters bound for Germany arrived safely at Goose Bay, Labrador tonight, Dow Air Force Base reported.

Lieut. John E. Maloney said the fully armed F-80 "Shooting Stars" were reported down at Goose Bay at 6:18 p. m. They began their 714-mile flight, second lap in the history-making overseas flight, at 4:10 p. m.

Two of an original flight of 18 planes from Selfridge Field, Mich., stayed behind here for engine adjustments.

Montgomery Parents Carry 3 Rs Plaint to County Board

A group of Montgomery County (Md.) parents, objecting to the present county school curriculum, last night carried their complaints before members of the county board of education.

Their protests varied from quiet appraisal of what they thought was wrong to heated denunciations of the present school board. Principally, they protested the current emphasis on "experimental" studies rather than the three R's.

More than 100 parents crowded the Boulevard Bowling Alleys, Wisconsin ave. and Leland st., Bethesda, to voice their feelings and elect officers and to make plans for future action.

Present for the meeting were H. Stanley Stine, president of the board of education, and board members James W. Gill and Mrs. Curtis Walker.

The board members met with the parents after being invited by the potesting group's officials.

E. G. Adams, 8018 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, a real estate operator, charged that parents of Montgomery County had "lost faith and confidence" in Dr. Edwin Broome, county superintendent of schools.

When board member Gill pointed out that Dr. Broome is "a recognized educational leader," all parents present stood up to attest to the fact that there had been "loss of confidence in Broome."

Bernadotte Tells U. N. To Halt War

Lake Success, N. Y., July 12 (U.P.).—Count Folke Bernadotte, United Nations mediator for Palestine, tonight invited the U. N. Security Council to order an immediate halt to the Holy Land war and pose the threat of U. N. punishment against the side which refused to obey.

Bernadotte arrived in New York by plane from his Rhodes headquarters. He quickly gave to the Council a 17-page, 36-point report, in which he declared that "prompt and effective intervention by the Security Council now could well be the decisive factor in the solution of the problem."

The Security Council called a meeting for 11 a. m. (EDT) Tuesday to consider the report and hear further from Bernadotte.

The Swedish peacemaker warned that the U. N. could not continue to sidestep the problem of forcing the Arabs and Jews to end their war.

The mediator declared it could be made "prohibitively unprofitable" for the Arab states to war against the Jews.

He said that if this line of action were followed, there "will be in Palestine a Jewish community with a separate cultural and political existence."

He said if the U. N. did not prohibit war, the Palestine issue would be solved "on the field of battle."

Arab Legion Launches Counterblow at Jews

Tel Aviv, Israel, July 12 (AP).—The Arab stronghold towns of Lydda and Er Ramle have surrendered to the Jews, but armored columns of the Trans-Jordan Arab Legion roared back in counter-attack.

Lydda, Jerusalem's air threshold, and her sister town, fell earlier to the Jews. After two days' halfhearted fighting the Arabs gave up.

The Jews were cautious about the surrender. Israel's chief of operations said it was not a decisive victory in the fight to ram a wedge to Jerusalem via Latrun.

Stage Set for Battle

He said the surrender has set the stage for a decisive battle, which may develop within the next two or three days.

Arab Legion artillerymen swarmed around the rocky forefeet of the Judean hills within sight of Lydda and Er Ramle.

Associated Press Correspondent James M. Long at Er Ramle reported artillery battles were developing in the foothills. Long said the impetus of the offensive toward Jerusalem still is in Jewish hands.

The big test of Israel's soldiers is yet to be fought against the hard-bitten troops of the Arab Legion, Long reported.

Lydda was considered by observers a big prize for the Jews.

GOP Record Assailed by Kentuckian

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, Pa., July 12.—The thirtieth national convention of the Democratic Party took on new life and vigor here tonight with a tumultuous 30-minute demonstration for Senator Alben W. Barkley, keynoter, who delivered a slashing attack on the Republican Party and its "wrecking crew in Congress".

The State banners of New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, West Virginia, Michigan, Texas, Iowa, and a half dozen other States were rushed to the platform to greet Barkley as he finished his address.

Kentucky led off with a banner on which "Barkley for Vice President" had been pasted over to read "Barkley for President."

A host of Democratic party leaders flocked to the platform to congratulate the veteran warhorse of the party.

Barkley's Hand Held Aloft

Lining up were Senators Tom Connally of Texas, Olin Johnston of South Carolina, Brien McMahon of Connecticut, Ernest W. McFarland of Arizona, Millard Tydings and Herbert O'Conor of Maryland and John Sparkman of Alabama. Gov. Preston Lane of Maryland, former Attorney General Homer Cummings, James Roosevelt of California, former Gov. Dean Johnson of Kentucky, House Minority Leader Sam Rayburn of Texas and several others followed.

Tydings seized Barkley's hand and held it aloft victor fashion, and Lane embraced the Kentucky Senator.

Only after several minutes of gavel pounding was Barkley able to stop the demonstration that opened at 10:44 and did not come to an end until 11.13 p. m.

It was the Senate Democratic leader's biting, vigorous attack upon the Republican Party and all its works that brought the delegates to their feet cheering again and again.

Roosevelt Praised

Barkley received one of the most tumultuous bursts of applause of the evening when he sarcastically referred to Governor Dewey's promise to clear the cobwebs from the government at Washington."

"I am not an expert on cobwebs," Barkley declared, "but if my memory does not betray me, when the Democratic party took over the government of the United States in 1933 even the spiders were so weak from starvation that they could not weave a cobweb in any department of the government in Washington."

Shouting, applauding and tooting horns, delegates gave the keynoter rising applause. From the Kentucky delegation a standard "Barkley for Vice President" was raised aloft.

At another point Barkley drew rousing cheers when he said neither the "prejudiced mind" nor the "forked tongues" of Republi-

Truman Lieutenants Hope For a Truly Liberal Party

By J. R. Wiggins
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 12.—President Truman's lieutenants at this convention would like to build around a corps of common-sense liberals a party of the Democratic center, freed of the crackpot left and the reactionary right.

They are being bitterly opposed by party leaders who would like to hold together for one more round the disintegrating Roosevelt coalition which now is united only by a common interest in the rewards of political office and the privileges of power.

This is the central struggle of which the platform fight and the vice presidential contest are separate aspects.

Southern Bolt Ignored

The President's spokesmen would like to win in 1948, if possible; they are ready to lose if necessary. In any case, they want no concessions to the "white supremacy" Southern tories or the lunatic fringe of Northern radicals.

The President's efforts to get Associate Justice William O. Douglas to take the Vice Presidency nomination disclosed plainly his indifference to the threats of a Southern bolt.

So far as the Trumanites are concerned, the Southern tories can walk out if they want to do it. They will not beg them to come back. Let them walk into oblivion and leave the way open for more progressive Southern Democrats.

Historic Possibilities

The attitude toward the "Northern Bilbos" of the left who demagogue about "Heaven before breakfast" social and economic plans is about the same.

If the Truman aides who are now in control have their way, this party convention may produce some choices of action that will be historic in the record of American political party affairs.

The choice they would have this convention make might be as de-

Philadelphia, July 12.—Chairman Francis J. Myers, Democratic resolutions chairman, told reporters tonight that a District of Columbia suffrage plank definitely will be in the Democratic platform.

Crew Mutinies Off Azores, Steamship Sends Call for Help

London, July 12 (U.P.).—United States Navy headquarters here was informed tonight that the crew of the 7176-ton American steamship William Carson mutinied in the Atlantic Ocean north of the Azores and the ship sent an urgent message for immediate aid.

The ship was reported to be out of control.

Rear Admiral Richard L. Conolly, commander in chief of United States naval forces in Europe and the Mediterranean, ordered the senior officers aboard the ship nearest the Carson to investigate.

A Navy spokesman said the Carson's distress signal was sent from longitude 20:15 west, latitude 40:05 north, about 250 miles northeast of the Azores and about 700 miles west of Oporto, Portugal.

He said the message was picked up by Radio Valencia and relayed to Lloyd's shipping office here. Lloyd's informed United States naval authorities.

"Crew mutinous . . . Hampton Roads standing by . . . come at once," the message said, according to Radio Valencia.

The message, referred to the American steamship Hampton Roads, 14,136 tons, of New York City.

The Carson is owned by the South Atlantic Steamship Line of Savannah, Ga. She was bound from Genoa, Italy, to Nova Scotia after delivering a cargo of Marshall Plan coal.

(In Savannah, the operations office of the South Atlantic Co. said it had received word that the ship was "in difficulty because of the crew." The word came from Lloyd's. The operators said they had radioed the ship direct for details but had not received an answer.)

Utilities Board Opens Hearing On 15-Cent Fare Plea Today

The fate of the District's 10 cent transit fare and fares throughout the country will be in the balance today as the Public Utilities Commission begins hearings on a Capital Transit Co. rate jump request.

The CTC's petition for permission to raise cash fares from 10 to 15 cents, to sell tokens at two for a quarter and to boost weekly passes from $1.50 to $1.85 will be watched carefully by transportation firms throughout the Nation.

A request for a 15-cent fare, with two tokens for a quarter, has already been presented in Baltimore. Yesterday Maryland's Governor William P. Lane disclosed that a New York engineering firm has been hired to investigate the operations of the Baltimore Transit Co. in connection with the rate boost petition.

A survey of fares in major cities across the country indicates Washington and Baltimore are among the first to even consider adopting the two for a quarter or 15-cent rate. Success in these petitions undoubtedly would stimulate requests in other cities.

The head of the District Public Utilities Commission, James Flanagan, said yesterday "undoubtedly transportation companies are watching to see who can break through the 10-cent fare and get 15 cents first."

He said the commission, however, "doesn't care about what the other cities are doing. The arithmetic decides the issue here." This, he explained, referred to the profit and loss position of the firm, as well as funds needed for expansion.

The CTC hearing will begin at 10 a. m. today in the board room of the District Building, 14th and D sts. nw. The company will present its case today and tomorrow, submitting witnesses to cross-examination.

Three local groups have requested permission to intervene. If PUC permits them to intervene, they would be able to question witnesses as well as to call for testimony from interested parties. The groups are the local chapter of the Americans for Democratic Action, the Washington area branch of the American Veterans Committee and the newly formed Association to Oppose the Transit Fare Raise.

Fourteen other local groups have filed statements opposing the rate boost or approving it under certain conditions.

Democratic War Horse Gets Ovation As Keynoter

(Other Convention News and Pictures Pages 2, 3; 4, 5, 6)

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 12.—U. S. Senator Alben W. Barkley, 70-year-old party war horse of Kentucky, is the popular choice for the 1948 Democratic nomination for Vice President.

Only President Truman could keep the No. 2 prize away from the Kentuckian now. No such White House veto is likely.

Barkley's claim to be Mr. Truman's running mate was nailed down tonight in a touching demonstration that followed his rousing keynote speech to the Democratic National Convention.

A man very close to the Chief Executive said in advance of the session, "if Barkley gets a demonstration tonight, he's it."

Well, the Kentuckian got the demonstration tonight. After he had struck the first spark of enthusiasm of this terribly dispirited gathering, the delegates leaped to their feet.

The band struck up "My Old Kentucky Home," a placard appeared with the words "Barkley for Vice President." Then came a parade of delegates carrying their State standards.

Senator Tom Connally of Texas came up and embraced Barkley. So did Senator Brien McMahon of Connecticut and Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland.

Senator Tydings earlier had withdrawn from the vice presidential race in favor of Barkley.

Gov. William Preston Lane of Maryland, who had been boomed as a dark horse for the No. 2 place on the ticket, also withdrew.

In fact, it appeared that just about all opposition to Barkley melted under the outpouring of affection from the arena.

However, before tonight's session got under way a spirited stop-Barkley movement was in progress.

It was being conducted by some of the same men who had rooted for Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

Douglas, Mr. Truman's first choice as a running mate, stated earlier in the day "definitely and finally" that he would not accept a place on the ticket.

Truman Opposition Denied

Some of those who tried to explode the Barkley boom stated, rightly or wrongly, that President Truman was opposed to the Kentuckian.

They said there was nothing per-

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Gov. Lane, Truman Ticket Aspirant, Never Has Hidden Light Under Bushel

Maryland's Governor William Preston Lane, jr., would probably be the last man to prick the trial balloons being sent up in Philadelphia to make him Tuman's running mate.

A successful politician—and politicians to be successful need confidence—he won his first "political" job at the University of Virginia Law School when he ran and was elected to the general athletic board on the unabashed slogan, "Lane, The People's Choice."

Years and years of experience later, in 1945 when his friends were cautiously hinting that he'd make a good Governor, he brought the matter to the fore with the frank announcement he welcomed "both the responsibility and the opportunity" of steering his State.

Appeals to Scarfless

Friends and enemies alike readily concede that his running for the Vice Presidency of the United States would be a vote-getter in the open-collar classes. In formal attire, he's as uncomfortable as a cat in a wet sack and shows it.

He was Governor of Maryland less than half an hour before he told his constituents to quit calling him "Your Excellency" and told them "Gov'nor" was the title.

"If it's good enough for the (State) Constitution, it's good enough for me," he declared. "'Your Excellency' makes me cringe."

Blue-Blood Forebears

At that, Lane can claim direct descent from the aristocracy of Maryland. One of his ancestors was proprietary Governor of Maryland before it was a State (1676 to 1681). He, himself, is an offspring of the Lane family established in Washington County for nearly 150 years before his birth on May 12, 1892.

He graduated from Hagerstown High School in 1910, took academic courses for two years at the University of Virginia, and then concentrated on law there, graduating from its law school in 1915. The following year he was admitted to the Maryland bar and became a member of the Hagerstown firm of Keedy and Lane.

Smallish—like Dewey—the years that did not add to his stature heightened his forehead, deepened the grin grooves of his face, and traced indelible laugh lines about his eyes. Folks say if his grin was any wider it would split his ears.

Lane served with combat distinction in the Meuse-Argonne sector in World War I. One war incident that perhaps best shows his irrepressible humor concerned an order from headquarters to report all cases of galloping on mules. Officer Lane reported:

"The undersigned saw a mule being driven at a gallop yesterday at a distance too great to identify the driver, who either did not hear or ignored a shouted order to halt.

"The number on the mule's hoof appeared to be 12,089—the last three numbers being indistinguishable at the distance."

The order was revoked the next day.

Lane was honorably discharged June 28, 1918, and resumed his practice of law in Hagerstown. He became active in banking there and the publication of Hagerstown newspapers. In 1923, he was named president of the Herald-Mail Co., which publishes the town's two daily newspapers, Republican and Democratic.

Sage Political Dictum

In political fights, he advised candidates—and followed the advice himself:

"Don't put your mouth in high gear unless your brains are turning over."

Aside from one term as State's attorney general, Lane's only other try for public office besides his successful bid for the Governor's chair was in 1919, when he was defeated for State's attorney in his county. Politically, however, he has wielded power since 1923, picking up other Democratic candidates, local and state-wide, through a Western Maryland coalition.

Lane was married to a Hagerstown girl, the former Dorothy Bryan, in 1922. They have two daughters, and mother and daughters admitted to the "greatest thrill" of their lives when the family moved into the Governor's Mansion in Annapolis, January, 1947.

A Vice Presidency wouldn't put them in the White House. But it would mean moving.

Taft Foresees Dewey Sweep Saving Shaky Senate Seats

By The Associated Press

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) predicted yesterday that the Dewey-Warren Republican banner will "sweep" three veteran Democratic Senators out of their seats in November.

The Senate Republican policy chief conceded to a news conference that half a dozen States are considered "doubtful" from a Senate standpoint. But he insisted he had no doubt as to the ability of New York's Governor Thomas E. Dewey and California's Governor Earl Warren to lead them into the GOP fold.

Taft ticked off as "doubtful" Kentucky, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Montana, Rhode Island, and Colorado. Then he added quickly:

"If Dewey wins by as much as I think he will, I think he will carry all of them."

How Parties Stand

The Republicans now have 51 Senate seats as compared to 45 for the Democrats. A shift of four seats the other way would give the Democrats a 49 to 47 edge.

If Taft's prediction comes true, it would mean that: (A) Republican Senator Cooper will retain his hotly-contested Kentucky seat; (B) retiring Senators Hatch (D., N. Mex.) and Moore (R., Okla.) will be succeeded by Republicans, and (C) Democratic Senators Edwin C. Johnson (Colo.), Green (R.I.), and Murray (Mont.) will be ousted.

Taft disclosed that he intends to talk to Governor Dewey in New York City today, but wouldn't say what the two would discuss.

On the legislative front, the Ohio lawmaker announced that he plans to reintroduce in the 81st Congress bills providing for public housing, public health and federal aid to education.

Public housing, which appeared as a provision of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill, and the Federal aid to education both passed the Senate, but died in the House during the Eightieth Congress. Public health never got out of committee in the Senate.

Taft indicated he might rewrite the housing bill to remove some of the House objections, and introduce a separate public housing measure, covering housing for lower income groups and subsidized with Federal funds. He also said that Congress may consider a law legalizing a basing point price system for industry.

Under a basing point system, goods are sold on a delivered price basis, and the quotation in any given market is the same, no matter how close or far away the producer's plant is.

Taft said he was not sure that the recent Supreme Court decision banning the basing point system used by the cement industry will promote open competition.

"As a matter of fact," he added, "the decision may be a check on competition. We can't be sure yet."

The United States Steel Co. last week announced that it is abandoning its basing point price system because of the Supreme Court decision. In the meanwhile, a Senate commerce subcommittee headed by Senator Capehart (R., Ind.) is shaping up an inquiry into the court's action to determine its effect on prices to consumers.

Truly Liberal Party Sought

cisive on the immediate fortunes of the Democratic Party as the choice that the party made in 1860 when it split three ways over the slavery issue.

The broken pieces of the pre-Civil war party could not be put back together again for a generation. When finally these pieces were reassembled, the reconstructed Humpty-Dumpty was once more a coalition of irreconcilable sectional and class minorities bound together by opposition to the Republican Party rather than by identity of interest.

Dependent on Leadership

Periodically, great personal leadership has bound this restless coalition together for a term of power. In office the party has always moved toward disintegration. American parties in office generally have tended to divide into right and left wings. But the Democratic Party always has had horizontal as well as vertical splits. The sectional divisions have made the doctrinal divisions more irreconcilable and the ideological divisions have made sectional compromise more difficult.

The forces that were behind the Douglas for Vice President drive are fed up with the party's split personality. They would like to act at this convention to end the intolerable drain that has been put on the party's leadership resources by the incessant internal conflict.

To make a clean break with the extreme right and the extreme left would be an act of great political courage. Whether it would be an act of great political wisdom would remain to be seen. It might be as suicidal as the Douglas and Breckenridge split of 1860.

Lust-for-Office Factor

Lust for office is the most powerful cement of political parties. It has bound into transient unity many diverse elements. The temptation to try to do it again is very great.

The practical and historic virtues of such a program have been urged upon the President and his lieutenants here in Philadelphia. They have been urged to appease the South and prompted to conciliate the left. They are against it.

This is how they have reasoned it out.

Any American political party that would stand for the things that the Southern anti-Truman forces stand for could not now, or in the foreseeable future carry a State outside the South, they say. Moreover, they think such a party, in another generation, might not be able to carry even the South. They are convinced that the demonstration that the Bourbon South has conducted here in Philadelphia is the last gasp of Southern reaction.

Bolt Might Be Salutary

They are persuaded that the appeals to race prejudice, sectional bias, emotional hallucinations and provincial depravity that have marked such gatherings as the "States' Rights" caucus brand the current crop of cracker leaders as the vestigial remnants of a dead political past. They feel certain that it is only the charitable indulgence of these leaders by the Democratic party of the North that has kept them in power. If these leaders bolt, it may be a good thing.

Their bolt, the party leaders feel sure, will be followed by their elimination from public life—just as the 1928 bolt was followed by the wholesale exodus of Southern politicians who had outlived their usefulness.

In any case, the Truman men believe that the Democratic Party has never needed the South to win the elections in which the South might have been decisive.

The Roosevelt Administration was not dependent on the electoral votes of the South, they point out. Yet, in order to get them, it helped keep in power Southern politicians whose social and economic views have put the Democratic Party in jeopardy in Northern industrial centers.

To yield to the Southern anti-Truman faction, they contend, would be to perpetuate in office men who are now a generation behind their people, to maintain at points where they can imperil the Democratic Party's appeal to common-sense liberals, Southerners who have had a rule or ruin attitude toward the pary for decades.

This new Democratic leadership has steeled itelf to grasp a nettle that no previous Democratic Administration has dared touch with fire tongs.

It is not an act of foolhardy recklessness. They have contemplated the cost of a Southern walkout. They do not think they are too high a price to pay to rid the Democratic Party of an incubus that has been a handicap in the past and that is likely, in the more liberal future, to be a fatal drag on the party.

The bitterness of some of the party chieftains must be almost as great as the rancor that accompanied the historic split on the slavery issue. The President's aides are fed up with reactionaries they have been compelled to court in the South and apologize for in the North. They are not only ready to run the risk of losing the Rankins and Wrights and Thurmonds and Talmadges. They hope to so manage the Democratic Party as not to run the risk of keeping them.

They are about as impatient with it. They do not hope to get the New Party associates of Henry Wallace back in 1948 or thereafter. They have written them off. They are ready to write off some pseudo liberals along with them. One of the men who are trying to shape the new Democratic machine put it this way: "Liberals," he said, "are men who seek to achieve all that is possible for the good of the great masses of the people, by all practical political means of conciliation, compromise and accommodation."

"Demogogues," he contended, "are those who are indifferent to practical results and intent upon holding up for popular approval objectives that clearly are impossible of achievement." The kind of liberalism to which this particular spokesman would like to commit the Democratic Party is a liberalism of solid achievement in the public good, pursued quitely and effectively with a minimum of sound and fury.

The "self-serving" position of the labor unions has disillusioned these party leaders about the relation of union chiefs to political organization. It is felt that organized labor has a vital stake in the gains that the Democratic Party has fought for in the last 16 years. Yet, the Democratic leadership knows that many of these union chiefs have been busily preparing for a transfer of power by maneuvers designed to protect vested positions as labor bosses, whatever the consequence in terms of the social and economic philosophy of a Republican regime.

As the new leaders see it, a party of the Democratic center is going to have to count on an appeal over the heads of the Southern politicians to the sense and liberalism of the Southern people, and over the heads of the labor politicians to the sound sense of the working masses of the North.

Can such a party win in 1948?

Some of them think so. Many think it cannot.

The President is the first to believe that win, lose or draw, this is the way the fight must be conducted. He has been seeking a liberal vice presidential candidate whose reputation and record would make it clear that a different kind of Democratic Party is in the making. He courts no compromise that expediency might dictate.

Planning for a Future

Many officials of the Democratic committee see eye to eye with Harry Truman. They are ready to go down the line. They are not dismayed. They will be sorry if some of their friends abandon the party for right or left splinters. But they do not intend to be influenced by sentimental weakness.

This Democratic leadership is out to give the party something more than an election victory in 1948. It is determined to give it a future—whatever happens in the present.

If the party that came into office in 1933 gets rid of its extreme left and its extreme right the middle residue may not be big enough to constitute a majority. It is a mark of the realism of these party managers that they realize this and have the courage to face it. They hope, however, that a broadening center in the political structure will make the middle into a majority in time.

They are trying to start here in Philadelphia a party of the middle way. They have no appetite for muddling through another election with a quarreling alliance of incompatible faction stretching clear across the political scale. They would like to have the party make a "great decision" at Philadelphia.

At any rate, it would be a bold decision. It might give to this Philadelphia convention a brighter place in history than any observer would have dared predict two days ago. It was then just a gloom-infested conclave distinguished only by the melancholy of politicians overfed on political favor sadly approaching the imminent loss of their prerogatives.

In the light of such a decision, the whole funeral scene would take on another aspect. The grim certainty that an old political party is dying here would be relieved by the bare prospect that a new political party was being born here.

The nomination of Justice Douglas for Vice President would have signalized the triumph of the venturesome group that is ready to lay the foundations of a new Democratic Party here in Philadelphia. They appeared to have the power to enforce this choice over the bitterest sort of opposition by dissenters. But Douglas turned them down. The Douglas rejection did not come, however, until President Truman had disclosed that he is bold enough to attempt this course and that he has on his side powerful leaders who are prepared to cut the party loose from past encumberances.

The President, in this episode, emerged as collaborating architect in a design for a new middle-of-the-road Democratic Party.

D. C. Unit Demands Civil Rights Law

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 12.—A civil ights law for the Nation's Capital as demanded today by the Dis- rict delegation to the Democratic ational Convention.

The proposed civil rights law for Washington was listed as one fea- ure of a resolution approved by he 12-member District group call- ng for a "liberal" civil rights lank in the Democratic platform.

Segregation practices in Wash- ngton were sharply scored in the eport of the President's Commis- ion on Civil Rights. Action of the District group in calling for a civil ights law for Washington thus re- nforced the group's stand for nom- nation of President Truman, and gainst the Southern coalition ighting the President on the civil ights issue.

The District civil rights resolu- tion was adopted at a closed caucus n the Penn Sheraton Hotel. The ction was announced by John Wattaway, chairman of the delega- ion. He said the civil rights stand was taken unanimously.

The District resolution said the iberal civil rights plank in the Democratic campaign platform should put the party on record as favoring:

1. A fair employment practices law.
2. Antipoll tax legislation.
3. Antilynching legislation.
4. A ban on racial discrimination in the armed forces.
5. The civil rights law for the National Capital.
6. Exclusion of any tie-up between States' rights demands and the civil rights program.

The District delegation also voted support for a Washington home rule plank identical to the one included in the 1948 Republican campaign platform. It says: "We favor self-government for the residents of the Nation's Capital."

If that is not to be adopted by the Democratic platform writers, the District group agreed that it would accept the 1944 Democratic platform declaration in support of District suffrage.

1944 Plank Less Specific

The 1944 Democratic plank said: "We favor the extension of the right of suffrage to the people of the District of Columbia."

The caucus formally ratified the following District delegation officials previously chosen in Washington.

John Wattawa, chairman; Arthur Clarendon Smith, vice chairman; Mrs. Kathleen Louchheim, secretary; Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox and Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley, members of the resolutions committees; James Francis Reilly, credentials committee; William L. Houston, rules committee; A. L. Wheeler, committee on permanent organization; Mrs. Estelle Pearce, committee to notify the presidential nominee; and Edward Williams, committee to notify the vice presidential nominee.

Four honorary convention officials were chosen: William L. Houston, honorary president; Tilford E. Dudley, honorary assistant vice president; A. L. Wheeler, honorary secretary; and Arthur Clarendon Smith, honorary assistant secretary.

Eisenhower Lets Anti-Red Professor Go

New York, July 12 (U.P.).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower accepted today the resignation of a Columbia University professor of 20 years' service who protested the university's acceptance of a grant from the Polish government to found a new chair for Polish studies.

Eisenhower, as Columbia's president, expressed regret at the action of Dr. Arthur P. Coleman, assistant professor of Polish language and literature since 1928, who charged that the Polish government intended to use the university grant as a wedge for Communist philosophy.

Eisenhower's Attitude

Eisenhower replied that he would never permit un-American philosophies to "infiltrate" the university, but felt a great deal of the trouble in the world today was traceable to a lack of understanding of the cultures of various countries, and that he intended to "do all in my power to remedy this situation."

Eisenhower pointed out that to be furnished by the Polish government, the selection of an educator to fill the post was up to the university.

Successor Selected

Columbia already has selected Dr. Manfred Kridl, a Polish scholar who has been teaching at Smith College for several years. Eisenhower said in his letter that Dr. Kridl would "carry on his work here under conditions of true scholarship that are outlined by the university."

Dr. Coleman had said his conscience prohibited him from working with a colleague whose salary was to be paid by a regime which denies voting and democratic rights to its population, and which itself is in dire need of the funds for its own education system. He said the grant was a "Greek gift" aimed at academic infiltration by a government which advocates the overthrow of the United States Government by force.

can orators could rob Franklin D. Roosevelt of the place he will occupy in the history of America and of the world.

At one point Barkley warned the delegation that the world situation has reached a point where "intensity of feeling and spontaneity of conduct might easily precipitate armed conflict."

The Democratic Party, he said, had made the greatest effort in history at "economic, moral and political stabilization" of the world through the European Cooperation Administration.

And he warned of the "obstinate obstruction" on the part of some responsible Republican leaders, particularly in the House.

"These same men," he said, "will be in charge of that branch of the American Congress in the event of a Republican victory."

McGrath Introduces Barkley

"The American people," he said "must make up their minds whether they wish to take the chance of greater success on their part in the days to come in their sabotaging enterprise."

Barkley was introduced by National Chairman J. Howard McGrath who termed him "a true liberal leader." Delegates cheered and sounded horns for three minutes until Barkley rapped for order.

With the first ballot nomination of President Truman assured, party managers here aimed at a fast windup on Wednesday night.

National Chairman J. Howard McGrath said there is a "strong possibility" that President Truman may come here Wednesday night to accept his nomination in person.

Appeal to People Planned

Weary of what they term the "hara-kiri" preconvention tactics of Southern Democrats and a few left-wing splinter factions, party managers pressed for a speed-up convention that will end in three days. If they are successful, the convention which opened here today will be one of the shortest Democratic conclaves in history.

Party managers are anxious to carry their case to the country in the belief that the dissident voices raised here are those of politicians rather than of the people.

That appeal to the people to support the Democratic Party as the force which will achieve a "progressive, dynamic democracy" was sounded today by Chairman McGrath at the opening convention session.

In a blistering attack upon the Republican Party and the Eightieth Congress it controlled, McGrath said the people of this Nation must decide whether to continue to progress under Democratic leadership or succumb to reaction involving "stagnation, retrogression, disunity and chaos.

"It is the people of the United States who will suffer most by a wrong decision," McGrath declared.

Many Delegates Absent

Although many delegates' seats were vacant, and the galleries, as usual on the opening morning of any convention, were practically vacant, the fighting Rhode Island Senator was warmly applauded as he began and ended his address to the convention.

As the convention convened tonight the situation looked hopeful for the streamlined treatment the party managers proposed.

The picture shaped up this way:

Both right and left wing opposition to President Truman has collapsed. Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) failed to get virtually any of the support on which he was counting. After a California caucus today, James Roosevelt and 42 others in the California delegation announced they would vote for Mr. Truman. Pepper had predicted he would have support from the late President Roosevelt's son. The Americans for Democratic Action have cold-shouldered the Florida Senator. Jack Kroll, head of the CIO-PAC, announced he would vote for Pepper, but he emphasized it was a "personal" decision and not that of the CIO.

Southern Die-Hards

Southern die-hards still want to place the name of a Southerner—probably Gov. Ben Laney of Arkansas—before the convention but it's conceded to be a gesture.

South Carolina's 20 votes in the convention will be cast for Laney, it was decided today. The Arkansas Governor's name is expected to be put before the convention at the very beginning of the nominations, by Alabama. Mississippi's 22 votes and Arkansas' 22 also were sure for Laney.

Laney tonight said he would not support President Truman in November if the President is the nominee. He told a caucus of Texas delegates "I'm not going to vote for Harry S. Truman." He also said he would not vote for the Republican nominee, Thomas E. Dewey.

The Texans called on Laney to appear before them before they decided whether to join the Southern "revolt." Later they voted to back Laney but if he fails to win, to support the party nominee.

Texas has 8 votes.

If Barkley becomes the vice presidential nominee much of what fire there is in the Southern opposition will be removed.

Chief remaining fight centers about the party platform. A tentative draft has been written by a subcommittee of seven, including the controversial civil rights plank on which the Southerners plan to make a last ditch fight, but it has still to get through the 18-member drafting committee.

McGrath unloosed a double barrelled attack upon the Republican Party on both its foreign and domestic record.

While paying tribute to "the small minority" of the Republican leadership for its support of reciprocal trade agreements, ERP and the Truman doctrine for Greece and Turkey, McGrath said "the little minds" that dominate the GOP are a "fearful echo" of Republican isolationism of an earlier day.

GOP Record Scored

The Democratic chairman called the Republican approach to labor "repressive."

"I am certain the Republicans want to do nothing about controlling inflation," he said.

And the Republican leadership, particularly in the House, he declared, cares nothing about constructive social legislation.

"The record of the Republican Party leaders throughout the Democratic administrations of the last 16 years, unmistakably discloses that they have consistently spoken, voted and acted in the tradition of the late 19th century Republicans," he told the Convention.

"Their platform and their candidate in 1948 unmistakably confirm it," he added.

"They would attempt again to make this Government the agent of the privileged few instead of the servant of all of the people," McGrath declared.

He blasted the record of the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress as "one of the most dismal records of stultification, reaction and retrogression in our annals."

"The Republican Eightieth Congress," he said, "will be remembered for the ruin it has tried to make them for an creative action of its own."

"The honest appraisal of the last 16 years," McGrath told the delegates," will produce conclusive evidence that the Democratic Party has the ability, the experience, the courage and wisdom in its leadership to meet the exacting demands of the times.

"The Democratic Party has clearly shown that it was responsive to the needs of all the people and that it has the will and the determination to meet those needs."

Party Declared Proven

Then in a reference to Herbert Hoover as the highly revered elder statesman of the Republican Party McGrath spoke of the advice he gave the GOP to make itself "worthy of victory."

"I say to you with joyful pride that the Democratic Party needs no novitiate nor probation. It has under the outstanding leadership of Harry S. Truman proved itself fully worthy of victory."

National Committeeman David L. Lawrence assailed the Republican Party for what he called the resurgence of the Joe Grundy high tariff influence.

"Joseph Grundy watched the snarling pack of candidates with amused and cynical eyes," Lawrence declared, "and selected the Republican nominee from among them."

Senator Francis J. Myers of Pennsylvania in another welcoming address to the delegates hit the same note.

The Republican standard bearer, he declared, "is a young shining knight of old—of old King Joe the tariff-maker. Grundy named him. Grundy usually collects his debts."

The Democrats, said Myers, are fighting a two-front war—a war against the Communists on the left and the extreme reactionary dominantly isolationist Republican right. He added that the dominant leadership of "the Wallace gang," whether Henry Wallace realizes it or not, is Communist.

Mayor Bernard Samuel of Philadelphia, Arthur C. Kauffman, president of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, and Albert M. Greenfield, chairman of the All-Philadelphia Committee for the Democratic Convention, also made welcoming speeches.

Barkley was followed by India Edwards, executive director of the Women's Division, who appeared before the delegates complete with a market basket and a price balloon.

Mrs. Edwards charged that the Republican "henchmen of big business" were responsible for skyrocketing prices.

Under Democratic President Truman and under a Democratic Congress, Mrs. Edwards said, a man could support his family and save something but under a Democratic President and a Republican Congress, she said, "the poor are getting poorer—the rich are getting richer."

She brought delegates some last-minute news on prices. Pulling a package from her market basket, she held it aloft and said it was one pound of round steak for which she paid $1.10 right here in Philadelphia.

Civil Service Commissioner Frances Perkins, former Secretary of Labor under President Roosevelt, called upon the Democratic Party to take the lead in conducting a campaign without "mud slinging."

"Whispering campaigns, cynicism about public activities, about political action, abuse and false accusation have no place in a true political campaign and particularly at this time when political affairs have assumed a world importance never before known in American life," she told the delegates.

Paying tribute to the late President Roosevelt, Miss Perkins said no one wants to forget the great leader who gave "hope and encouragement, first to a prostrate nation and later to a harassed and terrified world."

Then she added, "There are thousands of people all over the country who would like to duplicate the candidate of 1932, but we have to face life as it is. There is no duplicate in this, or any other party."

Two men will be nominated by this convention, she said, who will "strive in the same spirit" to serve the people of this country and the world.

Tammany Trips O'Dwyer Leader; Mayor Counters

New York, July 12 (AP).—Tammany Hall today took up the challenge of Mayor William O'Dwyer. It threw out Frank J. Sampson, the leader who had been installed last year by the Mayor's personal intervention.

The executive committee of the Manhattan Democratic organization named Hugo E. Rogers, Manhattan borough president, as the new leader.

O'Dwyer immediately countered with a declaration that he would continue to recognize Sampson as leader. Sampson said "the fight has just begun."

Rogers, the first Jew to head Tammany, had said he did not want the job but changed his mind today "to keep the organization together and to establish harmony."

The open warfare between the Tammany majority and O'Dwyer flared over the designation of a candidate for the patronage-rich New York County Surrogate's Court.

Richmond Lawyer Plans to Challenge Seating Of Virginia's Delegation at Philadelphia

By a Post Reporter

Philadelphia, July 12.—Martin A. Hutchinson, Richmond, Va., lawyer, arrived here today to challenge the seating of the Virginia delegation to the Democratic national convention.

Hutchinson said he will ask the convention's credentials committee Tuesday to insist that Virginia's delegates be required to pledge support for whatever candidates the convention nominates.

As things stand now, Virginia's State Democratic convention has held the door open for a bolt from President Truman in November and the State central committee, by two thirds vote can reconvene the State convention after the national presidential ticket is picked and the convention then could instruct Virginia's presidential electors to cast their ballots for different candidates than these picked by the national convention.

Hutchinson will urge that Virginia's present delegates now solidly in the anti-Truman camp be accredited to the convention only if they sign a pledge saying: "I promise on my honor to support all the nominees of said (Democratic) Party at the next ensuing general election.

The pledge is like the one which county and city Democratic committees in Virginia can require of delegates to a State convention.

Hutchinson, in 1946, sought to capture the seat of United States Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) and lost. He was a leader in the fight against Virginia's new election law put through this year as a move against President Truman. Appearing with Hutchinson at the credentials committee meeting will be Henry H. Fowler, lawyer, of Alexandria, Va.

Meanwhile, Virginia's delegates found a new wrinkle for getting friends into the convention hall.

They elected four Virginians to be honorary officials of the convention, including the resident manager of their headquarters, Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Joseph E. Mears, formerly of Hampton, Va.

Mears was chosen honorary vice president of the convention, a job that entitles him to a badge of admission. The election went to him after Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.) who has a badge, withdrew his nomination for the honorary post.

Other Virginia delegation officials chosen at a morning causus in the Benjamin Franklin were: Gov. William M. Tuck, chairman; State Senator Garland Gray, of Sussex, vice chairman; Archie C. Berkeley, of Richmond, secretary; John J. Wicker, jr., Richmond, and Mrs. George W. Blow, of York County, members of the convention resolutions committee; State Senator M. M. Long, of Wise County, credentials committee; Alec H. Bell, of Norfolk, committee on permanent organization; State Senator E. B. Blackburn Moore, of Clarke, on rules;

A feature of the meeting was Governor Tuck's reminder to the delegates that they were instructed to vote against any presidential candidate who has espoused a civil rights program. With this instruction in the background, there was a big laugh when Tuck announced that nominations were open for membership on the committee to notify the presidential nominee. D. Lane Elder of Hopewell got the assignment; State Senator Raymond R. Guest, of Warren County, was assigned to the committe to notify the vice presidential nominee.

Other honorary convention officials: Mrs. Floyd Holloway, of Yorktown, honorary assistant vice president; Hugh O. Colbourn, Waverly, Va., honorary secretary; and Mrs. Margaret P. Evans, Rocky Mount, honorary assistant secretary.

VIRGINIA GET-TO-GETHER—Senator Harry F. Byrd, G. Alvin Massenburg, State chairman, of Hampton, Va., and Gov. William Tuck discuss plans for Virginia Delegation

Barkley Seems Sure Choice

sonal in Mr. Truman's opposition, and went on to explain that it was a case of practical politics.

A ticket made up of President Truman, 64, and Senator Barkley, nearing 71, they said, would be at a disadvantage against the ticket made up of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, 46, and Gov. Earl Warren, 57.

In Washington it was denied that Mr. Truman was taking any hand in a stop-Barkley movement.

This seemed to be substantiated by the conduct of Mr. Truman's friends in Convention Hall tonight. They said if the delegates wanted Barkley, the Kentuckian undoubtedly would be Mr. Truman's running mate.

Statement by Tydings

Senator Tydings in his statements tonight said:

"I hereby withdraw my name as a candidate for the Vice Presidency. The simple truth is that I have never actually been a candidate. My preference is to remain a member of the United States Senate.

"So far as I personally am concerned I shall do all I can to help nominate Senator Barkley. He is eminently qualified. His selection would be in the nature of a deserved tribute after years of unselfish, untiring constructive effort to promote prosperity and plenty at home and peace and good will abroad."

Senator Tydings, Senator Herbert O'Connor and Governor Lane joined in carrying the Maryland standard in the Barkley parade.

Arthur Clarendon Smith, vice chairman of the District of Columbia delegation, carried the District standard.

Parents Carry 3 Rs to Board

sending his two children of school age "to their grandparents in Virginia for their education."

Horton, asserting that "we have lost sight of the fundamentals—reading, writing and arithmetic," said he was "thoroughly disgusted with the Montgomery County School system."

In other criticism, one parent, Percy Graves of Bethesda, who has three children in school there, criticized "the head of our board of education" for "dishonest or just plain ignorant" action in permitting school children to bring home a letter with them that was "not true."

The letter reminded parents that if the board of education did not get the budget it sought school facilities would suffer.

He also charged that one of his children knew less about modern European history after completion of such a course than he "remembered" from his high school instruction period.

"Our children need more homework," he declared.

Another Bethesda parent, Mrs. Norman Miller, blasted away at what she called "inadequate" instructions in spelling.

She said that only yesterday her 11-year-old girl had written a letter in which half the words were incorrectly spelled.

At the group's last previous meeting, a 13-point petition was drawn up protesting present instruction methods. The group seeks 5000 signatures before submitting it to the school board.

Last night, however, Robert Parke of Kensington, reported that Montgomery County parents have "shown hestitation because they were afraid of the petition."

"It would be taken out on their children, they feel," Parke declared.

Parke called it significant that a goodly number of the better private schools have long waiting lists.

New officers elected last night were John H. Hiser, Bethesda theater owner, president; Robert B. Parke, vice president, Emil Pisano, treasurer, Mrs. Frances Acton, recording secretary, Mrs. Duncan Brooks, corresponding secretary.

Holds 3 Rs Not Enough

New York City, July 12.—Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of schools in Washington, D. C., said today that literacy is more than mastery of the Three R's.

The school head was one of a panel of eight speakers including Columbia University President Dwight D. Eisenhower who participated in a panel discussion on critical problems in American education.

The discussion was held before a group of nearly 100 school superintendents attending a conference on school administration at Teachers College, Columbia University.

Corning said the average person thinks the role of the school ends when a student learns to read and write and do arithmetic.

"We have to get across the broader concept of what constitutes literacy in the modern age," Corning said.

"It has social and economic aspects not included in the three R's."

Child Group Gets 30 Days More for Probe

The D. C. Society for Crippled Children which had been given until July 11 to reorganize or lose its national affiliations, has received a 30-day extension to complete an investigation of its services.

Mrs. Beulah Drake, president of the local group, announced last night that a request for such an extension had been granted by Colonel E. W. Palmer, president of the national society.

Dissension in the local society was brought to light in April when one worker was dismissed and four resigned over the administration of Mrs. Jewell Gaffney, the executive director. Those who resigned criticized working conditions.

On May 11, the parent national body informed the District society that unless reorganization was accomplished within 60 days, action would be taken to terminate the Washington group's affiliation.

Mrs. Drake then appointed a five-member committee to analyze the educational, medical and psychological services of the District society. She said all are "outsiders," and emphasized last night that they were "outstanding authorities" making an objective analysis.

The study will be completed and a report submitted as soon as possible, she said.

Loss of the national affiliation would mean that the Washington group would have to conduct its own drive for funds to finance its work, rather than participate in the public sale of Easter seals. This year's campaign brought in more than $50,000 locally.

Deals Arranged on Civil Rights, Tideland Oil Disputes

into the night on the first full length blueprint of a platform.

The preliminary platform swings sharply back to New Deal principles with a call for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and a return to the "Roosevelt-Truman" record.

A tideland plank was left out of it but one advocating Federal control was ready for submission to the committee if the Dixie members balked at the civil rights compromise.

The deal if consummated could reconcile key Southern members of the resolutions committee to the 1944 "rights" stand but there was no guaranty it would quiet a row on the floor.

Democratic liberals, demanding a much stronger civil rights plank, were still on a rampage and may carry their fight to the convention in any event.

Neither faction in the party-breaking fight appeared satisfied with the 53-word proposed civil rights settlement.

It read:

"The Democratic Party and the Democratic Administration are solely responsible for the great gains in recent years made in the continuing effort to reduce and eliminate unfair and illegal discrimination based on race, creed or color.

"We have implemented our often expressed belief that racial and religious minorities have the right to live, develop and vote equally with all citizens, and to share the rights guaranteed by the Constitution."

"It doesn't suit," said former Gov. Chauncey Sparks of Alabama, one of the leaders in the Dixie rebellion. The South wants "States Rights" language written in.

Mayor Hubert Humphrey of Minneapolis, leader of liberal wing demands for a much stronger plank, retorted by calling a strategy conference of all interested in a more explicit statement.

Decision Demanded

Up to a late hour tonight, the 18-man group had not reached a showdown vote on the proposed compromise. The members met in a nineteenth-floor suite of the Chateau Crillon Hotel. Determined to reach at least a preliminary platform decision before adjournment, Resolutions Chairman Francis J. Myers (Pa.) refused to recess at the dinner hour. A snack was served in the suite.

Myers received reporters near midnight after his committee had been in continuous session for more than eight hours.

He said the group is still debating the civil rights plank but has approved a labor plank without material change after some contoversy. The plank still calls for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Israel Objections Met

Myers announced that a "satisfactory" policy plank was also approved. He implied that most of the objections of Representative Emanuel Celler (N. Y.) to an earlier Israel plank have been met.

The Democratic platform chairman disclosed that the White House is being constantly advised of platform development by Solicitor General Philip Pearlman.

Myers said he expected to get a completed platform before the full 104-member resolutions committee tomorrow afternoon and take it to the convention tomorrow night.

Regardless of the vote on the civic rights plank, Mayor Humphery predicted the fight would go to the floor.

"If we lose, we will want a convention decision," said the Minnesotan. "If we win, the Southerners will take it to the floor."

Convention Parliamentarian Clarence Cannon (Mo.) was consulted by both factions in readiness for the battle. Cannon said House of Representatives debate rules may apply to what may be the first platform contest to go to the floor since 1924. Cannon's ruling means speeches on any proposed amendment would be limited to five minutes.

Must Be Explicit

Humphrey's group wants the plank to spell out the President's Committee on Civil Rights recommendations for antipoll tax, anti-lynching and FEPC legislation and nonsegregation in the armed forces.

The Southerners had called on the party to "reaffirm and pledge strict adherence to . . . States rights."

Subcommittee differences broke out also on an eight-point Palestine plank adopted in all night session by an inner circle group of seven platform blue-printers.

Representative Emmanuel Celler (N. Y.) said it "won't do" unless two of the points are strengthened to call for immediate recognition of a "permanent" Israel government, and for shipment of arms to Palestine whether or not the United Nations clears it.

Points in Israel Plank

The text of the subcommittee's proposed Israel plank:

"1. President Truman by granting immediate recognition to Israel, led the world in extending friendliness and welcome to a people who have long sought and justly deserved freedom and independence.

"2. We look forward to extending full and prompt recognition to the permanent government of Israel as soon as it is established.

"3. We affirm our pride, too, that the United States, under the leadership of President Truman, played a leading role in adopting the resolution of November 29, 1947, by the U. N. General Assembly for the creation of a Jewish state.

"4. We approve the claims of the State of Israel to the boundaries set forth in the United Nations resolution of November 29 and consider that modification thereof should be made only if fully acceptable to the State of Israel.

"5. We look forward to the admission of the State of Israel to the United Nations and its full participation in the international community of nations.

"6. We pledge appropriate aid to the State of Israel to secure in the United States and elsewhere the arms and equipment necessary to defend itself, subject only to the decision of the United Nations. Subject thereto, we favor the lifting of the arms embargo to accord to the State of Israel the right to defend itself.

"8. We continue to support within the framework of the United Nations the internationalization of Jerusalem and the protection of the holy places of Palestine."

On domestic issues, the preliminary blueprint not only calls for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, but for a 75-cent minimum wage law, public housing and slum clearance legislation, Federal aid to education, health insurance and social security expansion.

In addition to differences over civil rights, the Israel plank and Taft-Hartley law repeal slowing down a platform decision was a coastal versus inland State row on the tidelands oil issue.

The Supreme Court ruled the Federal Government holds sway over submerged coastal oil lands, but the GOP platform urged a quit-claim to the States. The Democrats are debating whether to keep silent on the issue or declare flatly for Administration proposals to hold the oil lands and divert royalties from them to irrigation and other purposes beneficial to other States.

Text of Barkley's Keynote Address

Philadelphia, July 12 (AP).—Here is a partial text of the keynote speech by Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, temporary chairman of the Democratic National Convention.

IN the juncture of world affairs today, we assemble in the name of democracy for all mankind everywhere, without regard to race, creed, color or nationality, without which it cannot be preserved anywhere.

Our claim upon the confidence of the people rests upon a consistent, constructive and farsighted record of devotion to the people's welfare . . .

What is this record?

In the first place, it was recovery. The new administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt breathed into . . . every worthy American enterprise . . . a breath of new life. . .It put old agencies . . . at the people's disposal, and . . . it inaugurated new ones to make democracy live and work for the American people.

I call attention to the following: . . .

A farmer's agricultural adjustment and price support program, which . . . has increased farm income by 800 per cent . . . reduced interest rates on farm credit, reduced farm mortage indebtedness by more than 50 per cent, and farm mortgage foreclosures by 95 per cent.

A soil conservation program, which has arrested the wasting processes of soil erosion . . .

A RURAL electrification program, which has lifted from millions of farm women the drudgery of exhausting housework, and brought to millions of farmers the boon of electric power . . .

A program of development of our water resources for navigation, flood control, and power, as exemplified by the Tennessee Valley Authority, the Grand Coulee Dam, the St. Lawrence waterway . . .

A labor relations act, a fair labor standards act, and other measures for improving conditions of labor and relationships between employers and employes.

A reciprocal trade program . . . under which American capital and American labor have been able to increase their markets throughout the world . . .

A reorganized and stronger banking system and a Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation which has reduced bank failures in the United States from 4004 in 1933 to only 6 in all of 1947 . . .

A Federal Housing Administration, under which hundreds of thousands of homes were built and improved.

A Home Owners Loan Corporation, which rescued hundreds of thousands of homes from immediate foreclosure, representing a reduction in non-farm real estate foreclosures from 252,000 in 1933 to only 10,000 in 1947.

A COMMODITY Credit Corporation, an Export-Import Bank, a Federal Home Loan Bank, a bank for cooperatives, and other institutions for the service of the American people.

An expanded Reconstruction Finance Corporation, strengthened and fortified . . . at a time when it was the only money lending agency capable of averting financial disaster.

A statute abolishing the holding company evil, and a Securities and Exchange Commission to supervise . . . corporate stocks and protect the American people from the fraud to which they had been subjected under the boom and bust days of a previous administration.

A good-neighbor policy . . . to bring into more friendly relationships the great nations of the Western Hemisphere.

The gainful employment of more than 61 million American workers, compared to 15 million unemployed 16 years ago.

Profits, after taxes, for American corporations for 1947 of more than 17 billion dollars, the highest level in history.

Increased production to a level exceeding 230 billion dollars per annum and an annual income of 210 billion dollars, compared to an annual income of 38 billion dollars 16 years ago.

An increase in the monthly average of new construction in 1948 to more than $1,200,000,000, and . . . for new plants and eqiupment, . . . excluding agriculture, the expenditure of 19 billion dollars, which is nearly 400 per cent above the same figures for 1939 and 1000 per cent greater than 16 years ago. . . .

AN INCREASE in new corporate security issues, under the supervision of the Securities and Exchange Commission, to more than six billion dollars for 1947 . . .

An increase in sales of American goods to more than 15 billion dollars per month for the first two months of 1948.

An increase in our exports to more than 15 billion dollars for 1947, giving us an excess of exports over imports of more than six billion dollars under a reciprocal trade program that the Republicans in Congress have scuttled.

A prosperity enabling the American people to indulge in personal savings of more than 100 billion dollars since 1939.

A prosperity that has enabled the Treasury to discharge, in a little more than two years more than 27 billion dollars of the national debt inherited from the war.

In 1946 the Republican Party secured control of both branches of the Congress.

The people did not really mean to elect a Republican Congress. They were voting against irksome and irritating annoyances which the war had required, and which many of them thought should have been eliminated . . .

What has been its record?

During the war occurred probably the greatest discovery in the history of science or invention, the discovery and utilization of atomic energy.

The problem which faces the world now is how and by whom it shall be used, and whether for the destruction of mankind, or for his greater advancement.

THE Eightieth Republican Congress refused to confirm for the terms fixed by law, the members of the Atomic Energy Commission, which has been engaged in profound research into this new force of nature. But, it shortened their terms to a period of two years, so that, if successful in the coming election, they might secure political control of the commission and it functions. . . .

This Republican Congress claimed to have had a mandate from the American people. It began the discharge of that mandate by seeking to destroy the Rural Electrification Administration, by denying to it adequate funds.

Though lacking in courage to repeal directly the soil conservation program, they have sought to restrict or destroy it by denying it the funds necessary.

While lacking in courage to repeal the Labor Relations Act, and the Fair Labor Standards Act, they have sought so to modify the basis upon which these enactments were predicated, as to destroy, in part, the rights enjoyed by labor in the collective process. They have done this by a statute, which had its inception in a desire to destroy the right of American labor to organize.

When it first assembled in January, 1947, the new Speaker of the House, who was the permanent chairman of the recent Republican Convention, announced that they would open each session with a prayer and close it with a probe.

They have been in control of this Congress during its entire existence. If their prayers have been no more effective than their probes, they did not rise above the heads of the congressional inmates.

You do not see a housing bill in the visible record. Notwithstanding repeated recommendations by the President . . . Not only for the veterans of our latest war, but for millions in the lower income brackets, this Republican Congress did nothing.

Repeatedly, the President recommended legislation to improve and conserve the health of our people. The Eightieth Congress fumed and fretted and dickered . . .

Repeatedly, the President urged legislation to improve the American educational system, to asist the States in providing better schools and better teachers and better school facilities . . . found deplorably deficient . . . by the Selective Service law in the last war.

THE American people have the right to ask Republican . . . candidates . . . to explain why the Congress which they indorse failed utterly in the enactment of legislation to improve our educational facilities. They have the right to ask to what extent they may rely upon present promises in regard to education.

If information cannot be obtained from these sources, it might be interesting to inquire of the more than 1400 registered lobbyists in Washington during the Eightieth Congress. . . . In the Seventy-ninth Congress there were 360 registrations of lobbyist and organizations engaged in lobbying. During the Eightieth Republican Congress, more than 1400 lobbyists and lobbying organizations registered. This is approximately three lobbyists for each member of Congress. . . . These organizations have spent more than eight million dollars to influence the Eightieth Congress, which is three million dollars more than the entire appropriation for all the 96 Senators and their official staffs.

The Eightieth Congress refused to enact legislation increasing the minimum wage from 40 cents an hour, which will not buy a single pound of soup meat, to 70 cents an hour, which will just buy a pound of hamburger.

This brings us to the question of inflation, which not one Republican leader or orator dared to mention three weeks ago in their convention.

It was upon this issue, in part, that the Republicans won control of the Congress in 1946. But this Republican Congress was content to pass a milk and water voluntary price reduction measure, in spite of which prices have continued to soar . . . Repeatedly, the President urged Congress to take definite steps to halt this spiral of increased prices and consequent lower take-home wages. But prices have continued to rise while a Republican Congress continued to dawdle.

Following the enactment of the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Law of 1930, and the inauguration of a Democratic administration in 1933, Congress enacted a program for reciprocal trade agreements, in an effort to soften the inequities and exorbitant tariff duties provided in that law, and open the doors for the resumption of international trade.

THIS LAW has been in existence for 14 years. It had been renewed and extended four times. The majority of Republican members of both Houses of Congress voted against its enactment and its extension, except for one extension during the recent war.

When the law expired on June 12, 1948, the House passed a makeshift extension of one year, intended and calculated to destroy the whole reciprocal trade program. It provided that no agreement could go into effect until it had been approved by the Congress itself, a provision which had never been included in the trade agreement laws previously enacted.

In the enactment of the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Law, I recall . . . the dominating influence of Joseph R. Grundy, then head of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association . . . He succeeded in procuring the enactment of the highest tariff barriers ever raised against international trade in the history of this or any other nation.

We are told by the press and the radio, that the pilgrimage of the Senator from Pennsylvania to the Governor of New York was inspired by this old hand at tariff manipulation.

We know that he exercised great influence in the selection of the new chairman of the Republican National Committee. This seems to have been the first installment of the pay-off.

It would be futile to waste time seeking to analyse the Republican platform. It was appropriately described by the Senator from Massachusetts, who was chairman of the Republican Resolutions Committee, when he said, "It is a tent big enough for anybody to get under."

government workers local of the International Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, CIO; the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; the Washington area branch of AVC; the Washington chapter of ADA; the Potomac Cooperative Association, and the Washington Committee for Consumer Protection.

Other groups which have asked permission to speak at the hearings are Local 10, United Public Workers of America, CIO; District Federation of Federal Employes Unions; Communist Party of D. C.; Local 209, Cooks, Pastry Cooks and Kitchen Employes, AFL; Washington League of Women Shoppers; Shepherd Park Citizens Association; Arkansas Avenue Citizens Association; Burroughs Citizens Association; Stanton Park Citizens Association; Women's Auxiliary, UPWA; Washington Committee for Wallace; American Federation of Government Employes, AFL, and the groups in the Anti-Fare-Raise Association.

According to E. C. Giddings, CTC vice president, the 15-cent cash fare has already been adopted by private transit firms in Indianapolis and may be upped to 20 cents as the result of a recent request. Tokens are two for a quarter there.

The situation in other cities follows with the type of ownership indicated: Miami, 13 cents, 10 trips for $1, private; Chicago, 13 cents on streetcars, 15 on subway-elevated trains, municipal; Detroit, 13 cents, 4 tokens for 50 cents, municipal; Cleveland, 12 cents, $1.80 weekly pass, municipal.

Cincinnati, 11 cents, asking 12, private; Denver, 10 cents; Los Angeles, 10 cents, private; St. Louis, 10 cents, 3 for 25 cents, private; San Francisco, 10, 3 for 25 cents, municipal; Boston, 10 cents, municipal; Philadelphia, 10 cents on trolley, subway and elevated, 2 for 25 on buses, private, and Baltimore, 10 cents, asking 15, 2 for 25.

Several of the 10-cent fares were obtained recently so that a boost to 15 is unlikely for several months. The present rates in St. Louis were adopted April 25; in Denver on June 30 and in Philadelphia on March 21.

Giddings said yesterday that a comparison of rates in other cities will be submitted during the hearings.

Capital Transit fare changes always draw more mail and attention than any other utility, Flanagan said yesterday. Several hundred letters and postcards, almost unanimously opposing the boost, have been received by the PUC.

Some noted cryptically, "Any increase in the salaries of Capital Transit's employes should be borne by Capital Transit." Another declared, "The average bus driver gets more salary than I do and I have an AB degree from a university."

A few warned that if the 15-cent fare is granted, the streetcar fare will be close to the taxicab group rate of 20 cents for one zone, so CTC "would be cutting off its nose only to spite its face."

Some denounced the company for "pure greed," while several declared the firm should "sell out" and let the District government run the transportation system so "we have a better way and cheaper fare."

E. L. Dennison, who often travels in the District, wrote from his West Orange, N. J., home he agreed a fare boost is necessary, but opposed the present application. He recommended boosting bus fares and reducing streetcar rates in an attempt to boost volume on the streetcar lines.

Reuther Leaves Bed to Aim UAW Strike Threat at Ford

Detroit, July 12 (AP).—President Walter P. Reuther of the CIO United Auto Workers left his sick room today to aim a strike threat at the Ford Motor Co.

Unless a contract agreement is reached by Thursday, Reuther told the Ford company, the UAW-CIO would "feel free to call out 110,000 production workers."

The union is demanding benefits totaling 28 cents an hour, including wage boosts. Ford has offered an 11 to 14 cents an hour wage increase. The average wage now is estimated at slightly better than $1.52 an hour.

Reuther's arm was in a sling as he made his first appearance at a bargaining table since an unknown assailant tried to kill him last April. A shotgun blast nearly ripped one arm from his body.

Vice President John S. Bugas, for the company, told newsmen:

"We will go to any reasonable lengths to avoid a strike."

The union's national Ford conference is scheduled to hear a report on negotiations here Thursday night. It includes about 200 delegates from 29 Ford plants.

The UAW-CIO has asked a strike vote among Ford employes to back its bargaining stand.

16,000 Glass Workers Win Pay Increases

Cincinnati, July 12 (AP).—Sixteen thousand employes of Libbey-Owen-Ford Glass Co. and the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. won hourly wage boosts of 10 cents today, retroactive to May 1.

The pay hike, plus insurance benefits estimated at 2½ cents an hour, received approval in contract negotiations with the CIO Glass, Ceramic and Silica Sand Workers of America.

U. S. Steel to Hike Wages of 170,000

Pittsburgh, July 12 (AP).—A spokesman for the U. S. Steel Corp. says that company will increase wages for its 170,000 workers "in view of a continuing climb in the cost of living."

The spokesman, who asked that his name not be disclosed, said the increase will be announced this week. "The corporation is under no obligation to increase wages," he said, but feels "the workers should be protected" because of the cost of living.

Telegraphers Union Charges Wire Delays

By the United Press

The Commercial Telegraphers Union (AFL) asked the Government yesterday to investigate alleged mass violations of the Federal Communications Act by the Western Union Telegraph Co.

In a formal petition filed with the Federal Communications Commission, the union charged the company with impairing telegraph service "to the point where the future of the industry is in danger."

It accused the company of delaying "rush" messages and of having insufficient telephone operators in such cities as Chicago, Cleveland, New York and Washington during June and July. It said this forced the public to wait for from 5 to 20 minutes to file telegrams.

"In many instances important and rush messages are delayed for so long a time that neither the sender nor the addressee receives any benefit therefrom," it added. "To the contrary, they frequently are subjected to serious financial and other loss."

The union said it had been informed by "many patrons" that they would discontinue telegraph service unless it improves.

"The telegraph service being rendered in many communities throughout the country . . . has deteriorated to the point where the very future of the telegraph industry is in danger," it said.

Bulgarian-Slav Rivalries Revived

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 12 (AP).—Old Yugoslav and Bulgarian rivalries for Macedonia bubbled to the surface today despite Communist alliances.

The central committee of the Communist Party of Yugoslav Macedonia ripped into Bulgarian Communists, charging them with nationalism, and declared its solidarity with Marshal Tito, who is currently under attack by the Soviet-led Cominform.

In a resolution the Macedonian Communists accused the Bulgarian and Albanian Communist parties of "directly supporting 'greater Bulgarian' and 'greater Albanian' elements in our country." It said this is "bringing unprecedented damage to our country and creating enemy relations."

The resolution also accused the Albanian Communists of "brutally insulting our party and our people."

The ruling Communist parties in Bulgaria and Albania have backed the Cominform against Tito.

The resolution carefully differentiated between the Communist parties and the people of Bulgaria and Albania.

[In Athens, the Greek government monitor quoted Col. Gen. Enver Hoxha, Premier of Albania, as saying Tito wanted to "enslave the Albanian people." The Athens dispatch said a Tirana broadcast was intercepted in Ioannina.

[Hoxha expressed hope of the Albanian people that Yugoslavs "will drive out their traitors" and "will continue their march at the side of Albania," the dispatch said.]

Hungarian Slav Group Protest Newspaper Ban

Budapest, Hungary, July 12 (U.P.). Officials of the Slav federation which refused to approve the Cominform denunciation of Marshal Tito, said today they will protest to the Prime Minister against police sacking of their newspaper plant Saturday.

Police told them, "If you want to know why, go to police headquarters for information." Hungarian authorities today said the paper was banned because it did not meet "legal requirements."

Slavs Trying 50 Men As Spies, Terrorists

London, July 12 (AP).—Fifty men charged with being spies and terrorists aided by "agents of the Vatican" were brought to trial today at Zagreb in Yugoslavia.

A broadcast by Tanjug, recorded here, said "the Priest Juredis and the Vatican confidence man Draganovic," working mostly in Italy, attempted to unite political fugitives who escaped from Yugoslavia when Marshal Tito's Communist regime was set up.

Truman Advised

Jugoslavia To Stay Red, Cannon Says

Cavendish Cannon, U. S. Ambassador to Yugoslavia, said yesterday that country is not breaking away from communism despite Marshal Tito's troubles with the Red Cominform.

Cannon

Cannon conferred with President Truman for 39 minutes. He said his call was merely routine and declined to discuss it further.

Asked whether the Tito-Cominform fight indicated that Yugoslavia was forsaking communism, he said:

"They're not getting away from communism at all."

Both Tito and the Cominform have what each calls "real communism," he added.

He urged watchful waiting and expressed belief that Russia and Yugoslavia might "try to let the situation work itself out—it's to their interest to do so."

Despite the Communist regime, he said, the United States "has a lot of friends among the people of Yugoslavia."

'Voice' Sees Tito Attack as Pot And Kettle Row

By the United Press

A Voice of America broadcast beamed abroad in 21 languages recently described the Russian-controlled Cominform's attack on Marshall Tito as a case of the pot calling the kettle black, it was disclosed yesterday.

The State Department made public the text of the 1000-word commentary. It was soon after the Cominform's attack and in the last two weeks has been broadcast in practically every language to nearly every country, including Russia.

Recalling that the Cominform denounced Tito for his failure to permit free elections, free discussion and free criticism, the broadcast said:

". . . the Russians are attacking the very features in Yugoslav life which are most closely modelled after the Soviet way."

Italian Chamber Approves Aid Pact

By Barrett McGurn

Rome, July 12 (NYHT).—The Italian Chamber of Deputies voted tonight to ratify the European Recovery Program agreement. The vote was 297 to 96.

Almost every political current in Italy except the Communists and their left-wing Socialist allies rallied to the ERP's support.

The Italian Senate and Italy's new President, Luigi Einaudi, must approve ratification before it becomes final.

Palmiro Togliatti, the 55-year-old head of Italy's Communists, was goaded into an outburst when Giuseppe Cappi, a Christian Democratic lawyer, told the Parliament Czechoslovakia was prevented dictatorially from taking part in the Marshall Plan.

"It is not true," Togliatti cried.

"Italy will never let herself be called in by any dictator," Cappi flashed back.

"How about United States Ambassador Dunn?" Togliatti cried in return.

"And how about Truman?" another Communist cried.

The Italian internal situation continued to stress that Communists can damage the ERP by strikes. Cooking gas dropped to half its normal volume in Rome and most of the other large cities of Italy today, as 2000 Communist-supervised cooking gas workers went on a slowdown strike.

Hospital workers in the Rome area also went on strike, but nurses and doctors in direct charge of the sick continued at work, although technically on strike.

Boston Lawyer Joins Maritime Commission

David J. Coddaire, Haverhill, Mass., was sworn in yesterday as a member of the Maritime Commission.

By Strike

French Face Tieup of Government

Paris, July 12 (AP).—Government activity throughout France was threatened with paralysis tonight as conditional strike orders went out to some 20,000 civil servants.

Over 60,000 finance ministry employes walked out last week. Today the General Administration Federation asked its members to quit work at 1 p. m. (EST) tomorrow if its demands are not satisfied.

The union wants changes that would benefit lower paid categories in the distribution of about 100 million dollars in wage raises.

The federation, affiliated with the anti-Communist workers force labor moverment, controls about two-thirds of the 30,000 workers in the ministries of public health, interior, justice, veterans and German affairs as well as the prefectures and subprefectures—the local branches of the central government.

The number of government workers is estimated at about 1,000,000. Although only a small proportion has received strike notices, government machinery will be heavily affected if the general administration employes go out. The French bureaucracy is so tightly geared that even a few loosened bolts can soon bring it to a halt.

An Air France airliner crash-landed and burned at Orly Field tonight soon after ground control radio operators went on strike. Officials said there were no casualties.

One report said failure of the plane's hydraulic landing gear caused the accident.

No Asiatics For Australia

Canberra, Australia, July 12 (AP).—Immigration Minister Arthur A. Calwell rejected today suggestions that Australia admit Asiatics under her quota system.

A bulletin issued by his department said:

"It is doubtful whether any quota figure would satisfy any Asiatic nation, and once the doors to Australia are opened for permanent residence of small quotas of Asiatics, continued pressure would be exerted to permit large numbers to reside permanently in this country."

Calwell avoided using the term, "white Australia policy," but the statement amounted to a defense of it. He said Australia's immigration policy is "based on the concept of a nation with homogeneous European populations, free from dissensions and complexities which beset countries with mixed populations."

The Minister criticized "foreign inspired propaganda which is aimed at the destruction of Australia's immigration policy."

Troops Sent, London Says

Robertson, the British commander in chief in Germany. Earlier Robertson had conferred with Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

Arthur Henderson, British air minister, arrived in Berlin to study the British-American airlift operations. Anthony Eden, former British foreign secretary, landed at Hamburg en route to Berlin but refused to discuss his visit.

American planes established a new record by flying 1249 tons of food and other supplies into Berlin despite rainstorms and low ceiling. During the 24-hour period ending at 9 a. m. (EST) today 240 planes landed at Tempelhof Field. The RAF was not far behind with its second best 24-hour operation of 204 cargo planes landed at Gatow.

The previous American record was 1130 tons set last Friday. Since joint operations began, American planes have flown 11,096 tons of food to Berlin in 2721 flights. The British are keeping their tonnage secret.

Berlin Railway Line Repairs to Be Rushed

Berlin, July 12 (U.P.).—The German manager of the Berlin-Helmstedt Railway, the main supply line between Berlin and western Germany, promised today to rush "repairs" on the road, using all construction workers available.

"Chief Manager Besener" told the British-licensed news agency DPN rotted ties were the "technical difficulty" mentioned by the Russians July 19 when they halted service on the line and thus cut off food and other supplies going into Berlin from the west. The railway traverses the Soviet occupation zone.

(In London, CBS Correspondent Stephen Laird reported that "repairs" may be completed within a week and service restored.)

Offsetting these developments, the Soviet liaison officer to the Berlin city government announced a new restriction on travel. From now on traffic may not move from Berlin to the Soviet zone, and all permits are canceled, he said.

Two Killers Get Execution Stay

Execution dates for two condemned robber-murders were postponed yesterday to give President Truman time to act on petitions for Executive clemency. The doomed men Reginald J. Wheeler, 27, and Jesse James Patton, 22, are now to die August 20 in the District Jail electric chair. They were convicted of murdering Maurice Bernstein in a holdup in June, 1946, in Bernstein's drugstore at 1786 Florida ave. nw.

Greek Troops Make Gains in Grammos Area

Athens, July 12 (AP).—Greek army troops pushed forward into the wild Grammos Mountains today in a renewed offensive against the Communist rebels.

The Greek general staff announced that more than three divisions were advancing on the southwestern and central sectors. They are moving against Aetomolitsa, believed rebel chieftain Markos Vafiades' headquarters.

Guerilla casualties in the Grammos area were announced at 1852 from the beginning of the offensive on June 21 through July 10 including 1288 killed. Greek army casualties were listed as 1211, including 186 killed.

N. Y. Mystery Plane Is Held at Halifax

Halifax, N. S., July 12 (AP).—Nine occupants of a converted B-17 bomber were detained by the Immigration Department today. All gave home addresses in the United States.

The four-engine plane was forced down by bad weather near Halifax last night, and was impounded by customs officials. The pilot, who identified himself as Irwin R. Schindler of Miami, Fla., denied he was taking men overseas to join the army of Israel.

The Flying Fortress, carrying no visible armor, took off from the Westchester County (N. Y.) Airport late yesterday. Schandler refused to file a flight plan or disclose his destination. In Halifax, he said the plane was on a navigational training flight.

The men aboard, in addition to Schindler, gave their names as: Phil Mark, Victor Carlo and M. Croft, all of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Gus Brown and Fred Fink, both of the Bronx, N. Y.; S. Reedman of New York City and Henry Travis and Albert Schrayer of Bayonne, N. J.

Westchester Airport officials said they were told the plane was owned by the Overseas Air Trading Co. of Salina, Kans., and operated by World Air Ferries. Neither firm is listed in the American Aviation Directory, and a check at Salina failed to disclose the existence of such a firm.

Asked in Halifax who his passengers were, Schindler said: "Just some guys who are learning navigation." Asked whether they were being trained for service with Israel, he said: "Well, some of them are Jewish."

Engine Runs By Heated Air

New York, July 12 (AP).—A secret war engine, whose power is heated air, is described in today's Scientific American.

The engine was developed in Holland, secretly, during the German occupation. American and British military authorities are working on it, still secretly. Today's story came from the Phillips Eindhoven Co. of Holland, and was written by Leonard Engel of New York.

The engine gives one horsepower per 10 pounds and is said to be more efficient than gasoline or steam. It equals a Diesel at top performance. The size is 300 horsepower.

The secrets of the engine are not in principles of operation, but in construction of better alloys and more efficient parts.

It is said to be the simplest of all engines. One end of a cylinder is heated. Any kind of fuel will work well.

In the cylinder is a piston. Air expanding at the hot end pushes the piston down, and in going down the piston compresses cold air at the bottom of the cylinder. As the piston descends, this compressed cold air runs to the top to expand in the heat as the piston rises and push it down again.

The same air is used over and over. The trick is in what is called a heat-exchanger. This is a coil of fine wire, set alongside the piston, to permit air to flow up and down. The coil cools air flowing down, and heats the cold air rising from the bottom. The coil is so efficient that it supplies much of the heat used in each stroke to expand the cold compressed air. It does this at a rate of 3000 times a minute.

Advantages claimed are long wear, no carbon, no valves, no fuel intake and use of a higher percentage of the heat.

5 Air Force Jobs Juggled

The Air Force yesterday announced job switches for five of its generals.

Maj. Gen. Leo A. Walton, commanding general of the Fourteenth Air Force, with headquarters at the Orlando, Fla., Air Force Base, will be transferred August 1 to Air Force Headquarters here for duty with the Air Force Personnel Council.

Brig. Gen. Ralph F. Stearley, director of the legislative liaison division in public relations, will replace Walton.

Maj. Gen. Orval R. Cook, on duty with the Department of the Army, will become deputy director of procurement and industrial mobilizing planning of the Air Materiel Commander July 16. His headquarters will be at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio.

Maj. Gen. Richard E. Nugent of the office of the deputy chief of taff for personnel and administration at Air Force Headquarters, was named personnel planning director. Gordon E. Clark, a civilian, takes over his former duties.

Brig. Gen. Russell E. Randall, a graduate of the National War College, was assigned to the office of the director of intelligence at Air Force Headquarters.

Britain Holds Up Arab Funds As Palestine War Continues

London, July 12 (U.P.)—Britain renewed efforts today to extend the Palestine truce and held up her quarterly 500,000 pound (two million dollars) subsidy payment to the Trans-Jordan Arab Legion because of the "obscure situation" in the Holy Land.

The payment was due today under an Anglo-Transjordanian treaty signed early this year. The pact provided that Britain would give King Abdullah's British-trained and officered legion two million pounds (eight million dollars) a year.

The action marked a departure from Britain's earlier announced stand. Last May, the Foreign Office stated Britain would not withdraw British officers, money or arms provided the Arab Legion unless the United Nations decided the Arabs were acting illegally in Palestine.

[The New York Times in a report from Lake Success, N. Y., quoted usually reliable sources as saying Britain was negotiating an agreement to make available to Abdullah about two million dollars in hard currency, dollars or the equivalent, for the rest of this year. The sources said the sum was accepted in principle by Abdullah but the right to reopen the question was reserved "if they (the Arabs) incur additional liabilities as a result of developments in Palestine.]

Stop War, Mediator Tells U. N.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

NEW YORK—Count Folke Bernadotte (left) United Nations mediator for Palestine, is greeted by Trygve Lie, U. N. secretary general, on arriving at LaGuardia Field yesterday by plane from Europe and would be the source of constant trouble to the rest of the world.

It was learned he favored a U. N. "order" to the Jews and Arabs to halt their war because it was a threat to world peace.

Bernadotte added that he could understand the Arab unwillingness to continue the truce.

"From a purely military standpoint," he said, "there may have been an advantage for the Jews which would be inherent in any truce involving them. Their position is essentially a defensive one, and time runs in their favor.

"At the same time, the truce stopped the momentum of the Arab attack. Moreover, time affords the Jewish government opportunity to strengthen their political organization, he declared.

He declared his mission had not ended and said he believed peace in Palestine still was possible.

"I am an optimist," he said.

He was "happy that both parties have asked me to continue my mediation" and planned to leave for Rhodes Friday morning to resume his peace efforts.

Bernadotte said reports indicated the Palestine fighting was not serious.

"The truce apparently is over, but the war has not begun," he said.

primarily for its airport, but with the fall of the twin towns a possibility opened to slog through Arab defenses to the key town of Latrun. It was from Latrun that the Arabs smashed at food convoys trying to get through to Jerusalem's Jews.

Jerusalem's 100,000 Jews were joyful at the news Lydda and Ramble had fallen, a pooled dispatch from the Holy City said. Some thought it would be only a matter of days until the lifeline road from Tel Aviv to the Holy City would be commanded by Israel's men.

In the Old Walled City the Arabs settled down to a dogged holding action. They are ringed by Jewish steel which is exerting increasing pressure.

The Jews slammed mortar shells steadily into Arab positions, and rolled "Davidka," a giant mortar, into position. Arab mortar fire was light during the night and morning.

A Trans-Jordan communique in Amman said Legion patrols occupied Dier Zariff, east of Lydda airport, and shelled a Jewish settlement between Jerusalem and Abu Ghosh.

Jewish and Iraqi aircraft were reported over the Holy City during the night, and some bombs were dropped. They were believed to have come from Jewish planes attacking Arab positions.

Haifa was the scene of fighting as Jewish units mopped up Iraqi troops who sneaked into Tireh during the last days of the British evacuation.

Fierce fighting was reported in upper Galilee near the Syrian frontier. Reports from Haifa said the Syrians launched several attacks on Jewish settlements, but a Jewish spokesman declared they had been repulsed.

In Cairo, King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia was reported to have threatened an economic sanction on American oil concessions if the United Nations Security Council invokes similar action against Arab nations fighting in Palestine.

3 Children Reclaimed By Mother

A 23-year-old mother, who abandoned her three children Sunday night in Union Station, appeared voluntarily at the First Precinct station house to reclaim them yesterday.

Identified as Mrs. Elizabeth Adams, she was taken to the Women's Bureau, where police made arrangements for her with a relative who offered her and the youngsters a home.

The youngsters, Roselind, 1 year old; Ronald, 2, and Theodora, 5 were found on a bench around midnight. Beside them were a bag of clothing and a note in which the mother explained she left them because she had neither money to buy them food nor a place for them to stay.

Capt. Rhoda Milliken, head of the Women's Bureau, said Mrs. Adams came back for the children because she became remorseful.

Alexandria to Act On Big Bond Issue

The Alexandria city council is scheduled to take final action tonight on an ordinance authorizing a bond issue of $5,250,000 to build schools, roads, sewers, and recreational facilities.

Also on the docket are (1) a public hearing on a proposal to have all handling of rezoning requests revert from the planning commission to the council and (2) a request from the city manager for authority to proceed with construction of storm and sanitary sewers in anticipation of funds from the bond issue.

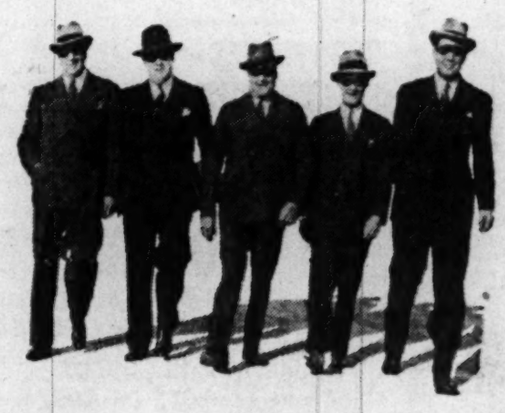
IT'S HERE The Sixth Installment of that Thrilling Serial
"FROM $20 A DAY TO $2,000,000 A YEAR"

Chapter Six—"The Five Mysterious Men"

Previous installments told of our beginning in the tiny corner of a drug store, our growth throughout the war.

DON'T let the "whodunnit" atmosphere fool you, because the only murder around Plain Old Pearson's involves the prices we have cut down in cold blood! No, the masked men are not a new quintet of singers either . . . it's like this . . .

Plain Old Pearson's did a land office business on special sales . . . but we couldn't go along having special sales continually. We'd heard crying wolf all the time was bad, so we had to devise a system whereby we could always sell our wares at the lowest possible price. We're hoggish—always wanting more business! Telling about our low, low prices is fine, but we wanted to show our customers that they could shop all over town and always find the low price at Plain Old Pearson's. All we really needed was a million dollar idea!



We set our brain trust to work . . . requirements were stiff and an idea like that takes time. It wasn't until last March we found the answer . . . When you buy stocks and bonds you go to one place for all the quoted prices . . . at the ostock exchange there is no shopping around, you get all the information, and buy and sell with a glance at the big blackboard. So why not apply the same principle at Plain Old Pearson's . . . have a real big time Liquor Stock Exchange? Why not indeed!

Who can say how the germ of this idea first took form? It may have been a pickled pig's foot that kept our idea man awake—haunted by visions of selling more liquor cheaper. It may have been a chance remark—a fleeting fragment of conversation that turned the tide and washed ashore this ingenious plan. "Nuff sed." We had the idea and it worked.

It works this way. We set up a huge Stock Exchange blackboard on the wall. It lists the regular brands and beside each brand name are listed PAR (regular price), BID (selling at other stores) and SELLING (what Plain Old Pearson's charges for it). Pretty good, you say, but there's another gimmick!

We change our prices THREE TIMES A DAY! Each day at 10, 2 and 6, after checking prices all around town, we send a man with a piece of chalk and an eyeshade up the ladder to change the BID and Plain Old Pearson's prices. Some angle, eh?

The five masked men? Oh, yeah. Well, their identity must remain a secret for reasons you will soon understand. You see, they are the men who spend their time finding out what the famous brands cost all around town. It's a kind of a high class (you should pardon the expression) "spy ring." These five masked men go around town for price information and call in to Plain Old Pearson's three times a day just before 10, 2 and 6 to give us the vital information that effects the price changes. Very tricky business.

Guess that tells the story . . . except that our friends really like the idea. It gives them a chance to compare prices without running all over town . . . they can just stand at the counter and read our stock exchange board to see what a bargain they're getting. So many people liked the idea that Time Magazine heard about us and ran a picture of our stock exchange in action in their May 10 issue. Looks like we've arrived!

So you can plainly see a lot of something has flowed over the dam since we started the dark corner of a drug-store in 1936. We've had good times and bad times, but no complaints. Most good stories must come to an end, but this one doesn't. Plain Old Pearson's just goes on and on . . . giving the most for the least . . . and if we get any more ideas on price-cutting, you'll be hearing from us. YOU can bet on it . . .

A dog's best friend is his man

In all of Nature, there is no counterpart for the deep, age-old friendship between man and dog.

A dog is a social creature. He is a member of human society.

In return for a little kindness, he is ready to give a family all his love, his devotion, his labor, and—if necessary—his life.

Just as people need dogs, so do dogs need people.

And that is why the work of the Humane Societies of this country is so important.

Your local Humane Society helps families who are looking for dogs, and dogs who are looking for families.

It offers expert advice to dog owners on the intelligent care, feeding and training of their pets.

In some cities it provides skilled veterinary service for sick pets, regardless of the owner's ability to pay.

And it performs an important safety service by caring for hundreds of strays that would otherwise wander the streets, a potential menace to health.

Your Humane Society stands always ready to help you. It, in turn, deserves your help.

For this reason, the Chrysler Dealers are sponsoring a radio program, "The Animal World Court," designed to make you better acquainted with the activities of these useful groups.

As an organization devoted to service, we are proud to be able to help the country's Humane Societies in their generous and kindly work.

No. 14 Police Face Ouster By Schools

The new 14th police precinct may be without a stationhouse next summer, unless city officials can find a new one.

The Board of Education said yesterday it will need the Davis School annex, 44th pl. and H st. ne., now used as a stationhouse, for school purposes by September, 1949.

The board by letter notified the Commissioners and Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett that the building must be returned to the schools next summer to permit renovation for the fall term.

The Police Department was given temporary use of the building by the board on June 23 until a permanent stationhouse could be constructed at 42d st. and Benning rd. ne.

Work on the new building cannot begin, however, because the low construction bid of $195,591 was about $30,000 more than the money available.

School officials took action yesterday after learning that Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee for the District, suggested that the school building become a permanent home for the station.

The annex building, a wartime temporary, was used as a school until completion of the permanent Davis School.

The board in its letter pointed out that last year there were 379 students assigned to the new school building which has a capacity of 360. A school census shows there will be 423 students next year and 508 by 1950. Enrollment will increase further when 343 housing units now under construction in the area are occupied.

Speaking from an educational point of view, the board said it did not think it a good idea to locate a police station permanently adjacent to a school.

Curran Says Slate Leads in NMU Voting

New York, July 12 (AP).—Joseph Curran, president of the CIO National Maritime Union, said today tallying of the first of the 41,000 ballots in the union's national elections showed his slate with a decisive lead over the leftist faction opposing him.

He said that in voting for the various offices to be filled, his anti-Communist rank-and-file ticket led by margins varying from 5 to 1 to 2 to 1. The opposition slate is headed by Frederick (Blackie) Myers.

D. C. Woman Gun-Wielder Is Paroled

Annapolis, Md., July 12 (Spl.).—A Washington woman, convicted as the gun-wielder in a series of taxicab holdups in Washington in 1945, was free on parole today after 26 months in jails.

Mrs. Flora Roberta Thompson, 26, the pistol-toting cab rider, was one of nine Maryland prisoners paroled last week by Governor Lane on recommendation of the State board of parole and probation. Listed as "courteous and cooperative" in confinement, she will work in Washington, her prison release records stated.

According to the parole records, Mrs. Thompson held the gun while a male companion robbed cabbies in the District and Prince Georges County, Md. She was tried and convicted in the District and served 15 months of a 6-18-month prison term at Occuquan.

Others released on parole whose crimes were committed in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties included: John Edward Bailey, 23, Montgomery County farmhand, shotgun assault with intent to kill Charles E. Davis, in March, 1947; Frank Powell Stephens, 24, former combat engineer from Fort Belvoir, Va., convicted of helping to rob a Prince Georges County cab driver, in 1947.

Also: Cornelius Simms, 24, sentenced February 27, 1947, Montgomery Counyt Circuit Court to not more than four years for burglarizing a Poolesville, Md., home. Under Maryland law, a prisoner automatically becomes eligible for parole consideration after serving one-third of his sentence.

Sister Kenny Hits Critics Of Her Costs

New York, July 12 (AP).—Sister Elizabeth Kenny, working as a reporter at the First International Polio Congress here today, challenged a statement of the English doctor, H. J. Seddon of Oxford University, that the Kenny polio treatment cost five times more than orthodox treatment.

Dr. Seddon quoted from a paper by Dr. N. Samuel Ransohoff of Monmouth, N. J., in 1943.

Miss Kenny asked for a news conference with Drs. Seddon and Ransohoff. Both attended along with Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Ransohoff stuck to his guns.

She asked for present costs for polio patients by orthodox methods and Dr. Ramsohoff replied they were $17.73 per day.

She said that at her institute in Minneapolis these costs are $9.12 a day.

Dr. Fishbein said it is not possible to compare the expenses of different treatments, because their variations by doctors are so great, and because there is no standard by which to measure them.

Earlier, in was reported to the convention that a change in infantile paralysis is taking place. It is occurring more often to adult Americans and less often to small children.

The switch in polio was reported by Dr. Albert B. Sabin of the University of Cincinnati.

The increasing susceptibility of adult Americans is mostly confined to the Northern United States. It includes teen-agers, while under 5-year-olds are escaping.

One theory, Dr. Sabin said, deserves special study—namely that the change is in Americans themselves, due to something subtle and unknown in their diet and maybe connected with water or soil.

Home is the most dangerous place, if anyone in a home gets the disease, or becomes a carrier, the intimate association spreads polio faster than any other now known way. From a polio home the disease spreads mostly to homes of intimate friends.

Mr. Johnston's Hokum

Senator Johnston's promise to work for a 25-million-dollar Federal payment to the District government has all the appearance of a scheme to lock the door after he himself has stolen the horse. It was his filibuster that killed the House-passed District sales-tax bill in the closing hours of the last session of Congress and thus defeated the pay increase for municipal employes. Now, in an expansive manner, from the sounding board of Philadelphia, he talks about a lavish gift from Uncle Sam, pay raises for everyone in the District service, and no more tax increases. Hard-pressed District employes and many others not so directly affected would be less than human if they refrained from replying, "hokum."

This newspaper has long felt that the Federal Government, which is the largest beneficiary of the municipal services operated by the District, should pay a larger share of the cost of those services. But to suggest a sudden doubling of the present Federal payment, as Senator Johnston has done, is equivalent to offering District residents a vested interest in the moon. Considering the views of the House of Representatives on this subject, the Senator from South Carolina knows perfectly well that he could never make good on such a promise.

The Senator had a good opportunity to seek a more satisfactory fiscal relationship between the Government and the District when he was a member of the joint committee which conducted hearings on the home-rule bill a few months ago. Instead, he fought the whole concept of home rule. Previously he had blocked an urgently needed police investigation. Against this record, it is difficult to look at his lavish promise at Philadelphia as anything more than a meaningless apologia.

Here And There

The British Information Service has just released some figures on food costs that will astonish the average American housewife. For example, last February ribs of beef were selling (at official retail prices) for 28 cents per pound; bacon averaged 44 cents per pound; a loaf of bread weighing 3½ pounds cost 15 cents; butter was quoted at 27 cents per pound; eggs at 50 to 60 cents per dozen; potatoes at 16 to 22 cents for 7 pounds. The comparable figures for Washington present a startling contrast. Last week local grocery chains quoted prices of 89 cents for rib roast and 43 cents for lean short ribs of beef. Bacon was selling at prices ranging from 69 to 78 cents per pound; butter at 89 to 91 cents per pound; Grade A large eggs 67 cents per dozen; a loaf of white bread weighing 1 pound, 12 cents; while 10 pounds of new white potatoes cost the housewife 45 cents.

The first reaction of the average American housewife to this study in contrasts will be envy of her British sister and wonder at British grumbling over hard living conditions and monotonous fare. The envy will be shortlived, however, after a glance at the schedule of Britain's ration allotments. For, with certain exceptions, an adult is allowed only 20 cents worth of meat in any one week, and 3 cents of that total must be taken in canned corn beef. In other words, a man or woman's entire ration allowance would be exhausted by the purchase of 10 ounces of ribs of beef, while the weekly ration of bacon and ham is just 2 ounces. The butter allowance is not so bad—4 ounces per adult—especially as it can be supplemented with 3 ounces of margarine and 1 of cooking fat. Eggs, however, are so scarce that consumers received on the average about one per week last year. The weekly ration of milk, which is somewhat cheaper in Britain than in the United States, is 3 pints (the equivalent of 3.6 United States liquid pints). Moreover, prices of many unrationed foods, such as fresh fruits and vegetables, are very high—in some cases extremely high, even by comparison with inflated American standards. The reason for this price distortion is plain: since prices of basic commodities are being maintained at artificially low levels by means of heavy government subsidies, surplus consumer income is available for pushing up prices of uncontrolled commodities.

So American housewives have no cause to envy the British housewives who have to spend on scarce and high-priced extras what they save on low-priced rationed foods, or else be content with a deadly monotonous diet. Then, too, the food subsidies add considerably to the tax burdens of the average man. What he saves in grocery bills he pays over to the government that makes such savings possible.

The British as well as the people of this country are the victims of inflation—with a difference. Here we have chosen to abandon the controls and restrictions that held inflationary forces in check during the war. There it was essential to maintain severe restrictions on consumption of essential foodstuffs because Britain is not only dependent on food imports but is compelled to conserve the dollars needed for purchase of essential foods and other materials. However, the result of a policy designed to keep living costs low, despite scarcities, is a severe dislocation of the domestic price structure that makes it all the more difficult to curb nonessential buying and discourage expansion of nonessential trades and industries.

Battle For Germany

No longer shall we deplore the strategy which on cold-war or hot-war grounds has created the Western beleaguerment in Berlin. This country is now faced with a fact, not a theory. Soviet interference with transport into Berlin is regarded as a holdup calling for either surrender or resistance. What is past is prologue, what is present is a challenge which the Western powers have accepted in the watching presence of all Europe, and in these circumstances it cannot be side-stepped or compromised.

The immediate gallery of the Russo-Western joust is the population of Germany. The Ministers President in western Germany have removed the illogic in the Western position by voting against the setting up of a German government at Frankfurt. The idea should now be dropped. To the six powers the justification for a government functioning under a new constitution was the need for financial and economic integration in the west because of the collapse of four-power authority in Berlin. Now the admission is forthcoming that integration can be obtained without resort to a device that would have been equal to a declaration of German division. It may be that this may serve the Russians as a way out of their dilemma. The next move is up to them. Western defiance of the Soviet siege of Berlin has now implicated the 2¼ million Germans in the Western sectors in our steadfastness. By conviction or force of circumstances they have become collaborationists of the Western powers and over the weekend actually rallied to the Western cause at mass meetings. This now gives point to the Marshall statement that the responsibility that has been undertaken is "outstandingly humanitarian in character." It is impossible at this stage of the tug-of-war to desert them, and in all the circumstances we now see no option but to see it through and to make sure of our hold on Berlin.

The prime essential at this point of the game is to have a plan ready in case the Russians refuse to lift the blockade. The appeal to the United Nations which is hinted at in the Marshall Plan is not a plan. It would be considered a retreat. There are 11 members of the U. N. Security Council, 4 of them are involved in this dispute, leaving 7 to act, and this is a quorum. But of those seven the Ukraine, Moscow stooge, is one; so that the controversy would be likely to be talked to death. That would mean that the Berliners would be reduced to idleness as well as starvation during the discussion, for the air lift simply cannot do the job of keeping the Berliners fed and at work very much longer. In sum, the reliance upon seeing it through is our strong right arm and not the United Nations.

In this light the authorities must be thinking about a supplement to the Berlin express. That can be nothing less than armed convoys. Trains and trucks and barges equipped with weapons should be ready for use in case the Russians keep up the blockade. This is not all. What is also clear, in addition to the inescapable responsibility of insisting on a Russian climbdown, is that there now appears to be no possibility of negotiating a quittance of Berlin. The situation appears to have gone beyond that. There can be no clubbing of the Russians, as we have said before, into cooperation, and we must make sure there are no more "technical difficulties" imposed upon our entry into Berlin. How? Only by moving the western occupation up to Berlin. The area between the western zones and Berlin, as the Marshall note says, was won by Western arms. When the American troops retired, access to Berlin was implied. It is not, to be sure, confirmed by specific agreement, but usage in any version of law is tantamount to agreement. If the Russians should decide to relax their pincers, and if the Western powers should remain in Berlin, there would seem to be no alternative but to insist upon a corridor of our own to the former German capital. However, the Soviet has been put in the position of having to lose face or fight before any such rearrangement is possible.

The Voice Pays Off

Observers returning from nations behind the iron curtain report that the people there are relying more and more on Voice of America broadcasts for news of their own countries as well as the outside world. Indeed, these broadcasts plus the amazing grapevine that has grown up extensively in eastern Europe constitute the only credible sources of news for persons who refuse to swallow the pap put out by satellite governments as official releases. Proof of the increasing effectiveness of American broadcasts may be seen in the action of Hungarian police. Hungary is one of the less thoroughly assimilated portions of the Communist ring, and hence officials have not yet gone so far as to brand listening to American broadcasts openly as a crime. However, the fact that various individuals have been accused of listening to such programs has been cited by police as evidence of intent to undermine "Hungarian democracy."

These repressive measures by the Hungarian government add up to the now familiar policy of enforced insulation. Deliberate efforts to keep the people in ignorance indicate clearly, as Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen commented the other day, that totalitarian rule is being applied against the popular will. Moreover, in all probability the recrimination shows a growing impatience on the part of Hungarian officialdom that American broadcasts are making absolute censorship difficult if not impossible. For example, every now and then it becomes apparent that news of a certain event is being suppressed in a particular country. This is the cue for the Voice of America to give special emphasis to that news in its broadcasts to the country in question.

Obviously the effectiveness of foreign broadcasts cannot be measured by the more overt types of listener response such as letters because of the intimidation exercised by iron curtain governments. What has been happening in Hungary, however, shows beyond much doubt that the Voice of America is succeeding in breaching the wall of suppression, and as such it constitutes an invaluable tool of foreign policy. The results also confirm the wisdom of sticking to factual, uncolored news which is in the long run the best form of propaganda. Perhaps the most significant benefit of the foreign broadcasts is to keep alive a faith in the United States and in free institutions even where the material benefits of freedom are denied.

Mr. Barkley's Keynote

Senator Barkley made an heroic effort last night to lift the Democratic National Convention out of the doldrums into which it had been plunged by the revolt against President Truman and the absence of any other candidate on whom the party could unite. His summary of the achievements of the Democratic Administrations during the past 16 years—omitting the mistakes, as all convention speakers necessarily do—brought a fresh glow of partisan pride. And his slashing attack upon the Republican-dominated Eightieth Congress contained a good deal of fighting spirit. Yet the speech was basically defensive in tone. The Senator tried to squeeze some advantage out of his failure to claim victory in November by contrasting it with the egotistical example of the Republicans in the same hall three weeks ago.

What the keynote speaker did succeed in showing is that the Democratic Party has no reason to proclaim its bankruptcy, as so many of its leaders have been doing in recent weeks. In both the international and domestic fields the achievements of the Truman Administration and its predecessors are numerous, and there is strong public support for many policies sponsored by the President which Congress has thus far failed to enact. Even though much of the foreign policy which the Government is now following is a product of bipartisan agreement, the Administration is entitled to credit for taking the lead in development of the European Recovery Program, for fostering and working with the United Nations and for a generally forward-looking leadership in the chaotic postwar world.

Senator Barkley had no difficulty in showing that the Republicans, in spite of their harmony festival at Philadelphia, are bedeviled by schisms of their own. An obstinate clique in control of the House almost upset the recovery program by chiseling down the funds to be allowed for that purpose. The GOP convention found it necessary to repudiate the record of the House leaders in dealing with the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill. Senator Barkley also bore down heavily, and with good reason, on the failure of the Republican Congress to cope with the inflation. There is an abundance of ammunition that can be employed to good advantage against the GOP if the Democratic Party can submerge its own internal animosities in the interest of a united party effort.

The real test, of course, is not whether factionalism exists. In a free country, people always divide into factions. The test of any party's worthiness to be trusted with governmental responsibility lies in whether it can merge the divergent views of many groups into a common program under leadership that all factions will support. The Democratic convention has yet to meet this test, and in spite of Senator Barkley's valiant effort the outlook does not appear to be promising.

HIGH TIDE

This place was like no place
That he had known before:
The green sea climbing always
The long white hills of shore;

The gulls' gray aimless motion.
The long white miles of sand,
The wave-shaped pearl-smooth pebble,
The fish's silver strand.

His mind grew big to hold
Three-cornered symmetry
In shape and line and sound
Of land, and sun, and sea;

The long blue line of sea
The pale blue line of sky;
The sunlight on the jet
Of the sea-gull's eye.

He felt the day lean down
And drink his thought like dew
Till he was like an island
Where only coral grew.

This watcher of the tide
Who felt the sea come in
And leaned on miles of sand
Was no one he had been.

Educational Exchange

Your July 6 editorial, "Voice Control," brought out the results of congressional economy in our broadcasts to Latin America. It also mentioned the Smith-Mundt Act. I wonder if it is generally known that even the Smith-Mundt Act, which passed both Houses unanimously, has been hamstrung by the economy-minded Congress.

The Voice of America Act, as it is popularly called, is officially known as the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948. The Congress appropriated 28 million dollars for the information part of the act, but failed to make any appropriations for the educational exchange. As far as the Eastern Hemisphere is concerned it means that no provision has been made for what the Appropriations committee of the House called "the long-term cultural, scientific and educational activities."

This expression was used in stating that "greater emphasis should be given to more immediate objectives," with less emphasis on the more lasting effects of helping people to understand the United States. It is regrettable that we must continually heed immediate issues and ignore things of long-range importance until they become immediate issues.

The American colleges and universities, as well as private organizations, have realized the importance of giving a few young, intelligent Europeans the opportunity of knowing what life is like in these United States. They are offering awards of assistance to the best of their ability, but with the acute dollar shortage in Europe, governmental assistance is needed to help these students and professors get to this country for short visits.

Some people realize that it is impossible to replace the vivid living experience of visiting this country by a series of broadcasts. On the other hand our Congress has admitted to the world that it is more interested in entering the international propaganda campaign than in devoting a few dollars, probably less than a third of the amount spent on broadcasts, to the educational benefit of this country and the world. "Carole Landis"

Your editorial of July 7 on the suicide of Miss Carole Landis quite rightly regards it as another justification of Geoffrey Gorer's distressing conclusions on Hollywood-promoted glamour. But an even more tragic aspect of the matter is the sentimental attitude toward religion which Miss Landis displays.

For the past several years, Hollywood has exerted itself to present a series of "religious" films. Devils are traditionally cigar-smoking gangsters; angels are either chesty wenches or handsome males with over-active libidos. God himself is a kindly old gentleman with a broad sense of humor.

A true Christian is not such a weak-minded idiot as all this indicates. Yet he finds that his religion is emasculated in his very hands by Hollywood's mawkish presentation of it. Not only does this leave Christianity powerless as a constructive world force, but it also casts a terribly childish illusion. It was precisely this to which Miss Landis turned in her last moments. Not only did she fall victim to Hollywood hedonism, but she pathetically reached out to Hollywood's terribly inadequate Christianity for support. Thus Miss Landis symbolizes one of the most tragic misapprehensions of modern times.

Montgomery Schools

In regard to the controversy about the school system in Montgomery County, I should like as a parent and partly as a teacher, to express my views.

May I point out that if the parents would show up at the various P-TA meetings, so there would be at least as many parent as teachers present, they might learn something and do the job they are supposed to do in cooperation with the school system.

I might advise the teachers in the county that more publicity as to their own achievements and degrees would help convince the public that the teaching staff, even if underpaid, is more than adequate to prove that in Montgomery County the parents more than the children need to learn both how to read as well as how to write. Low-Flying Planes

Leroy E. Peabody of Alexandria, in his letter on low-flying planes published July 3, says perhaps his letter may be sufficient to become a campaign issue.

I, and many others who live in Alexandria, would gladly support any campaign to eliminate the menace of these eternal planes right over our roofs.

I've heard that there's a plane in and/or out of the National Airport every minute. We live in Parkfairfax and our apartment building is right in line of the planes coming in for landing and also those taking off.

To steel one's nerves against them is impossible, and in addition to the constant nervous strain, we miss part of any news broadcast or other radio program. One can scarcely ever have one complete telephone conversation without as many as from three to six interruptions of "Wait a minute, a plane is going right over me and I can't hear a thing." All during the night, one's sleep and rest are disturbed by planes so low that sometimes one even jumps out of bed and dashes to the window to see if they really will miss the roof top next door.

One afternoon sometime ago a little helicopter flew low over the city of Washington and there was quite a hubbub. The pilot was fined, I believe, by CAA.

A few days later a helicopter proceeded over to Alexandria where the pilot flew around as long as he pleased and as low as he pleased. From my front door I saw the helicopter, not far out of reach, the pilot waving to those whom he had scared out of their apartments.

That multiplied many times each day, and with much larger, more noisy, and more dangerous craft, is what we here in Alexandria must contend with continuously. LAURIE G. YATER.

Soviet Efforts At Cooperation

We hear a great deal, both from public officials and from the radio and press, about the uncooperative attitude of the Soviet Union in international affairs. Unfortunately, we hear very little on the other side, the uncooperative attitude of our own responsible officials.

A recent example of this was well brought out by an editorial in the Christian Century (June 9), the usual attitude of which is rather anti-Soviet. The editorial begins:

"Russia has made three attempts within recent months to start peace talks with the United States. This is a matter of record. The first came in Berlin, when a high Soviet official tried to feel out Ambassador Murphy on American readiness to discuss means of ending 'the cold war.' The second came when Molotov interpreted Ambassador Smith's demarche as an invitation to such a discussion, only to find on accepting that Washington was not ready to discuss. Now the third attempt has been made by Stalin himself. Casting aside ordinary diplomatic protocol, the Russian dictator took a leaf from Woodrow Wilson and appealed for peace talks over the heads of Mr. Truman and Mr. Marshall to the American people. All three of these Russian proposals for a discussion of outstanding issues with the United States have been rebuffed."

How many people in the United States know this? How many would get that impression from radio commentators or headlines in our newspapers?

Important church groups and peace organizations know it. They had been calling for such conferences as the Russians proposed. The American Friends Service Committee had been buying advertising space in daily newspapers to advocate space in daily newspapers to advocate such a venture for peace. The Federal Council of Churches had called for it and when Molotov accepted General Smith's invitation, sent a telegram of rejoicing to the President before it learned that the Soviet response had been rebuffed. The people of Europe, whose greatest dread is of another war, rejoiced in the hope of peace. The official Vatican newspaper expressed gratification.

The editorial continues: "American rejection of these Russian approaches has gone beyond these rebuffs. Every ounce of the propaganda power of the White House and State Department has been exerted to divert the attention of the American public to secondary issues.

"In the light of the crisis which involves the United States and Russia, now is the time to ignore all the side issues, all the minor diplomatic irritations, and concentrate on the central fact which these Russian approaches reveal. The fact is simply that Russia says she wants to talk peace. If Russia is ready to sit down and talk the situation over, are we? If we are not, why not?"

I believe that this expresses the deepest wish of the great majority of our people and that, if they were properly informed, they would bombard the President and the State Department with the question "Why not?" and that they would rally to the support of the only political party which honestly is making its chief issue peace and opposition to our foreign policy which is leading to war.

Need For Opposition

PHILADELPHIA.—Watching this slack and spiritless gathering reluctantly begin its foreordained business, you need no crystal ball to see what kind of campaign will develop in the fall. The contest will be more one-sided than any in our recent political history.

The Democratic organization will be virtually without funds. It is even now living from hand to mouth. The newspapers will be overwhelmingly for the Republican ticket.

The Democratic chieftains here for this convention see all too clearly how bad is their plight. But such an unbalance is bad not merely for the party that happens to be on the short end.

Under our two-party system it is bound to be bad for the country and even for the Republicans who are at this moment looking on with such smug self-satisfaction. There must be vigorous competition if the system is to produce truly representative government.

There must, above all, be a competition in ideas, in concepts, and each side must be able to make itself heard and understood. It is just here, in my opinion, that the chief danger lies in the coming campaign.

Already the effort is being made on the Republican side to make it sound as though this were to be a contest between the individual and individual freedom on the one hand and the all-powerful state on the other hand. Nothing could be more false. A victory won on that ground would open the way to exploitation by interests more powerful than Government.

IN TWO fields it is already evident what this can mean. No. 1 is taxes. In this connection a plank in the Republican platform deserves more study than it has received. The plank says: "The Federal Government shall as soon as practicable withdraw or reduce those taxes which can be best administered by local governments, with particular consideration of excise and inheritance taxes."

This is an outright invitation to repeal the Federal inheritance tax. State governments are far more subject to pressure from wealth and power. Moreover, the way would immediately be opened to rivalry, with some States deliberately trying to attract wealth by a low inheritance tax or none at all.

At the last session, the Republican Congress went a long way toward this goal. The new tax law permits the splitting of estate and gift taxes between husband and wife in the same manner that the income tax can now be split. In his message vetoing the tax bill, President Truman said that nearly all of the $250,000,000 annual reduction would go to 12,000 of the Nation's most wealthy families. The new law, according to one theoretical example, would permit one million dollars to be passed on tax free.

YOU DO NOT need to be an apostle of the soak-the-rich tax school to see where this can lead. Perhaps a truly objective study of our chaotic tax system would reveal that too great a share of the burden is being carried by wealth.

But a compliant Congress, willing to repeal or nullify the inheritance tax, could very quickly throw the whole structure out of balance. In finding ways to make up the deficit, the burden would be passed to those less able to bear it. Our inflation-ridden economy would be under still another strain.

Powerful exploiters hope to use a Republican victory in the field of public power and public land. As Bernard De Voto has shown so effectively in Harper's, a concerted plot seems to be aimed at turning over all public lands to the States and from there to private owners.

It has begun with a high-powered attack on the modest regulations of the Forest Service which protects part of the public lands—your land and mine—from ruin through overgrazing. Back of this is seen the dim outline of an intention to break down all barriers, including even those in the national parks. This would be a repudiation of Theodore Roosevelt and Gifford Pinchot, the crusading Republicans who long ago believed they had won the conservation battle.

In public power the goal is to stop further Federal power development and to turn all power distribution over to private utilities. The real gains that have come to so-called backward regions from Federal power could conceivably be reversed.

A victory won in part by default and on the false opposition of control versus freedom would give the extremists far too much license; a license they are already preparing to use. In 1934 and 1936, the years of the New Deal high tide, we heard a great deal about the need for restraint and effective opposition under the two-party system. That need may be even greater today when the party in power for so long seems on the point of disintegration and is all but powerless to make itself heard.

Freedom to Complain

Traveling last year in Europe I experienced a Kremlin campaign. In every country the Communists repeated words that the U. S. stole territory, was selling inferior merchandise, was going to attack the USSR with a seven-million man Army.

Hysteria starts for many reasons. Trouble starts from suspicion, but when you open the doors and let people see—you show sincerity.

Today And Tomorrow

Truman And The Democratic Problem

MR. TRUMAN'S insistence that he be nominated, though he has been repudiated by the active elements of his party—by the Southerners, the New Dealers, and the urban machines in the big cities—is remarkable as showing how the pomp and power of the Presidency can turn humility into stubborn price.

LIPPMANN

Yet if he is able to force an unwilling party to nominate him, he will have only a passing and empty satisfaction. He will not have received a vote of confidence endorsing his Administration, and he will have made unnecessarily difficult for his party, which must in any event relinquish national power, to remain the effective party of national opposition.

FOR WHILE the Democratic Party is almost certain to lose the national election, it need not be overwhelmed and disintegrate. Not even Governor Dewey can want to see that happen. Under Truman that is just what is likely to happen. There may be not merely a healthy and normal decisively Republican victory but a landslide of such proportions that the Democratic Party in the House would be reduced to a negligible and discordant minority of Southern Democrats and of Northerners from a few districts in a few big cities, that in the pivotal States the Democrats would be devastated in the State capitals and in the cities. The country, not only the Democratic Party, would suffer, for opposition is essential in the American system. Too great a Republican majority in Congress would be unmanageable, and the White House could not easily lead, or keep discipline within, a Republican majority that had nothing to fear from the Democrats.

WITH THE final collapse of the Eisenhower boom, the anti-Truman Democrats appear to have no one on whom they can unite. That is true if they think they must find some one who might defeat Dewey. But if they take the realities as they are, accept the fact that they are not nominating a man who can be President, and concentrate their attention upon salvaging the party and preparing it to be the opposition, then their problem is not insoluble.

Stripped of all pretense and illusion about electing a President in November, the business of the Democratic convention is to choose a man who can lead them as an opposition party during the next four years.

WHO CAN do that? Only someone, I submit, who has a sure seat in Congress. For it is only in Congress that the Democrats will still have power and influence. The Democratic record as an opposition party will be made by the Democratic Senators and Representatives. In fact, therefore, the opposition can be led only by a Democratic politician who has seniority in Congress, a thorough knowledge of the machinery of government, of legislative issues and parliamentary procedure, and is trusted and liked by the main factions and liked by the main factions of the party which are represented in Congress.

No other party leader will really be able to lead the Democrats in opposition. If he is not a member of Congress, once the November election is over, he will be reduced to issuing statements, delivering ceremonial addresses and to negotiating with the Democrats in Congress who will inevitably be the actual working opposition.

THIS, in itself, would be reason for ruling out Mr. Truman. For when he has been defeated and has retired from the White House, and has returned to Missouri, he will still be the titular leader. But what power and influence for leadership will he possess? Is it conceivable that a man who has been defeated by so much of his party while he was still President could lead it after he had taken it down with him to a disastrous defeat?

The fact that only in Congress can the Democrats be the active opposition should also rule out Mr. Justice Douglas. Were the general situation different this year, that is to say, if the Democratic Party were not so obviously destined to relinquish its long hold on the administration of the Government, Douglas might legitimately be the heir of Roosevelt. But even if he is the man, this is not the time for him. For what would he be doing after he had been defeated in November? He would be the titular head of the party—in fact, however, a former justice of the Supreme Court, a defeated candidate, and a private citizen. He might be listened to but he could not hope to lead, perhaps not even to participate in the Democratic congressional caucuses, which will make Democratic national policy.

IF THIS reasoning is correct, then the best solution would be the nomination of a Senator who commands the respect of all the factions and will in any event be the actual leader of the Democratic opposition in Congress. Is not that man Senator Barkley of Kentucky?

His nomination would be a frank and honest acceptance of the realities of the political situation—that the Democrats are not out to win the Presidency but to survive as the national party of opposition, to be critical, vigilant, but good humored about the return of the Republicans and the rise of Dewey. By nominating Barkley, the actual leader of the party in the next years would also be made the titular leader. The enhancement of his prestige and influence would serve the party well during the years immediately ahead when it will be able to exercise national power and influence only in Congress.

SINCE Senator Barkley could not be elected to the Presidency, the questions do not arise which would otherwise have to be asked about him and his experience in executive office. It is enough that he is a most experienced legislator, a seasoned politician, and so well liked and so generally trusted that he could more readily than anyone else be the mediator and harmonizer which the party so greatly needs.

He would obviously not be a candidate for the nomination four or eight years hence when the Democrats may again be serious contenders. Therefore, during this period of Democratic retirement, when the party will be reorganizing, recovering, and above all rejuvenating itself, he will not stand in the way of the new men who, as Governors of States or as Senators and Congressmen, will be proving their availability.

Matter Of Fact

History's Little Joke

Philadelphia.—If he were a different sort of man, one would suspect Justice William O. Douglas of having purposely taken his revenge on the man who denied him the opportunity of becoming Franklin D. Roosevelt's heir four year ago. That is the effect, at any rate, of what has happened in the last 48 hours.

Too few people now remember that President Roosevelt's choice for the vice presidency in 1944 were William O. Douglas first and Harry S. Truman second. At that time, however, the northern leaders—Ed Kelly of Chicago, Ed Flynn of New York, Frank Hague of New Jersey and David Lawrence of Pennsylvania—wanted Truman as a "safer" organization man. They were joined in this by Robert Hannegan, then chairman of the National Committee. The Douglas junta was managed by amateurs, mainly Thomas G. Corcoran and Harold Ickes. And the professionals simply rolled over the amateurs and nominated Truman.

NOW these same professionals, plus Truman, have spent 48 hours trying to get Douglas to take another vice presidential nomination. Douglas wanted it very much in 1944. He did not want it this time. But he took just enough time making up his mind to place the President in a fairly humiliating position, and to disclose publicly the bankruptcy of the Democratic Party.

All this adds up to one of history's neatest little jokes, if you like to look at it that way.

THERE is more to it than that, however. What has happened, in the first place, permanently removes Douglas, the most promising of all the progressive Democrats, from active political life. His friends still think his "chance will be in 1952." But in sober truth, his last chance was now, as the story of behind-the-scenes maneuvering plainly indicates.

It was at least three months ago that the northern leaders held a meeting in New York under Ed Flynn's shrewd auspices, and decided that Truman's running mate had to be Douglas. They sent Douglas a message to this effect at the Supreme Court, through the then executive secretary of the national committee, Gael Sullivan. At that time, the ablest of the President's advisers, Clark Clifford, also came to the same conclusion as the northern leaders. But the President did not make up his own mind until the eve of the convention, last Friday evening. Then he telephoned Douglas in the Northwest and pressed the place on him with flattering warmth.

Douglas, already knowing what was probably coming, had long decided to refuse. He unfortunately let the President persuade him to think it ocer. In the following 48 hours, every kind of pressure was put on him to accept. The first argument was that he would put vigor into the campaign and prevent a Republican walk-over.

ARGUMENT number two, the intended clincher, was best expressed by Frank Hague, who cogently remarked that "if the fellow wants to be President now's his chance. Douglas will put every Democratic leader in the country in his debt if he takes the Vice Presidency now, and he can have whatever he wants four years from now."

As everyone knows, these arguments did not prevail. Douglas telephoned his refusal to the President a little after 9 o'clock Monday morning (which means that he rose before dawn by Pacific Coast time). The President, who had expected another answer, was both bitterly disappointed and very angry.

The same emotions were and are felt by the chief leaders of the Democratic organizations.

That is why any future talk of getting Douglas off the court and into politics again is almost certain to be empty speculation. It is extremely unfortunate that the Democratic progressives should thus be deprived of a leading hopeful. But the fact must be faced.

At the same time, what has happened should not wholly cast down the progressive Democratic groups. The point to note is that the chieftians of the Northern organizations, who picked organization man Truman in 1944, now sadly rue that hollow triumph. And they were the principal Douglas men this time.

What this means is very simple and very important. These same organization leaders have now utterly abandoned the old theory of the big city machines, that any hack was a good enough candidate, so long as he was "safe." Being distinctly astute, they have learned the lesson that effective leadership and progressive thinking are now needed to appeal to the voters in their wards and precincts. In short, they realize that safe men are no longer safe candidates. This in turn provides a foundation on which to build a genuinely progressive Democratic Party with a sound organization framework. Such a party of the future will no longer be regarded by Republicans, or the country, as a rather macabre political zombie—which is what the present Democratic Party looks like at this convention.

Moscow Setback

By Sumner Welles

Objectives Remain The Same

THE POLITICAL reverses which the Soviet government has suffered in Europe must have forced the Politburo to reappraise some of the assumptions on which its policy is based.

Recent developments in Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Finland have provided an added incentive to resistance against the Communists throughout Europe. They have lessened that fatalistic awe of Russia which has so often paralyzed the Western foreign offices. While they may tempt the Soviet government to greater recalcitrance in Berlin in the hope of regaining prestige, the Kremlin has undoubtedly suffered a material loss of power in its contest against the West.

The Soviet government has assumed that it could impose upon the peoples of the satellite states a discipline as rigid as that imposed upon the Russians themselves. The fallacy of this assumption has been dramatically shown up in Yugoslavia and in Finland. The Politburo has underestimated the power of nationalism in the countries it has thought to dominate. It has failed to recognize the strength of a patriotism that has been forged in the millennial struggles against alien oppression.

TITO is less Marxist than Stalin. But in his dual role as head of the Yugoslav Communist Party and as Moscow's proconsul, Tito found himself up against one of the toughest specimens of the human race—the Serb. To a Yugoslav peasant a communal system that would take from him the little farm on which his family has lived for uncounted generations is anathema. Had Tito persisted in carrying out Moscow's orders to force agricultural collectivism upon Yugoslavia he would now face a nation-wide revolt.

The results of the elections in Finland were no surprise to those who have had the opportunity of appreciating the measure of the devotion of the Finns to their country and to their liberties. Neither such Soviet fulminations as those heard last month, when the Finnish Parliament ousted Yrjo Leino, the Communist Minister of the Interior, and thus prevented the Communists from rigging the elections, nor such Soviet blandishments as the remission of part of Finland's reparations just before the elections, had the slightest effect upon the voters. The Communists and the fellow travelers were routed. The Soviet assumption that the Finns can be molded in the Communist image has been disproved.

MOLOTOV and his majority in the Politburo have based all of their strategy on the assumptio that before the end of 1948 the United States would be crippled by an economic collapse. They now see American production indexes at an all-time high and employment figures that are unprecendented. Pravda, the Communist Party organ, has already found it expedient to indicate the alibi the party spokesmen should present. Harry Pollitt, Secretary General of the British Communists, used it when he told the Welsh miners the other day that the United States is still facing the "greatest depression ever known," but that Wall Street and the warmongers have succeeded in delaying it until next year.

Yet some of us are deluding ourselves if we think that because many of its assumptions have been exploded the Politburo will now change its policy. The objectives will remain the same. It is the methods that may change.

Tito's ability to resist is limited. Yugoslavia's economy, already chaotic, can quickly be ruined if Moscow decrees the closure of her frontiers. If the Kremlin decides to use force, Soviet armies can readily move in from Romania.

Finland has been deprived of all means for armed resistance. But in her case Moscow may resort to the political tactics so successfully adopted in Czechoslovakia.

IN LAST week's elections the Agrarians became Finland's greatest democratic party. One of their leaders, Dr. Uno Kekkonen, is apparently slated to become the next Prime Minister. I received last week a report from Scandinavia that Kekkonen was in Sweden not long ago secretly urging political leaders there to conclude a military alliance with Russia.

It is significant that the real head of the Finnish Communists, Hertta Kuunisen—daughter of Finland's quisling, O. V. Kuusinen, and wife of the ousted Interior Minister, Leino—who is the Ana Pauker of Finland, announced after the elections that the Communists would support a Prime Minister from the Agrarian Party "if he were the right sort of person." Kekkonen may well be "the right sort of person" to play the part that another supposedly democratic leader played in Czechoslovakia, when Zdenek Fierlinger paved the way for the Communist dictatorship.

There is as yet no evidence that Moscow's recent setbacks will prevent the Kremlin from continuing with its plans for aggressive expansion. The contest between Soviet imperialism and western democracy will not be decided in any near future. It will only be decided in our favor when Moscow becomes convinced that the American people are solidly behind a national policy of unflinching firmness backed by military and economic strength, and that they have a Government capable of carrying it out with consistency and with constructive vision and without those blunders and reversals that have characterized American policy during the last three years.

Baltimore Judge Opens Up White Golf Links to Negroes

A Federal judge yesterday ordered opening of three exclusively white Baltimore public golf courses to Negroes, about the time a police magistrate was holding for grand jury action 21 persons for playing white-Negro mixed doubles on tennis courts in a park, allegedly violating segregation rules.

Judge W. Calvin Chesnut signed an injunction restraining the city from enforcing a park regulation that reserves three golf courses for white players, the Associated Press reported.

The order was issued on a complaint against the city by Charles E. Law, a Negro golfer. Judge Chesnut ruled June 18 that Negroes are entitled to play golf on all four of the municipal courses. He held tha facilities at the Carroll Park course for Negroes are not "substantially equal" to those for white golfers at the other three courses.

The injunction left room for either party to apply for change or enlargement of the order.

Carried Off Courts

Meanwhile the 21 Negroes and whites, arrested Sunday, were held for the grand jury on charges of breaking the segregation regulations and disorderly conduct.

Police had to carry most of them to patrol wagons when they broke up the outing yesterday.

Fourteen of those arrested were released without having to put up bail on charges of violating the park rules. Three were held in $250 bail on charges of disorderly conduct in the park, and four others faced the same charge for demonstrating later in front of a police station.

One of the Negroes originally arrested was dismissed.

The Young Progressives of Maryland said it sponsored yesterday's outing to test the park board's segregation rules. The group is a branch of Henry A. Wallace's Third Party.

Park officials said they informed the whites who obtained permits for use of the courts that no mixed matches would be allowed. Capt. Gordon Gaeng of the park police was on hand when play started.

Gaeng said he twice ordered the matches broken up and when he got no response he called city police. A score of the players plopped themselves down on the courts when the regulars arrived and refused to move.

Police carried most of them bodily to patrol wagons. More than 500 spectators hurled taunts at the officers and later staged a demonstration outside police headquarters.

Police booked seven of those arrested on disorderly conduct charges as well as for refusal to obey park police. Thirteen of those booked are Negroes and seven are women.

Arrests Condemned

The arrests were "condemned" by Harold Buchman, State director of the Progressive Party, and Dr. John E. T. Camper, party co-chairman and candidate for the House of Representatives. "The arrests were a flagrant violation of the constitutional rights of these well-mannered, orderly players," the declared.

Stanley Askin, director of the Young Progressives and one of those arrested, declared the group refuses to "recognize any color line."

The State central committee of Maryland Progressive Party adopted a resolution stating "the forcible expulsion is a graphic example of the extent to which both major parties continue their policies of segregation."

The resolution maintained "the arrest of these youngsters was unsupported by any law or rule."

New Car Sales In June Reach 1948 Low Here

By S. Oliver Goodman

Reflecting shutdowns last month for various periods by major auto makers, Washington new car registrations slumped sharply in June as compared with the same month last year.

New car sales last month totaled an even 1600, according to the Washington Automotive Trade Association. This was the lowest level of the year and compared with 2210 in the same 1947 month.

However, for the first six months this year, new car sales numbered 14,213 as compared with 13,060 in the corresponding 1947 period.

Comparative monthly figures for new car registrations in Washington follow:

January	2346	1888
February	1973	1425
March	3151	2766
April	2770	2463
May	2373	2308
June	1600	2210

REPERCUSSION: The Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Co. of Detroit is reported considering a plant in Pittsburgh because of the changeover in the steel industry's pricing system. The firm, which makes auto parts also, is attempting to line up plant space and to establish sources of supply in Pittsburgh. Important segments of the steel industry are revising their pricing policy from the base-point system to an F.O.B. mill basis.

SAVINGS RATE: Even though the national over-all total of savings is rising, the rate of savings is falling. It is now about back to the prewar rate of 4 per cent. At that rate 8½ billion dollars will be added to liquid savings this year. Liquid savings include accounts in savings associations, saving banks and the Postal Savings System, time deposits in commercial banks and trust companies and the cash value of life insurance policies and United States bonds. Before the war, Americans added an average of $3.97 out of each $100 of personal income to their liquid savings investments annually. This rose to the high point of $13.50 in 1944, when there was little to buy. It dropped to $4.57 last year.

FORD ANALYSIS: Under the leadership of Henry Ford 2d, grandson of the founder, another innovation has taken place at Ford Motor Co. The magazine, Purchasing, has been allowed to publicize Ford purchasing methods. The result is a 712-page issue of Purchasing, devoted entirely to an analysis of the how and what of one of the world's most extraordinary and complex purchasing projects. For the past 10 months, editors of the magazine "have literally been living in headquarters at Dearborn and Ford branch plants," according to Editor Stuart F. Heinritz.

ODD LOTS: Westinghouse Electric Corp. stockholders approved an increase in authorized indebtedness to 150 million dollars from the previous 50 million, thus clearing the way for a proposed issue of 80 million dollars of new long-term convertible debentures . . . Diamond Alkali Co. will borrow 10 million dollars from Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. at 3 per cent interest . . . Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath in current market letter describes Otis Elevator Co. common stock as an attractive investment . . . Steel production, still hampered by stoppage of coal in captive mines, increased slightly to 90.8 per cent of capacity this week compared with 90.3 per cent last week . . . Willys-Overland "jeepster" or sport phaeton will be introduced next week and is designed to "meet the demands of the youth of America" . . . National Steel Corp. and subsidiaries also have dropped the so-called basing point system.

GROCERY SALES: The Commerce Department reported that sales of retail grocers totaled $2,348,000,000 in May. That is a gain of 4 per cent over April and 9 per cent over May of last year. Chain store grocery sales accounted for 844 million dollars, or 36 per cent of the May total. They went up 7 per cent from April and 13 per cent from May of last year.

New Record Forecast In Furniture Sales

Chicago, July 12 (AP).—Retail furniture sales in 1948 will set a new record, the president of the American Furniture Mart said today.

Col. Lawrence H. Whiting said consumer purchases of furniture would top the record-breaking 1947 total.

He based his prediction on the erection of one million new homes and apartments and replacement needs in existing homes. Other factors, said Colonel Whiting, are the rising marriage and birth rates.

Buyers checked in at a fast pace Monday. Colonel Whiting estimated an attendance of 21,000 by the time the market closes Saturday. He expected 8400 registrations this week. The surge is an upswing from last week's pace, which got off to a slow start because of the holiday weekend and fears of a price break.

Maryland Tobacco

Upper Marlboro, Md., July 12 (AP).—Prices were fairly steady as the tenth week of sales got under way today on southern Maryland's auction tobacco markets.

The United States Department of Agriculture and the State Department of Markets said that prices for most cigarette-type grades were unchanged, while normal fluctuations were shown for some lower grades.

Sales volume was fairly light. Heavy-crop offerings declined while seconds increased. The percentage of nondescript was the smallest of the year, the agencies said.

Some of today's grade averages:

Heavy crop—Fine cherry-red, $62, unchanged; good cherry-red, $59, down $1; low red, $19.50, up $2.50; low green, $11, down 25 cents.

Tips—Fair red, $18, unchanged; fair green, $12, down 50 cents.

Thin crop—Fine cherry-red, $63, unchanged; good cherry-red, $62, unchanged; fair cherry-red, $61, unchanged.

Seconds—Fine cherry-red, $61, unchanged; fair red, $37, unchanged; fair green, $17, up $1.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 12 (AP).—Corn bounded back above the $2 mark in grain futures dealings on the Board of Trade today. The July contract ran up sharply, aided by buying from individuals who had gone short on this grain last week.

Oats were also firmed in a moderately active trade. Both cash corn and cash oats met a good demand, a factor helping the advance in futures. With hogs selling at or near record levels throughout the Midwest, traders saw a larger farm consumption of feed grains.

Wheat did not do much. The bread grain opened lower, rallied above the previous close, and then finished mixed on minor price changes.

Final prices on wheat were ⅝ lower to ⅝ higher, July 2.29@2.28⅜; corn was ¼-4½ higher, July 2.03⅝@2.03½; oats were ⅜-¾ higher, July 90½@90⅝, and soybeans were 3½-8½ lower, July 3.96½. December rye ended at 1.93½.

One on the Aisle—

'Oklahoma!' Still Is Very Much O.K.

By Richard L. Coe

BEAUTIFUL, ENCHANTING "OKLAHOMA!" last night raised the curtain on the National's final three weeks of living theater before the historic E street site descends to the world of shadows.

The cast is a good one; the long-lived musical remains the melange of tuneful music, sunshine settings and youthful verve that has made this a treasured memory for all who've seen it.

Among the many in last night's lobby crowd were some who'd seen it eight and ten times, some who'd never seen it and a visitor from London who'd been unable to squeeze into the old Drury Lane, where the American company is in its second year.

"Oklahoma!" is, of course, the sort of show that attracts a cult. Those bitten by the "Oklahoma!" bug come to resemble, say, specialists in the obscure art of Japanese flower design. They grow to look for certain things, expressions that go with particular words of Oscar Hammerstein's cheerful book, inflections of voice in the melodic lines of Richard Rodgers' zestful score, exits, entrances and, even, the intricacies of Russell Bennett's resourceful orchestrations. And so the "Oklahoma!" specialist finds himself wishing for this or that little gem from performances of memory.

Edith Gresham's Grand Eller

All this couldn't be if "Oklahoma!" were less than a remarkable musical. Certainly one attribute that stands out after one has relished it many times is the dance direction of Agnes de Mille. The dances are very well done by the present company, with Alicia Krug as a splendid "ballet Laurey"; Jane Fischer as "The Girl Who Falls Down"; Jean Genebach as the "Child in Pigtails," and all the people of the ensemble dance with good-natured precision.

The general ensemble work as a whole, too, has the sparkle the spirit demands and you need have no fears about sloppy costuming and worn sets after the long New York run which preceded this company's present tour. Things are very much up to scratch and the yellows and blues which made Lemuel Ayers' settings such a high point still have their lustrous brilliance.

Lapsing back into the obscure specialist role, I'd say that Wilton Clary's Curly is as good as any I've seen, if not better, and certainly Edith Gresham's Aunt Eller is tops in likable robustness for that determined lady, a thoroughly authoritative Eller. In Carolyn Tanner's Laurey the specialist may yearn for the perfection of Evelyn Wycoff and her truly fine singing and Hy Anzel is both too tall and too young for the ideal Ali Hakim. Jacqueline Daniels, though her accent's a bit too Flatbush ave. for Ado Annie, is still good enough and while James Parnell's Will Parker doesn't dance he's friendly-like.

Such, you see, is what happens when the true idolator of "Oklahoma!" opens up. Memory has given one's initial impressions a razor sharpness; deviations tend to seem overblown, even "wrong." But how would one feel if this were the first performance of "Oklahoma!"? Wouldn't, then, the spirited performance of this earthy (its humor is certainly that), sentimental classic be enough? I rather think it would and that's what the National is offering as its final illustration of living theater.

After seeing it umpteen times, I still think "Oklahoma!" is the grandest, happiest musical ever.

ALEXANDRIA'S Little Theater will be offering its friends something unique Friday and Saturday nights. . . This is a play by one of its own members based on his experiences as an AMG officer in Trieste in the latter days of the war. . . . Carl Eardley is the author; he calls his drama "The Age of Violence." . . . The play is based on his Trieste experiences and was not written out of the urge just to write a play. . . Eardley says that his experience with the Yugoslavs and, the Communists made him feel he had to tell what the people really are like. . . The play form was handiest for him and the Little Theater thereby finds itself with a highly topical script. . . . "The Age of Violence" will be given at the Recreation Center, Carmeron and Harvard sts., Alexandria Friday and Saturday nights at 8:30.

THE TRANS-LUX again is convention-conscious. . . . Its showings of the Republicans in action and the Messrs. Louis and Walcott in inaction pleased the newsreel folk so that again there's a set in the lobby looking in on Philadelphia.

CURLY AND LAUREY: Wilton Clary and Carolyn Tanner are playing the youthful, reluctant lovers in the Theater Guild's "Oklahoma!" which returned to the stage of the National last night for a three-week visit. The infectious musical remains its enchanting self

Williams, Newhouser Out of All-Star Game; Ike Williams Stops Beau Jack in 6th Round

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

ST. LOUIS, July 12.—If the American League blows tomorrow's All-Star game, well, you'd have to say it serves 'em right. They're asking for it with what has been a selfish manipulation of their pitchers, in contrast to the National League, which is leveling for this one.

POVICH

The American League is coming up to the game with the sorriest pitching situation in the 15-year history of the contest. In their frenzy to get one more ball game out of their pitching aces before the All-Star game, American League clubs used up seven of Bucky Harris' eight All-Star pitchers in league games yesterday.

The only pitcher Harris can call upon who will have had as much as two days' rest is his own Yankee right-hander, Vic Raschi. All of the others were worked yesterday by the various clubs with a high disregard for the All-Star game.

Leo Durocher, the National League All-Star manager, got a better break from his colleagues. None of his six pitchers worked on Sunday. In Ralph Branca, his own Dodger ace, he can shoot a man at the American League who has had seven days' rest. Ewell Blackwell of the Reds hasn't pitched since Thursday. His whole All-Star staff is well-rested.

AS IF HARRIS wasn't in enough of a spot already with the "withdrawal" of Bob Feller and the overworked state of his American League staff, he got another rude break today when Hal Newhouser asked out. In contrast to Feller's run-out, however, Newhouser has a more solid excuse.

At least Newhouser is going to show up for the game. What he has done is to ask Bucky not to pitch him; that he'd be a liability. He has had bursitis for a month. He says his arm is sore "and hurting me right now." He can point to the fact that on Sunday his arm was under heavy pressure. Rain twice stopped the Tigers' game, and the upshot was that Newhouser had to warm up three times during the afternoon.

Any complaint by Newhouser has to be dealt with generously. He has never ducked out before and last year he volunteered to pitch despite only one day's rest, and did a great job of it.

OWNER BILL VEECK and Manager Lou Bordreau of the Cleveland Indians stepped up today to take the rap for Bob Feller's "withdrawal" from the American League All-Stars.

They're attempting to absolve Feller, who has been getting a bad press since the episode, with a statement that "It's all our fault." According to Veeck and Boudreau, Feller withdrew under their orders and it wasn't his own idea.

Very frankly, the Cleveland club officials admit that they are putting the Indian's pennant chances ahead of the All-Star game and declare they "have a duty by the Cleveland fans who want the pennant . . . our first obligation is to them."

Veeck was hotly criticized in the meeting of the American League Club owners today. They declared such actions as his would "scuttle" the All-Star game. In the making is a hard rule that any player selected on the All-Star team must play unless he can prove injury.

BACK IN 1935, the National League learned its lesson after keeping its best pitchers out of the All-Star game. Manager Frankie Frisch got a severe calling-down from President Ford Frick after his National Leaguers took a 4-1 beating.

In that game, Frisch started a second-stringer named Bill Walker and Jimmy Foxx socked him for a two-run homer in the first inning and the American League went on to win.

Frick was hopping mad because Frisch had no less than Carl Hubbell, Lon Warneke and Larry French on the bench and didn't want to offend his rival managers by pitching 'em.

THE ALL-STAR game doesn't necessarily produce the best baseball—like in 1938 at Cincinnati when Leo Durocher laid down a bunt and circled the bases on it.

Both Lou Gehrig at first base and Jimmy Foxx at third raced in to field the bunt and Foxx got to the ball first. He cut loose a perfect throw to first base, but Charley Gehringer, the man who supposedly never made a mistake, forgot to cover the bag. Out in right field Joe DiMaggio finally tracked the ball down and whipped a long throw to third in an attempt to flag down Durocher.

The ball got away and ended up in the National League dugout, at the feet of Casey Stengel.

Durocher scurried all the way home, and Stengel nonchalantly picked up the ball at the end of its travels and dropped it into the dugout water bucket.

"There's a ball," he said, "that's too hot too handle."

Champion Asks Bout Be Halted

By Orlo Robertson
Associated Press Sports Writer

Philadelphia, July 12.—Ike Williams retained his lightweight boxing crown tonight, pounding Challenger Beau Jack into submission in the sixth round of a scheduled 15-round bout at Shibe Park. Each fighter weighed 134 pounds.

Swarming all over his opponent as the bell started the sixth round, Williams was awarded the verdict via a technical knockout when Referee Charley Daggert stepped in and stopped the bout after 33 seconds.

Jack, his face a bloody mass, stood in a neutral corner helpless against the rights and lefts that the sharp punching champion threw at him from every angle.

Referee Finally Halts It

Once Williams looked at Daggert and asked the official to stop the bout. But the referee looked at Jack and nodded for Williams to go ahead. Ike swung three or more rapid fire belts before Daggert stepped in and halted the carnage.

It was the second time Jack had been stopped in 82 fights since coming out of Georgia eight years ago. Tony Janiro was awarded a technical knockout verdict over him in New York's Madison Square Garden February 21, 1947.

For Williams it was the second successful defense of his title in seven weeks and his sixteenth straight victory.

The first real opening came in the closing minute of the fifth round. The champion from Trenton, N. J., swarmed all over the challenger with a series of rights and lefts but Jack, true to his style of fighting, kept right on walking in.

As the bell opened the sixth session, Williams leaped to the attack. A left hook to the face had Beau in trouble. Ike backed Jack in the corner and pounded him with every blow in his repertoire but the Beau refused to go down.

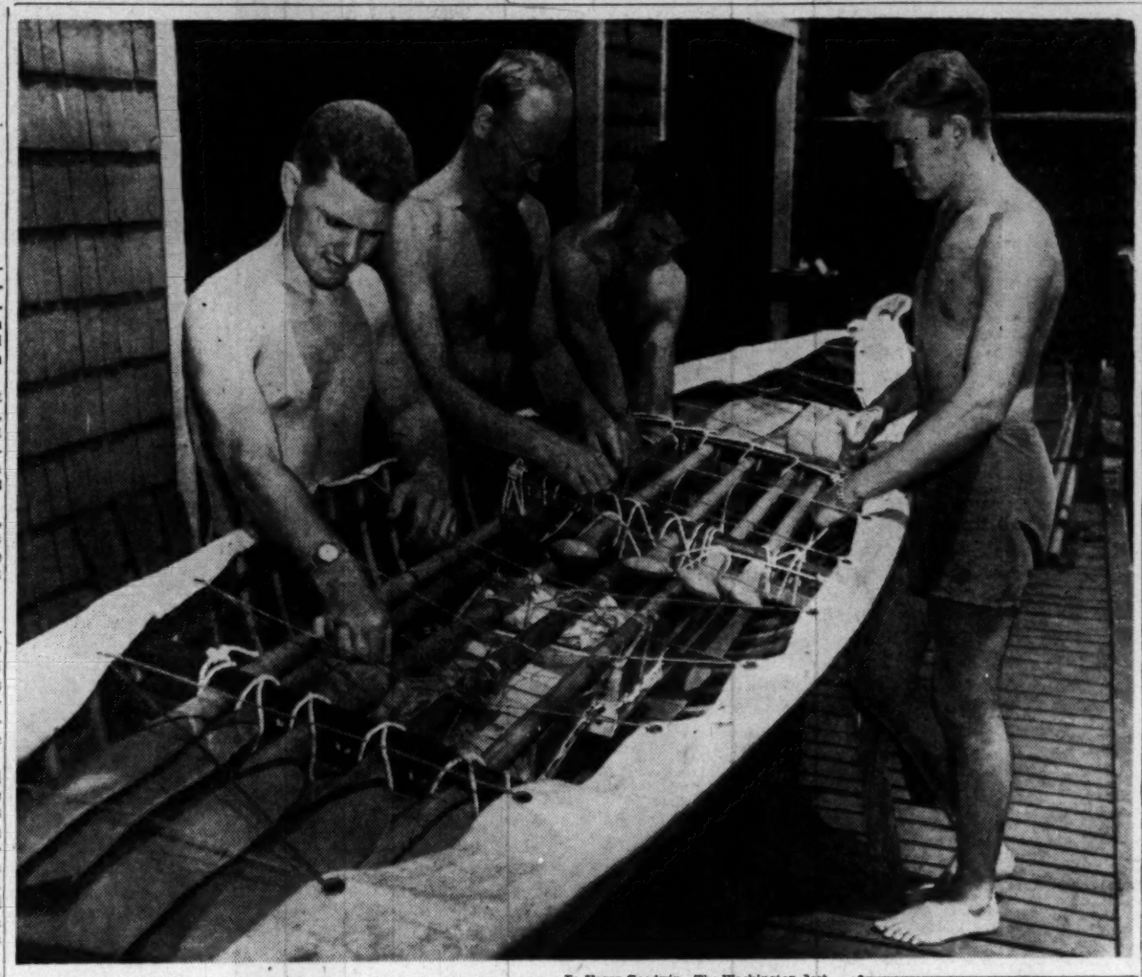
Blood was spurting from Jack's mouth and nose when Daggert decided the challenger had enough.

Bout Even Until TKO

The officials' score cards showed that the fight was even-Stephen until Ike ended it so abruptly. Daggert had given each fighter two rounds and called one even. Judge Frank Knarsborough scored three for the champion and two for Jack of the first five rounds while Judge Harry Lasky saw the first five three for Beau and two for Like.

Williams, meeting a fighter of Jack's style for the first time, had some difficulty stopping the challenger's rushing tactics during the early rounds but once he solved that problem he was complete master.

The crowd was a disappointing 12,952 which contributed to a gross gate of $83,787.



George Kell, DiMaggio Also Hurt

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

St. Louis, July 12.—Instead of the hard-hitting team of American Leaguers he expected to take into the All-Star game tomorrow, Manager Bucky Harris tonight found himself with a club hard hit.

No Ted Williams, no Joe DiMaggio, no Hal Newhouser, no George Kell to throw at the National League All-Stars. Harris, arriving on the scene late today, learned of the grist of the bad news in a rapid succession on developments that riddled the power of his American League club.

From Detroit came the advice that Newhouser, the man Harris planned to start against the National League, was in pain from a sore pitching arm and could not pitch.

Joe Pinch Hitter Only

DiMaggio, his runs-batted-in threat, Harris knew cannot start. He had already consoled himself to merely a pinch-hitting job from his big, banged-up outfielder who is in pain from two sore heels and a swollen knee.

Harris' hope that the .388-hitting Williams could play was blasted late today. The American League batting leader, idle since Thursday with a torn cartilage in his rib, is definitely out.

So is George Kell, the .327-hitting third baseman of the Tigers. Lately recovered from a broken wrist, Kell sprained his ankle three days ago and is out of the lineup.

Henrich, Evers Will Play

Harris acted quickly to draft replacements for his crippled forces. At a sacrifice of hitting power, he is moving the .258-hitting Tommy Henrich of his Yankees into Williams' left field spot. From Detroit he is taking Hoot Evers as a centerfield replacement for DiMaggio. The veteran Ken Keltner moves into Kell's third base spot.

"It isn't the team the fans picked and I'm sorry about that," said Harris, "but it's still a good ball t[illegible], and I don't expect it to lose."

With the defection of Newhouser, following closely on Bob Feller's withdrawal, Harris has announced he will start either of two of his own Yankee pitchers, Vic Raschi or his relief artist, Joe Page.

Indications are that his final selection will be the big right hander

Roach Slaps Out Decision Over Perry

By Frank Wagner
Post Reporter

Lavern Roach of Plainview, Tex., landed enough punches on the face of Aaron Perry, Washington, with whiplash left jabs to earn a unanimous 10-round decision last night at Griffith Stadium.

Roach's decisive and popular victory was hard earned. Perry cut the left eye of the former Golden Gloves champion in the third round. Perry appeared to recover from his early confusion caused by the Texan's sharp left hand blows which drew blood from Perry's nose.

In the sixth round both fighters traded hard blows that left them groggy. Roach was the first to recover and he was clearly in command for the rest of the bout.

Perry made his last desperate counter-attack in the ninth but was obviously too tired to be more than mildly effective.

Both fighters were on the canvas several times but Referee Marty Gallagher ruled "slips."

Cranford Stops Stoll

Jackie Cranford, Washington's blond heavyweight, came to life in the fourth round and knocked out Leo Stoll, Baltimore, in another feature of the four 10-round bouts.

Cranford caught Stoll, a Galento-like performer, with a roundhouse right to the jaw after 1 minute and 12 seconds of the fourth and it was all over.

Stoll, a powerful built but lumbering fellow, hit Cranford solidly a number of times in the first three rounds.

Cranford became sufficiently aroused to fight well only after Stoll punched him coming out of a clinch in the fourth round. Stoll's apology was spurned and 30 seconds later the Baltimorean was knocked sprawling for a count of 10.

Randy Brown of Mount Vernon, N. Y., took a 10-round split decision from Washington's Ken Stribling.

The two played a standard version of the old puncher-boxer theme with Brown's clever, fast boxing earning him the nod from Referee Eddie LaFond and Judge Dr. Jim Trigg. Judge Bob Kilmartin ruled it a draw.

In the opening four-round preliminary Kid Clement of Norwalk, Conn., won a unanimous decision over Ben Harrison of Washington.

The bouts on the "Carnival of Headliners" card attracted 3997 fans who paid $12,145.52, gross.

Jimmy Cooper's scheduled 10-rounder with Joe Kay of England was a gory affair which ended in a "TKO" for Cooper in 2:52 minutes of the eighth round.

The little Washington Negro opened severe cuts over the Englishman's eyes which left him almost helples in the final rounds. Kay's lumbering, lunging attack had Cooper a bit confused for a time but his class and superior form enabled him to win.

Perry's Purse Held

Aaron Perry's purse was held up after his losing fight to Laverne Roach at Griffith Stadium last night.

Mrs. Joe Turner, promoter of the show, said that Perry owes the United States Government $20,181.01 in unpaid income tax. A few years ago Perry was the top drawing card here, figuring in some fights that drew around $50,000.

Perry's share of last night's gate was $1526.97.

Chandler, Players Will See That Stars Play in Big Game

St. Louis, July 12 (AP).—After some "straight talk" from Commissioner A. B. Chandler, the major league players today moved to take into their own hands the problem of major leaguers refusing to appear in the All-Star game.

"I am very much concerned over the failure of clubowners and players to take seriously the All-Star game," Chandler said after a meeting of the executive council.

"We have had some straight talk," he added. "I assume that in the future, every player who is voted on the All-Star team will show up. We have no plan to punish anybody, but we will take whatever steps are necessary."

Chandler's statement followed publication of a letter from Cincinnati players to their National League player representative, Dixie Walker, urging penalties against the unwilling athletes.

The Reds wrote in part:

"Only injury, serious enough to keep a player out of his own team's lineup will be reason enough to be excused. A penalty, in some form, against a player who refuses to participate, after having been selected (by the fans) has been suggested."

Walker, who appeared with Freddie Hutchinson, the American League player representative, at the joint meeting of both leagues and the executive council session, suggested a definite penalty of a fine of three days, pay for the unwilling stars.

"It is not my idea," said Walker, "but it was given me by the players' committee."

Walker said he knew the Cincinnati letter reflected the opinion of other clubs in the National League. He will pool the other seven player representatives in his league to discuss the situation and agree on some kind of a penalty.

Washington's Junior Stars Romp, 12 to 2

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Brooklyn, July 12.—Washington's junior All-Stars, sponsored by The Washington Post, proved their worldliness tonight before 12,427 Ebbets Field customers as they routed the Brooklyn Eagle All-Stars, 12-2, in the first game of the "Brooklyn Against the World" series.

Eastern High's three entries, Pitcher Eddie Kline, Catcher Sal Degiorgi and First Baseman Dave Zatz, led the 15-hit Washington attack, collecting seven blows between them.

Kline turned in a fine six-hit pitching job, and drove in one more run than his entire opposition could muster. Two of his runs batted in came in the four-run Washington ninth when he tripled in Billy Jones and DiGiorgi.

Zatz cracked out four successive singles after fanning his first time up. And DiGiogi garnered the longest hit of the game, a 343-foot double off the leftfield boards to drive in two runs in the fourth.

Spills Mark Feature Race At Laurel

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

A three horse mishap and a disqualification in the feature got getaway week off to a slightly ragged start last night at Laurel raceway.

The accident occurred in the sixth and, fortunately, none of the drivers and horses involved was hurt. It did injure some bankrolls to the extent of $12,682 when the race turned into a chalkwalk for Dottie's Cardinal who returned a $5 mutuel.

Going into the backstretch for the first time, Miss Belle Counsel got her hoof caught in the wheel of Earl Aubrey's sulky. Miss Belle Counsel, driven by Harry Goodhart, went down hard and took Earl Aubrey's with Tom Walters in the drivers seat with her. Charlie Knierim, behind Bob Watts, had to pull up sharply.

The 8500 persons on hand alternately booed and cheered as loudly as thrice that number when Tom Wingate's First Counsel had his number pulled down in the featured mile and a sixteenth pace.

After the stewards deliberated, the favorite, Cadet Hanover, was declared the winner, Donald G., second, and Silver Meteor third.

Real victim in the race was Doreen Hanover, 8.20 to 1 shot. Making a thrilling finish, the mare was going to the leader on the last turn when First Counsel interfered with her, causing her to break gait.

Then Wingate cut over on Donald G in the stretch. After the race, the judges fined Wingate, leading driver with nine wins, $100.

One sane note prevailed on the slightly screwy card. In the eighth, 70-year-old Frank Hanna made it four in a row with 19-year-old Hanover Express. This time the two oldsters teamed for a new track record for 6½ furlongs, 1:43 1/5.

The mutual betting a thumping $189,618.

Women Set Track Marks

Providence, R. I., July 12 (AP).—Two National A. A. U. records were bettered and a new American half-mile medley relay mark was set as 60-odd women athletes competed for Olympic team berths in the final track and field tryouts tonight at Brown University Stadium.

Play Starts In Md. Open

The Chevy Chase Club will be the scene of the Maryland State open golf championship tournament today with 125 of the best golfers in the District, Maryland and Virginia taking part.

The field will play 36 holes in the one-day affair, with the first men off the tee at 7:42 a. m. Despite this early-bird starting time play probably will continue until 8 p. m. before the last golfer finishes.

Defending champion in the open is 50-year-old Spencer Overton, who won last year's tournament on his home course, Rolling Road in Baltimore, with a three-under-par 137.

But Overton will have a hard time repeating today. Included in the field are such top-flight area professionals as Roger Peacock, Al Houghton, Al Jamison, Andy Gibson, Harold Oatman, Ralph Beach, Mel Shorey, George Diffenbaugh, Charles Betschler, Caroll MacMaster, Charles Bassler, Jack Isaacs, Wiffy Cox, Walter Romans and Harry Griesmer.

Also Gene Larkin, Clagett Stevens, Leo Walper, Freddie McLeod, John O'Donnell, Johnny Bass, Hugh McLellen and Bill Clarke.

Firemen Get Hot Against Silver Hill

Hal Krug's home run in the eighth inning with two teammates on base was the big blow in a 17-hit attack that enabled the D. C. Fire Department to rout Silver Hill, 17-5, in an East Recreation League game yesterday on the Ellipse.

Nelson Still Packs a Punch

Chicago, July 12 (AP).—Battling Nelson is still a tough man to count out.

The Bat, world famous lightweight boxing champion, now 66, walked out of Cook County Hospital today after a five-day bout with pneumonia.

Between 1896 and 1917 when he finally hung up his gloves, Nelson battled and beat them all—Young Corbett, Terry McGovern, Jimmy Britt and Joe Gans.

The Bat knocked out the brilliant Gans twice, the second time for the lightweight championship of the world in 1908. He lost the title to Ad Wolgast in a bloody 40-round battle in 1910.

Mrs. Stokes Shares Medal

Baltimore, July 12 (AP).—Jeanette Myers of Baltimore and Mrs. Walter Stokes of Washington carded five-over-par 81's today to share the medal in the qualifying round of the Maryland State Women's Golf championship at Five Farms.

Altogether, 13 Baltimoreans placed in the top flight of 16 for match play, which starts tomorrow. Mrs. Lloyd G. Pray of Columbia Country Club, Washington, and Mrs. Adele Lewis of Annapolis are the other out-of-towners.

Tony's Find 2d in Nine Horse Field

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre De Grace, Md., July 12.—The Bel Air Purse was won by Going Airy in the colors of E. K. Bryson, whose family own controlling interest in the nearby Bel Air track. To make the coincidence more binding, Going Airy was ridden by Apprentice Harold Segraves, a Bel Air (Md.) boy.

Going Airy, operating as a $4.40 favorite, led all the way and finished under pressure and a half length in advance of H. S. Horkheimer's Tony's Find. Two lengths farther back came Mrs. Elmer Truman's Sendoff to be third in the field of nine.

Excellent Time

A crowd of 7500 turned out for the final Monday program of the 11-day meeting at this point. The customers saw Going Airy turn in the excellent (for Havre de Grace) time of 1.10 4/5, on three-fifths over the track record set by Calumet Farm's Pep Well. Naturally, the track was fast.

Scholarship attempted to run with Going Airy in the early stages but the Brysonite shook off the son of Rhodes Scholar. Tony's Find, well placed while racing wide, rallied in the stretch and was wearing down the winner in the concluding strides. Sendoff, after being shuffled back early, also rallied enough to take the show money.

The victory was the second of the day for the Bryson colors and Apprentice Segraves.

Phidias Wins First

Phidias, under an energetic ride, scored a two and a half length victory in the six furlong opener.

Loutey was backed down to 4 to 5 odds but the 4-year-old gelding faded in the stretch and held on to save the show award only. Love My Gal at 23 to 1 odds, closed swiftly to defeat the heavy choice by a half length for second.

The winner was rated off the early pace set by Loutey moving up sharply on the turn for home. Phidias paid $12.60 for $2 straight and was timed in 1.12 4-5 over the fast racing strip.

VA Wins, 10-2

Veterans' Administration downed Quarters I, 10-2, in a loosely played North Recreation League contest yesterday on the Ellipse. Tim Shank scattered eight Quarters I hits to take the decision as the winners committed five errors and the losers seven.

Williams, Newhouser Out of Game

Raschi, owner of a 10-3 record this season, and the only one of Harris' pitchers who has had as many as two days' rest.

Page also may take a three-inning turn, but Harris' third pitcher is uncertain. It could be Cleveland's Bob Lemon, Washington's Walter Masterson or Boston's Joe Dobson.

In contrast to the American League plight is the healthy state of Leo Durocher's National League club, and the 2-1 odds against the National Leaguers have dwindled to 7 to 5.

Durocher has announced that his starting pitcher will be Ralph Branca of Brooklyn, or Cincinnati's fast-balling Ewell Blackwell. Durocher has his choice of six well-rested pitchers.

The game has been a sellout for weeks despite St. Louis' reputation as a poor baseball town, and scalpers tonight were demanding and getting as much as $25 for the $1.20 general admission tickets. More than 34,000 will be in the stands at 2:30 (Washington time).

The National League will be trying to recoup a share of All-Star prestige. To date, the American has won 10 of the 14 games and there has been no National League victory since 1944.

Out the window, however, went the promised Ted Williams-Stan Musial batting duel. Once hailed as a special sideshow, the hitting contest between the .403-hitting Musial of the Cardinals and the .388-hitting Williams won't develop.

National Capital Post Wins This Ball Game

Tommy Groht struck out 11 men and walked 1 as his National Capital Post baseball team defeated Equality Walter Reed, 18-3, Sunday, in the first game of the VFW League playoffs on the Ellipse. Groht also had a big hand in his team's attack as he blasted a triple with two men on base in the fifth inning.

This game was erroneously reported to have been won by Equality Walter Reed in Monday's paper. The Washington Post regrets its error.

Boyd Stays On Job Despite Delay in Pay

James Boyd accepted yesterday his third interim appointment as director of the Bureau of Mines although he hasn't been paid for almost seven months.

The Senate has failed to confirm his selection.

Boyd told reporters he will stay on despite "an inclination to get out and support my family." He has a wife and four small sons.

Boyd, former dean of the Colorado School of Mines, said members of Congress, representatives of the mining industry and associates of the Bureau of Mines urged him to stay. It is a $10,000-a-year job.

Boyd's appointment drew the opposition of John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers president.

The present appointment is effective until 30 days after Congress resumes.

If Boyd is confirmed, he can collect a salary back to June 20. For the unpaid six months before that date, special legislation would be required to repay him.

Supersonic Test Pilot Is Winner Of Chanute Award

Herbert H. Hoover, 36-year-old supersonic test pilot, was awarded the Octave Chanute Award for 1948 yesterday for flight research at the speeds of sound.

The Chanute Award was made by the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences at its annual summer meeting in Los Angeles.

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN 'BEAT THE MARKET'

Everybody knows our huge nationally famous "Stock Exchange" board that shows the fluctuating prices on regular brands. It shows PAR (reg. price), BID (low elsewhere) and SELLING (at Pearson's.) Three times a day they change—at 10, 2 and 6.

Now we've added a sensational improvement to let CASE-LOT purchasers buy their beverages just like they buy their other stocks and bonds . . . Even though they're too busy to drop in 3 times a day to check prices.

Here's how simple and wonderful it is:

Just come in and give us your order based on THE PRICE YOU WANT TO PAY, stating quantity and brand.

YOU CAN BID ABSOLUTELY ANY PRICE YOU WISH!!!

If at any time within the next WEEK, our 3-TIMES-A-DAY PRICE FLUCTUATIONS equal the price you offered—the order is filled! You may pick it up whenever you wish. Simple! You bet it is—just like buying stocks from your broker! Best of all, you can't lose—you get it at YOUR price or not at all!

Wonderful? You bet it is—and only possible at Plain Old Pearson's "Stock Exchange"!

Canada to Supply Most British Food

London, July 12 (U.P.).—Food Minister John Strachey said today only a few of Britain's European Recovery Plan dollars will flow back to the United States in payment for food. Most of Britain's groceries will be bought in Canada, he said.

Strachey told Commons Britain may buy a few items, such as cheese, from the United States, but that would be done only to fill the gap in supplies available in Canada. Britain also has negotiated 37 bilateral food pacts with European, South American and Asiatic countries, he said.

The nation's decision not to do any more business in dollars than absolutely necessary has eliminated the hope of a sudden resumption of food purchases from the United States, he said.

Strachey promised bread rationing will be abolished "at the earliest possible moment."

Strachey said the government is spending 470 million pounds sterling ($1,880,000,000) a year on subsidies to keep the nation's food prices down.

Chinese Reds Capture Key Han River Port

Shanghai, China, July 12 (U.P.).—Strong Chinese Communist forces have captured a key Han River port in north Hupeh Province and stormed into the outskirts of another today in a new major offensive in Central China.

Progovernment reports admitted that what had been believed to be a Communist "diversionary attack" in Hupeh has turned into a large-scale offensive.

Sixty thousand Communists were said to have captured Fancheng, on the Han River, and then crossed the river to attack Siangyang, 160 miles northwest of Hankow. The twin cities control vital rice supplies from Western China to Hankow.

The reports admitted that government forces had lost 1200 men in a three-day battle for Fancheng and claimed the Chinese air force and troops had inflicted 8000 casualties on the Communists.

On the East Honan front, the government claimed a second major victory within a week. Communist Gen. Chen Yi's tenth army was reported routed while attempting to escape into western Shantung Province.

Auto Parker Gets Warning

A stranger in town, who could not remember where he had parked his car, was given a warning for a traffic violation last week.

He was Frank H. Batchelor, 28, of Rochester, Pa., who was given a ticket for parking in a "no parking from 4 to 6 p. m." zone in the Fourth Precinct. Police said he parked the car before the time restriction went on, but was unable to find and move it before 4 o'clock rolled around.

Batchelor was one of 102 motorists for whom traffic tickets were adjusted last week, as compared to 95 for whom tickets were fixed the week before, police said.

Tickets for four motorists were cancelled because of diplomatic immunity. They were:

Dermott O'Hagan, Argentine Embassy, parking in a "no parking at any time" zone; Ashraf Gourbal, Egyptian Embassy, parking in a loading zone; Jean de Carahan, French Embassy, parking in a "no parking from 7 a. m. to 6:30 p. m." zone, and Rene Lehmann, French Embassy, parking in a "no parking from 4 to 6 p. m." zone.

Judge Arrests Himself

The Federal Diary

3 of Four Top Posts In Labor Now Vacant; Gibson Seen Resigning

LABOR: Three of the four top posts in this department are vacant. They are: the Secretary, Undersecretary, and one Assistant Secretary. The Acting Secretary is John W. Gibson, an Assistant Secretary. And now Gibson is reliably reported to be ready to resign. The department will have to dip down into the ranks and make a bureau chief its acting Secretary if Gibson's resignation is accepted before a Secretary is appointed.

PS: And they said that the department was a "shell" when Frances Perkins was Secretary.

STORY: The Republicans and Democrats worked as a team to put the financial bite on Henry Wallace's third party. This is the story:

The Democratic and Republican National Committees agreed to split the cost of decorations at their respective conventions in Philadelphia. The bill came to $20,000 so they put up $10,000 each.

Henry Wallace then came along and asked that he be given the use of the decorations for his convention. Officials of the two major parties went into a huddle and both groups informed Wallace that he could use them if he would share the cost. Each explained they had put up $10,000.

Henry promptly sent in his check for $10,000 which the Republicans and Democrats gleefully accepted and divided. So, the decorations will cost the two major parties $5000 each, and Henry's party a cool $10,000.

It's apparent that Henry needs a manager who knows fourth-grade arithmetic. But Henry's Communist followers are sure to denounce his boner as a capitalistic plot.

GUN FACTORY: Rear Admiral Frank G. Fahrion will take over as commandant of the big Naval Gun Factory here on July 20.

Meanwhile, the factory is planning to expand its civilian staff. Several hundred per diem employes will be hired over the next few months. The factory has enough work backed up to keep about 2000 additional employes busy. However, it has funds for only a modest expansion.

The Naval Ordnance Factory in Alexandria, Va., formerly called the torpedo plant, also is to be expanded.

AGRICULTURE will hire several thousand additional employes in its field offices.

Soil Conservation Service will hire the bulk of the new workers. Congress gave it six million dollars more than it had a year ago for salaries. This sum is enough to hire at least 2000 new employes.

Farmers Home Administration was given one million dollars additional for salaries, enough to hire from 300 to 400 new employes.

Both agencies are pressing Civil Service to give competitive exams through which new employes are to be recruited. The SCS exam will be for soil conservationists and soil scientists. The FHA test will be for farm management supervisors. Both tests will be kept open for several months.

Meantime, Rural Electrification Administration is adding a few new employes here. It, too, will hire mainly in its field offices. Farm Credit, which received a budget cut, is making a few lay-offs.

AFGE: The District Department of the American Federation of Government Employes will meet in a special session tomorrow night in the Commerce Auditorium. Plans will be discussed for a city-wide organization drive. Federal workers are invited to attend.

WHITE HOUSE: The President yesterday made plans on the q.t. to attend the Democratic convention in Philadelphia. He expects to be nominated late tomorrow. The President, his wife, and daughter, Margaret, plan to arrive in Philadelphia by train while the balloting is in progress. He plans to go to the convention floor to accept the nomination in person. And in doing so, it's a good bet he'll make another slashing attack on Congress.

70-YEAR: The Civil Service Commission has completed its inquiry into charges that several Federal agencies have forced the retirement of 70-year-olds who haven't completed 15 years of service. It concluded that the Library of Congress was the only offender. The report was sent to Donald Dawson, the President's advisor on personnel problems, who suggested the investigation. Incidentally, the library has now changed its rules to permit 70-year-olds to remain on until they serve at least 15 years.

NOTES: Civil Service has ordered increased pay rates for some interns and student trainees in Public Health Service hospitals . . . Charles O. Pratt, who is the GOP nominee for Congress from Virginia's Eighth Congressional District, is a former Agriculture Department attorney and a former member of the AFL's American Federation of Government Employes . . . Harold K. Hill has been promoted to assistant manager of Agriculture's Commodity Credit Corporation . . . Two long-time employes have retired from Interior, E. J. Skidmore and William A. Kearney, both top-ranking employes in the Oil & Gas Division.

New Homes Lag Behind Families

American home builders haven't been able to keep up with the tremendous postwar crop of new families, Commissioner Ewan Clague of the Bureau of Labor Statistics said yesterday.

He told a Washington Building Congress luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel that this year's home building may surpass everything but the all-time 1925 record of 937,000 units—and yet barely keep up with the current crop of new family units.

"Since the war," he declared, "we have actually lost ground in the race with our families. Last year, despite the completion of more than 800,000 new dwelling units, in the greatest building year since 1925, we are about 400,000 short of the net gain in family units."

Years of Building Ahead

This would indicate "many years of building ahead for the United States," he said.

Applications for permits to build privately financed dwellings here totaled about 9500 units during the first five months of this year, he said, while last year 19,825 were planned during the entire 12 months.

Apartment-type structures accounted for about 45 per cent of the dwelling units constructed in this area last year, a figure that compares with less than 15 per cent for the country as a whole.

His statistics for Greater Washington included the District, Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties in Maryland, and Arlington, Alexandria and Fairfax County in Virginia.

Though industrial, public residential and military construction has been declining since the war, building as a whole is booming, he said. The 7.7 billion dollars spent on construction during the first six months of this year represents an increase of 35 per cent over last year, he said. The 1947 total was 13 billion dollars.

Commercial Building High

Commercial building during June was the largest in one month since prewar days, said Dr. Clague, being 56 per cent above such construction in June, 1947. The 1927 record in this category—$1,145,000,000—may well be surpassed this year, he said.

Turning to employment, Dr. Clague told the 150 members present that 2,182,000 persons were working for construction contractors in June, the highest number since 1942 and "not quite" an all-time high.

Hourly wages in the building industry have risen from an average of 97 cents an hour in January, 1940, to $1.82 in April, 1948, Dr. Clague said.

Wholesale prices of building materials have gone up 109 per cent in the same period, he said, but he has been unable to study prices charged to builders, which he considers would be a more useful index.

More Government Hiring Is Expected In Near Future, USES Chief Says

By Adrienne Tassler
Post Reporter

Employment in the Greater Washington area yesterday stood at a peacetime high with "no break in sight."

Director Fred Z. Hetzel of the District office, U. S. Employment Service, who reported the situation, said, "We are confident the period of prosperity will remain for an indefinite time."

What's more, he predicted, job opportunities in the area will expand in the near future, principally in Government agencies.

Little hiring is anticipated by private firms here, Hetzel explained. Summer hiring is virtually complete and private industry employment is at peak.

Currently, he estimated, there are some 600,000 gainfully employed in the Washington labor market area, which includes nearby communities in Maryland and Virginia.

As anticipated, unemployment has dipped to a peacetime low, with only 19,000 job hunters on the rosters. And many of these, Hetzel pointed out, are "job shifters" who are "not unemployed in the true sense."

This time last year the jobless totaled about 23,000 and shortly before that USES officials placed the unemployed at 25,000.

Veterans are fast moving out of unemployment pools, Hetzel revealed, and less than one-third of the current job hunters are former servicemen.

As for women, Hetzen reported that, as in wartime, many are abandoning their homes for office jobs. More women are employed this year than last, he said, and the trend will continue.

The USES chief attributed the latest return of women to the labor market to the high cost of living. The higher the prices the more women will come into the market, he said.

In a reversal of the wartime picture, private employment in Washington now outruns Government employment. In fact, Government, he said, can claim only 38 per cent of the labor force compared with better than 50 per cent during the war.

The dearth of private jobs here was attributed by Hetzel to several factors.

Farm work in nearby areas, which usually develops around this period, has been taken by persons in the communities involved, he pointed out. "Construction work still exists," he explained, "but in the main it's in nearby Maryland and Virginia and has been snapped up by kids in the locality."

Furthermore, he said, hotels and restaurants are in a leveling-off period—business is stable but not increasing. And department stores are just holding their own.

In the past there has usually been a summer upsurge of employment but this year expansion is almost at a maximum, Hetzel explained. However, certain Government units, such as the Economic Cooperation Administration, the Army, Navy and Air Force are beginning to hire, he said.

Trial of 21 Begins On Rocway Club Gaming Charges

Courtroom Jammed With Equipment Troopers Seized In Maryland Raid

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Ellicott City, Md., July 12. In a courtroom jammed with gaming equipment, 21 persons went on trial here today on charges resulting from the June 5 raid on the Rocway Towers gambling casino.

A parade of State troopers, some of the 30 who took part in the surprise foray on the roadhouse on Route 1, 1 mile north of Laurel, Md., took the witness stand before Judge James Clark to describe how the carefully planned raid was executed.

The defendants, 18 of whom are described as employes, have chosen to go on trial without a jury. In the courtroom, as the trial began, were two large felt-covered tables, two "overseers" chairs 6 feet high, a heap of betting chips, and several weapons allegedly seized in the raid.

State Trooper Preston Rowland, who said he was the first to enter the casino, described how he "threw his shoulder" against one wooden door, and used the same tactics to break the catch on a second steel door.

Rowland said he saw "30 to 40 people standing around one table," and then noticed "a man who had a 30-30 Winchester (rifle). He was cocking it," said Rowland, "and I told him to put it up. He did."

Later, said Rowland, he identified this man as Theodore A. (Mike) Myers, who told police he lived at 4240 Branch ave., Silver Hill, Md.

"I asked him later if he was going to use that gun on me," said Rowland, quietly. "He said, 'no, he was afraid of hijackers and he wanted to protect his money."

Rowland said he was told by one of the defendants that the Towers was "a private club, open to members only."

Earlier, Sergt. G. Earle Newcomer told the court he had the casino under observation for a week before the raid. After the raid, Newcomer said he took statements from the 18 "employes," and all but two admitted they were employes.

He said most of them were clerks at dice tables, and said their salaries ranged up to $200 a week. Some of the statements, said Newcomer, described Walter Novak of 1205 Jackson ave., Takoma Park, Md., as the man who did the hiring at the Towers.

Secrecy of Raid Described

In outlining the case to the court, State's Attorney Daniel M. Murray, jr., of Howard County, who requested State Police to make the raid, described the detailed planning and secrecy by which State Police surrounded the establishment at 12:15 a. m.

During the raid, said Murray, the troopers recovered about $20,000 in cash from behind a radiator, and $12,050 from a closet on the third floor. Forty-nine persons were bagged in the raid. Those described as customers were later fined and released.

Patrick J. Clarke of Baltimore is named in the indictments as owner of Rocway Towers, and is also charged with permitting operation of the casino. Theodore A. Myers and Novak are charged as operators.

Other defendants include the following from Washington, charged as employes and identified as:

Martin L. Murphy, 1230 Holbrook ter. ne.; Mike Moffet, 1220 Holbrook ter. ne.; William A. Garner, 115 Worthington dr.; John Geracki, 3004 Madison pl. se.; Edward Kall, 3412 Newton st. ne.; William B. Bellfield, 1445 Ogden st. nw.; Silvio J. Damico, 2901 Nelson pl. se.; Joseph W. Helmick, 3028 Bladensburg rd. ne., and Edward J. LaPrairie, Hamilton Hotel.

Also, Robert E. Myers, Silver Hill, and Alfred E. Myers, Temple Hill, Md., described as brothers of "Mike"; Charles R. Beers and William E. Downs, of Silver Hill; Thomas H. Rice, Silver Spring; William C. Quade, Cheltenham, Md.; William Carley, Laurel; Mele J. Rodich, Mt. Rainier, and Frank Tolson, 2543 N. Washington blvd., Arlington.

Heading a battery of four defense attorneys in the trial is William Curran, former attorney general of Maryland. The trial resumes at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Vice Squad Of One Has 17 Arrests

The one-man vice cleanup by Police Pvt. Frank J. Manthos netted eight suspects over the weekend, but the policeman also collected some cuts and bruises.

The arrests brought to 17 the number of cases developed by Manthos in the last four days, police records showed.

Manthos suffered a cut eyebrow when he attempted to subdue one prisoner, Paul Mincino, 22, Clarksburg, W. Va., who was fined $25 for the assault which occurred Monday.

The policeman also said he was attacked Sunday when making an arrest. James M. Collins, 22, of 911 M st. nw., was held under $1000 bond for grand jury action on a charge of assault on a policeman.

The one-man crusade is part of a clean-up campaign in downtown Washington following complaints of solicitation in the streets.

The other cases taken to court by Manthos yesterday follow:

Estelle Washington, 23, 1217 9th st. nw., fined $50 for vagrancy.

Marion Anderson, 20, 1132 6th st. nw., fined $50 for vagrancy.

Homer Burns, 26, 515 Q st. nw., held under $1000 bond for grand jury action on a charge of pandering in the Greyhound Bus Terminal.

Soft Coal Price Hike Due Today

Soft coal price increases ranging from 40 to 65 cents per ton will be put into effect today, a check of District coal dealers yesterday showed.

Hard coal price hikes of 50 cents to $1.10 per ton also are expected to be announced about July 20, although coal dealers declined to discuss the anticipated boost.

The increases effective today, it was said, reflect $1 a day wage boosts granted soft-coal miners last month. The hard-coal increases will be in line with $1 a day wage raise for anthracite miners, effective Friday.

A typical price schedule for soft-coal consumers, showing the increases, follows:

Pocohantas egg and stove, $15.70 to $16.35; nut, $14.50 to $15.15; Logan egg, $12.40 to $13.30; New River pea, $13.90 to $14.55.

The hard coal increases will be approximately as follows per ton: Egg, stove and chestnut, $18.35 up $1.10; pea, $16.85, up $1; buckwheat, $13.80, up 50 cents; rice, $12.85, up 55 cents.

According to Patrick Deck, chairman of the coal division, Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, the price increases are "practically the same as the mine increases."

Police Confer On James Case In Baltimore

Bardwell Suspect Due For Arraignment in Brill Murder Today

Two Metropolitan Police officers spent yesterday in Baltimore conferring with police there on details in connection with the slaying of 11-year-old Carol Bardwell.

Capt. Robert V. Murray and Lieut. Edgar E. Scott went to Baltimore in the morning and returned in the afternoon.

They said they did not talk to Eugene James, 31-year-old Baltimore janitor, who has confessed that he killed Carol with a butcher knife June 27 in Rock Creek Park and then returned to Baltimore, where he murdered 11-year-old Marsha Brill last Tuesday.

The police officers said they had no new developments to report as a result of their trip.

Meanwhile, police were preparing the evidence they have accumulated in the case for presentation to the U. S. district attorney. Although they had been scheduled originally to confer with that office yesterday, the conferences were put off until today or tomorrow.

The district attorney's office must decide if an indictment of James will be sought from the grand jury. James is scheduled to be arraigned today in Baltimore Criminal Court on the Brill murder charge.

Report Urges Falls Church To Expand Its Boundaries

A report urging Falls Church, Va., to expand its boundaries immediately lest it lose benefits of annexation was adopted last night by the community's town council.

The meeting was called to take steps to make Falls Church a city, second class, as warranted by a special census proving population eligibility to such municipal rating.

The council instructed its attorney, LaRue Van Meter, to initiate a request to Circuit Court Judge Paul Brown to certify the community a second-class city, a necessary step in the transition.

Annexation recommendations were presented to the council by Dr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Reed, municipal affairs experts. They emphasized in their report that failure of Falls Church to expand its boundaries now might later cost it control of land use for the layout of streets, utilities, public buildings and parks.

The report, read to the council by Van Meter, recommended that areas to be annexed should include not only the developed subdivisions adjacent to present boundaries but also a substantial ring of undeveloped areas, where future developments may occur and be controlled.

Council members further voted to hire an engineer to make a detailed study of the proposed annexation.

In other actions, the Town Council approved a request of Capt. E. H. Howe, town police chief, for a three-man board of commissioners to pass on delinquencies and other matters affecting the behavior and status of town policemen. Named to serve on the board were Howe, Town Manager Roy Dunn and Councilman S. M. Wells.

The council also heard a request by C. F. Blanding, chairman of the Falls Church Community Park, Inc., for between $600 and $1000 in expense money to finance a three-day Virginia Village fiesta in September. The corporation is raising funds for a large park for the town. The request was referred to the recreation commission for action.

Big Construction Program Under Way at National Airport

National Airport, anticipating a continued boom in business, is pouring millions of dollars' worth of steel, cement and labor into a vast construction program.

At a cost expected to reach five million dollars, five cavernous new hangars are being built. Soon their yawning maws will almost double the space available for airline planes in the present six hangars.

And some time this month bids will be advertised for a 246-foot three-floor extension of the terminal building. Cost of the addition on the south side of the arc-shaped building will approximate $1,250,000, B. H. Griffin, airport administrator, figures.

Main Lobby Crowded

Currently, one administrative office is established in a converted lavatory; another in a broom closet. Space at the terminal is that tight, officials say.

Moreover, the main lobby, the north and south concourse, are so crowded with airline booths, that there isn't adequate space for milling passengers during rushes, they say. These stalls will be moved into the building extension, when completed, probably within two years.

Anticipating more business, airport officials point out, TWA located its international division in Wilmington, Del., only after failing to get space for offices and planes at National Airport.

Airport officials also hope the annex and additional hangars will tempt lines to move headquarters here from other airline cities, like New York, Chicago, Kansas City, Minneapolis.

Further, they note, the airport lacks "a big base operator"—an air garage with supplies and equipment for nonscheduled as well as airline planes. One of the new hangars might serve as headquarters for such an air garage, they say.

Service Transport Hogs Space

But airport officials bemoan one thorny problem still unsolved—how to oust space-hogging MATS, the Army-Navy air transport service. Only when MATS is persuaded to vacate from National Airport will there be space to provide facilities for air cargo transportation—the most promising, relatively unexplored phase of air transport, officials at National say.

To indicate the high-flying increase in traffic at National, airport officials show such figures as:

The number of embarking and disembarking passengers at the field has more than doubled since 1942—from 459,396 to 1,140,945 in 1947. (Figures are not yet available for this year, to date.)

And the number of scheduled airline planes using the airport has swelled from 47,101 planes in 1942 to 105,224 in 1947.

Incidentally, Airport Manager Griffin is duly proud that the airport, operated by the Civil Aeronautics Authority, which costs about three-fourths of a million to operate, is about $112,000 in the black since it opened June 15, 1941. However, this figure, based on maintenance and operation costs, does not include amortization of the original cost of the field and terminal.

Ex-Slave Who Saw Gen. Lee Surrender Dies in 100th Year

Mrs. Wood

Mrs. Pinkie Anne Wood, 100-year-old former slave who told her great-grandchildren of the day she saw Robert E. Lee when he surrendered at Appomatox Courthouse, died yesterday at her home, 724 Morton st. nw.

Mrs. Wood, born in slavery and raised on the Wilkins plantation in Lawrenceville, Va., was about 13 when the Emancipation Proclamation was issued, and remembered hearing her parents pray for freedom, the family said.

An ardent churchwoman, Mrs. Wood treasured an old brown Bible, "all to bits now," with which she taught herself to read as a young woman.

She was married in 1865 to Frank Nash, and settled with him on his farm in Brunswick County, Va. Mother of 13 children, she was widowed in 1903 and moved to Washington. Four years later in 1907, she married Elijah Wood, who died in 1932.

Mrs. Wood, active till she suffered a stroke last Thursday, kept busy doing the family sewing and knitting "comforts" for some of her 20 grandchildren, 10 great-grandchildren and 4 great-great-grandchildren.

Women Are Step-Children In Politics, Says India Edwards

PHILADELPHIA, July 12 (AP).—Women in politics are like stepchildren—and have no one but themselves to blame for it, Mrs. India Edwards said today.

"They are certainly not treated with equality in politics," the executive director of the Democratic National Committee's Women's Division told a news conference. "Where they are asked to run, it's usually in a place where the men don't think there's much chance they'll be elected."

Then Mrs. Edwards proceeded to indict her own sex.

"I think (women) get in politics exactly what they'll take. They should get in there and do the hard work, and then fight for position. They aren't as mature politically as men. There's more jealousy and bickering among them."

President Truman, she said, was in an unfortunate position when asked about his record of appointing women to Federal posts. "He's constantly being compared to President Roosevelt," she explained, "and they are comparing Roosevelt's record over 13 years with Truman's 3. Actually, it's not a bad record . . .

"His approach is different. President Roosevelt had the good fortune to have one of the world's great people at his elbow—Mrs. Roosevelt. She knew all the women who were accomplishing something. She was always ready to suggest one of them for a position that opened up.

"Mrs. Truman is a lovely woman. I wish she had had more press contacts. But she's very reserved, shy and it's hard for her to meet people, be casual and informal. She has been a housewife and a mother and has never been in the position of Eleanor Roosevelt in advising her husband."

Hawaiians Look Coolest

Sunback Dresses, Paper Fans Leading Feminine Fashions In Tropical Philadelphia

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—Only in the Black Hole of Calcutta, we venture, were as many people nearer suffocation than at the Democratic Convention official opening today. Only cool characters were the Hawaiians in their giddy flapping sport shirts, their pink and white carnation leis. The subtropical heat melted makeup, waves, dresses, collars, ties, shirts, with disturbing impartiality.

Many of the feminine spectators wore sunback dresses. Everyone generated more heat by waving paper fans. The noise of delegates squirming on sticky seats or swishing newspapers in lieu of fans made the flow of platform oratory inaudible.

Sitting with the District of Columbia's delegation had all the advantages of a Turkish bath for free. Among the masculine delegates only Brigadier Albert Cox, in a silk suit bought a decade ago in China, retained his sartorial poise. Mrs. Kathleen Loucheim, in gunmetal shantung, also remained unruffled. Mrs. Ernest Lindley, delegate wife of the well-known political columnist, kept on her hat and jacket, and since she couldn't hear the speeches, knitted determinedly, clicking green needles through jade green wool.

The District delegation is unique, since there are no alternates and 12 full delegates, all of whom have half a vote. Six sit in regular seats, the rest in a back row.

Two Negroes are delegates, and in secret caucus this morning all agreed on an antidiscrimination and civil rights law adoption for the District. Cheek-to-jowling the District group is Puerto Rico's delegation, including its Governor, Jesus Pinero, and as alternate Mrs. Walter McKown Jones of Ayrshire, Upperville, Va. Mrs. Jones, when she's not in Upperville, owns and runs a coffee plantation in Villalba, Puerto Rico.

PERHAPS the most interesting delegation is the Missourian, which includes as special appendages a number of Truman's friends from Independence. Headed by Gov. Phil Donnelly, who is chief of the committee to inform President Truman of his nomination, it includes Alan F. Wherritt of Independence, topman of a similar committee to let the vice presidential nominee know his good luck. Mrs. Wherritt is here as a special guest of Mrs. Henry Clay Childs, the State's national committeewoman. Other Independenceites are the town's mayor, Roger T. Sermon and J. Marcus Kirtley. Messrs. Wherritt and Kirtley are both alumna of Marshall Jewell College across the river from Independence, which presented President Truman with his first honorary degree.

LAST NIGHT'S comedy was the hasty readying of Senator Pepper's headquarters. Eisenhower placards and slogans were pulled down. Painters, brushing skillfully in the semidark of Walnut Street, were putting up "Claude Pepper the People's Choice" in crimson letters. Meanwhile Mrs. Pepper held a press conference. Mildred Pepper, attractive and sassy, is cutting her Claude an elegant slice of gratis publicity.

Some of the Senate's less limelighted wives have been doing their decorative bit to pep up the convention. Lunching together at the Barelay were Mrs. Millard Tydings, in sapphire blue, her matching baku hat, tipped with a brisk shako of cornflowers; and Mrs. William J. Fulbright in pink and black plaid, a wide brimmed hat. Mrs. James Reston was along, to, self-possessed in deep blue linen.

In a Convention Hall box, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, wife of the Secretary of the Navy for Air, sat with Philadelphia's Mrs. George Roberts.

SO FAR the most diverting convention trifle is the bulbous red, white and blue celluloid donkey tucked in the peaked brim of Maine National Committeewoman Kathryn Hickson. It was sent from Washington by a pal. Kathryn Hickson, who has been national committeewoman for twelve years, may toss it up as she has been offered the job of clerk of courts in Bangor.

Much to this department's delight, the Democrats have finally come up with a giveaway.

It's a smallish envelope, given to every delegate and stamped with the reassuring message "Here's your Truman victory kit—compliments of the Missouri State Committee." Inside is a Truman button, six playing cards with a photograph of the President on one side, a list of the authorized number of State votes, four white thimbles with a blue inscription "Sew right with Truman," a blue dingus with a silver slogan "True blue Truman" which surprisingly enough turned out to be a whistle; a red and white cigarette lighter stamped with "Friend of the People, Harry S. Truman—Foe of Privilege, Harry S. Truman," a red, white and blue pencil with the same wording, and a very handy pocket scratch pad.

TAXI DRIVERS and waiters are happy because the high spending Democrats are in town. The Republicans were close tippers. Nicest story going the rounds is told by Washington radio commentator Richard Harkness. He and four friends were lunching Dutch treat at the Republican convention. The check came to twelve dollars and each threw in three dollars. When the waiter saw the three-dollar gratuity he gasped you tip like Democrats."

IN THE more sophisticated political circles, even though the Democratic Convention is scarcely under way, the most tossed-about subject is—of all things—Dewey's cabinet. This is the tial line-up: Senator Vandenberg has replaced Foster Dulles as number one candidate for Secretary of State, with Massachusetts Representative Christian Herter as Undersecretary; Pennsylvania Senator Martin will take over Defense from Forrestal; Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, Clifford Hope, is to have Agriculture; Representative Hal Holmes will manage the Interior; and Republican keynote speaker Governor Dwight Green of Illinois might be Attorney General; while Winthrop Aldrich of the Chase National Bank will manage the Treasury, with Elliott Bell, New York bank superintendent, to help him.

Winthrop Aldrich, a trustee of Columbia University as well as an ardent Republican, is rumored to have put the final spoke in Eisenhower's wheel—persuading the general after he is supposed to have confidentially accepted as a willing presidential candidate draftee, to stick by the old alma mater, thereby letting Dewey win. Within the past few weeks the Aldriches have sold their New York house—which is considered highly significant.

Washingtonians who admired handsome Paul McNutt will be intrigued to learn that the former Philippines high commissioner, who got his first political leg up as Governor of Indiana, is an alternate delegate—not from his home Hoosier State, but from New York, where he's registered his residence as 956 Fifth avenue.

Learn From Criticism, Advises Mrs. Marshall

A lot is to be learned from criticism, believes Mrs. George C. Marshall, wife of the Secretary of State. If the criticism is just, accept the rebuke, she says. If, on the other hand, you find you have been unjustly criticized, go straight ahead with your way of doing, saying nothing, she advises. "Silence is a very powerful weapon," she adds.

Mrs. Marshall's observation are contained in an article in the August issue of The Woman for which she served as guest editor. In the article she says:

"Shortly after our marriage—General Marshall was a lieutenant colonel then—we went to Fort Benning. At his suggestion, I held a reception for some of the personnel. Afterward I confessed to a few of the ladies my absolute ignorance of Army customs and asked them to help me.

"One lady offered, 'At a tea like this, you always ask the highest-ranking officer's wife to pour coffee, not tea.'

" 'Why is that?' I wanted to know.

" 'Because,' she replied, 'coffee outranks tea.'

"Although this was a new idea to me, I realized later that it was based on sound reasoning. With Americans, coffee is more popular than tea. Naturally, at an affair where both beverages are served, you put the guest of honor at the table where most of the people gather.

"I have learned from such situations as this to be slow in criticizing strange customs, for usually they are founded on logic. I have also found it expedient to accept as many of the new town's social precedents as possible—that is, if I expect to be happy.

"I recall an occasion, however, when both my husband and I found it difficult to meet calmly the shattering if unspoken criticism of a beloved member of our family. This was Fleet, our beautiful, devoted, but dumb Dalmatian. Fleet persisted in stealing chickens and getting lost, so we finally had to send him to Front Royal to join the Army.

"One night my husband and I attended a Front Royal movie starring the K-9 Corps. Our Fleet was prominently featured—as the worst dunce of the whole school! We hung our heads in shame, as the old woman said, 'mortification set in.' "

Blessed With Nine Handsome Healthy Children, Man Who's Been Married 16 Years Praises Wife As One in a Million; Calls Divorcees Quitters

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In reading newspaper accounts, almost daily, of Hollywood luminaries getting divorced, I sometimes wonder at the disregard for the real meaning behind the words of the marriage ceremony.

We read of Such and So suing for divorce, after so many weeks or months, because their marriage "won't work out." How can anything work out if it isn't given a fair trial? And marriage above all needs time—more than just weeks or months—to develop into something worthwhile.

I know! My wife and I have been married 16 years, and believe me I know that marriage is proven—that it becomes tried-and-true—only after years of love and companionship, of working together and learning how to meet the problems of life together.

Wife Is Blithe, Despite Burdens

OF COURSE I realize that one must have the right mate to insure a happy marriage, and not every man is lucky enough to get a woman who is a sweetheart and wife and fine mother all-in-one, such as I have.

We are blessed with nine healthy handsome children; the youngest are twins, a boy and a girl, 3 months old, and their care alone keeps my wife on the jump from morning until night, so that many a night she falls into bed just plainly "done in."

But despite all this, on top of planning meals, trying to meet expenses, keeping the house in order, washing and ironing almost every day and generally "mothering" the whole household, she still finds time to laugh and sing and play with the children. And she always greets me with a smile when I get home from work.

Build, He Says, On Rock of Permanency

IN SHORT, she is a mate in a million, and I wouldn't exchange her little finger for all the riches in the world. I only hope that I may always be able to give her happiness such as she has given me, and that she so richly deserves. Yes, there are times when we disagree, the same as any couple; but we always kiss and make up and life seems just a little sweeter.

I grant there are marriages that never should have been made, and that many couples try valiantly to make the best of a bad bargain before admitting their mistake; and I am offering no criticism of these. Rather I condemn those couples who claim their marriage "won't work" when they haven't invested any staying-power in it.

If only they could realize the crucial value of those words, "For better, for worse, 'til death do us part," they would have a solid foundation on which to build a happy marriage, such as ours. The same people who cast off marriage so casually would think twice before tossing aside a business venture. I wonder why. L. N.

Man's Advised to Cherish Treasure

DEAR L. N.: Your letter seems to call for an "Amen" rejoinder; and it is indeed a pleasant relief from grievance-cases, to hear from a happy husband joyously content with his 16 years' prolific marriage to a woman whose "price is far above rubies" and who "looketh well to the ways of her household and eateth not the bread of idleness." (See Proverbs 31:10, 27).

However, to be perfectly frank, my chief reaction is sympathetic concern for your good wife, who gives so lavishly of herself; for I wonder how long her vital energies—the basis of her gay inspiring, competent performances—can meet the tremendous demands now being levied on them.

In carrying the load you describe, with a song in her heart and a sweetheart's smile for you, verily she is a wife in a million; and in order to perpetuate this fine companionship into the sunset years of life, it's mighty important to express your devotion in terms of safeguarding her health and strength, and giving her rest, in all sorts of unselfish foresighted ways. If you see what I mean——, M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Tips on Smartness For the Junior Miss

Here's Looking At You: The Modern Slant on Smartness for the Junior Miss, by Emily Wilkins, will be published early in September by G. P. Putnam's Sons. Miss Wilkins is the youngest designer ever to win the coveted American Fashion Critics' Award. She was also the winner of the Neiman-Marcus Award in 1945; Mademoiselle's Merit Award in the same year; and was voted one of the Ten Best Designers in a poll conducted by the Fashion Trades Magazine in 1946.

In Here's Looking At You Miss Wilkins tells: How to look one's best and stay that way; how she trains her young fashion models; how to streamline closets and bureau drawers; how to get that "smooth" look. Glass, Ceramics to Be Shown

AND NOW it's ceramics among the strawberries, and sculptured glass beside the garden greens!

Center Market City, the scene of an exhibit of paintings several weeks ago, has announced that another show is in the offing. Beginning July 22, world-famed Willis Lowry will display sculptured glass and furniture and the Winthrop Studios will show ceramics in the market at 5th and K sts., nw.

Mr. Lowry, a resident of Silver Spring, Md., is said to be the only man in the world who has acquired the technique and invented the tools by which glass may be truly sculptured. He made the glass furniture shown at the New York World's Fair and the San Francisco Golden Gate Exposition. In presenting him with a special award, officials of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts declared that "for the first time in 300 years, a new medium has been introduced in the fine arts."

More than 150 ceramic pieces contributed by some 30 artists will be included in the market exhibit of the Winthrop Studios, which are located at 2012 K st., nw. The techniques of making ceramics, glazes, and pottery will be demonstrated also from 2 to 6 p. m. each Friday during the month-long exhibit. Work will be on sale and 15 per cent of the proceeds will go to the Police Athletic League of the District of Columbia.

How Trim Does Your Lawn Look?

Perhaps the reason your front lawn has not the trim appearance of your neighbor's is the fact that you have not cut around the edges of the lawn next to the sidewalk. If a tiny trench is made along the grass edge it gives a neat appearance and crispness to the lawn.

How to Clean Kitchen Chairs

I have mahogany veneer dinette set, and the drawers have become so swollen that I cannot open them. Can you suggest anything to correct this situation? Can anything be done to the drawers to prevent this from happening? B. G. S.

The sides and bottoms of drawers are very often made of soft wood with little or no finish on it. As a result, in high humidity weather, this wood absorbs moisture causing the wood to swell and stick. There isn't much which can be done to open the drawer as long as the high humidity prevails because to force the drawer open would probably mar the outside finish. However, soon after the heat is on in the fall, the wood will dry out sufficiently to again open it. When thoroughly dried out, if the drawer doesn't slide easily, the edges that cause the sticking can be shaved down with a plane, coarse file, or sandpaper. Be sure to remove only enough to allow free movement. When the edge is shaved down smoothly, rub paraffin on all parts which slide.

If the drawer can be partially opened now, placing a lighted electric bulb in it will probably generate enough heat to loosen the drawer. Be sure to place the bulb so it is not in contact with the wood of the drawer or its contents.

When the drawer is thoroughly dry, giving the wood a finish of varnish will help to prevent its absorbing moisture and swelling next summer when the humidity is high.

I am considering buying several pieces of unpainted furniture but have been told that this is seldom satisfactory, since the price is rather high, green wood is often used, etc. What is the general opinion of unpainted furniture? If recommended, should a base be used before furniture is painted? I have sectional bookcases in mind, E. L.

It is true that occasionally the wood in unpainted furniture is not thoroughly seasoned, but with a little care in selection, it is possible to secure pieces which are thoroughly dry. I would suggest you purchase it from a reliable dealer and ask whether or not it is seasoned when you buy. Unpainted furniture is usually made from pine and other soft woods, so cannot be expected to wear or finish as well as the harder woods. But, considering the relative inexpensiveness of such furniture compared to the already finished hard woods, it is usually well worth the cost.

Before applying paint, sand any rough surfaces and wipe away all dust. For the first or base coat, use a good undercoater mixed with one part turpentine to three parts paint. The second coat, applied when the first is thorough dry, is the undercoater as it comes from the can. The last coat can be an enamel or a flat drying paint applied as it comes from the can.

The stainless steel blades of my Danish sterling knives have become loose. Where can I have a quality repair job done on them here? D. M. M.

This job can be done in the repair department of any reliable jewelry store.

How can I clean outdoor canvas chairs? I have recently purchased two chairs and would like to know how they are cared for. M. M.

When the chairs show dust, go over them with a whisk broom or a brush attachment of your vacuum sweeper. If after some time, they acquire spots or soil which cannot be removed by brushing, wash them. To do this, take out of doors and apply a mild soap to the canvas with a brush, scrubbing until the canvas is clean. When thoroughly clean, turn the hose onto the canvas, using the full force of the water to completely rinse the suds and soil from the fabric. With care, the chair may not need to be washed even every season. It is usually a good idea to put off the washing until thoroughly soiled. Once washed, the fabric seems to absorb dirt more readily. If the chairs are folded and protected from dust when not in use, the need for cleaning will be much reduced.

I need help with the color scheme for a living room. The large sofa and one chair are upholstered in a mohair fabric called "lipstick red" (almost a burgundy shade) and the wing chair is upholstered in gray. Could you suggest color and design for wallpaper, scatter rugs and lamps? The room has a low ceiling and the tables will be mahogany. V. H.

A pleasing color scheme for this room would include your red and gray with sunlight yellow for accent. The amount of design in your wallpaper would depend upon the size of the room. For a small room, use inconspicuous stripes or small designs. A gray striped or designed wallpaper with various shades and tints of gray would be nice. Or, if the upholstery is without figure, a design in the paper which is predominately gray with a touch of yellow would be attractive. The yellow can be picked up again in the drapes, lamp bases or pictures. If the room tends to be dark and doesn't have a sunny exposure, use more yellow than you would if it is a very light sunny room.

If the design in the wallpaper is retiring and your upholstery is plain you should use figured scatter rugs in your colors.

Perfect American Beauty Is Composite Type

A "Perfect American Beauty" should present the most beautiful and distinctive features of a majority of the several migrated races which have come to this country and amalgamated into Americans during the past three centuries.

This is the idealistic concept of Max Factor, jr., Hollywood's film make-up stylist, who admits that it would take a long-shot miracle to produce such a woman. This American composite, according to Mr. Factor's conception of her, would offer deep blue Scandinavian eyes; the luxuriant brows and lashes of the Latins; the prominent cheek structure which distinguishes the Indian tribes of the New England States; rugged Celtic mouth and lips, and the imperious jaw line and chin carriage of the patrician English type.

This idealistic American Beauty's hair would be neither brunette nor blond, but rather that amber-bronze brownette tint which lies in between the two, and which is the hair color of more than 50 per cent of America's women today.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

It Looks Like the Same Old Skin Game

Paul A. Muse of Manassas, Va., sends in an ad for a poison ivy remedy which appeared in a local newspaper. It says:

"If not completely pleased, skin. It peels off with your 35 cents back."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I resent your kidding about Dr. Dorothy Sell, who worked her way through medical school as a waitress. Perhaps you were judging on the basis of the restaurant food being served (incompetently) in Washington.

Dr. Sell worked in the Toffenetti-Triangle restaurant in Chicago. It serves 5000 excellent meals per day and is rated as one of the top organizations of its kind in the United States.

I know—because I worked the 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. shift with Dorothy Sell. We never had enough help on that shift and that girl and I often worked double and triple stations just to make sure that our customers got clean, deft service.

You'd be surprised how many Washington restaurants I quit working in, simply because I couldn't tolerate the loose way the management allowed (and required) the help to handle the food. Talk about unsanitary customs — no restaurant help in this burg would make the grade in Chicago. Certainly not in the places where the fastidious Dr. Dorothy Sell worked.

Daniel Peterson
3814 Nevada ave. nw.

Dear Dan:

I'm on your side in this argument. The original item was merely kidding about a waitress who turned doctor and planned to specialize in "internal medicine."

But bad sanitation in restaurants is no kidding matter. I've griped about the local situation before, and intend to keep on griping as long as there's a basis for it.

I don't pretend to know how Washington compares with Chicago on this point, but I do know that many local restaurants are shockingly unsanitary, and that we'll never get them cleaned up until District Liners yowl for municipal action against the offenders.

Bill

MISCELLANY

Here's an idea for little girls who are trying to keep busy during their summer vacation: Ten-year-old Judy Fisher of 14 Tauxemont rd. and 9-year-old Pippa Feddersen of 10 Tauxemont rd., both of Alexandria, Va., baked a batch of cookies the other day and sold them to their neighbors for 35 cents per dozen. They raised $6.86 and sent the money to the Crusade for Children . . . Cochairmen Anne Scruggs and Anne Newman are looking for a big turnout at this Friday night's lawn party, to be given by the Westminster Fellowship of the Kenilworth Presbyterian Church (8 p. m., 1602 Kenilworth ave. ne.). Main attractions will be grab bags, a white elephant table (no wisecracks from the Democrats, please) and of course the eats . . . And the Washington Chapter of Hadassah has chartered the S.S. Mount Vernon for a moonlight cruise Sunday night, complete with dancing and a carnival. Tickets are $1.15, with all money to be used for medicine and clothing for the people of Israel. Mrs. Julius Silverstein of 2502 14th st. ne. (Michigan 0071) has the ducats . . . As a loyal National League fan, I've got to stand by my boys in today's All-Star game. But even with the American League power on the sidelines, I'm afraid we'll still manage to lose as usual.

Listen to Bill Gold each noon, Monday through Saturday, over WINX (1340) and WINX-FM (98.3).

AH, WILDERNESS!

For the benefit of any billy goats who may read (or eat) this column, here is a report on the newly opened Fort DuPont golf course.

It is 3170 yards long—1585 yards straight up and 1585 yards straight down.

Eight of the nine holes are made up of a wild confusion of yawning chasms, virgin forests, ravines, creeks, sand traps, unfinished excavations, and the kind of rough in which one might flush a mountain lion without occasioning too much surprise.

The greens are big and new, but have more lumps than Jack Benny's mattress. And there's no such thing as a level putt on any of them.

After trying to drop a 12-footer and missing by 8 feet, my partner muttered, "No wonder! I used the wrong club. I should have used a curling iron."

On several holes, a good drive merely lands the player in trouble. Ravines run straight across some fairways about 250 yards out, the dog-legs start bending too close to the tees, and most fairways slant toward trouble on both sides.

Greens fees are double the usual charge for local "municipal" courses. On Saturdays, Sundays and holidays it's 75 cents for nine holes and $1.50 for 18.

Otherwise, it's a delightful little course. You ought to try it. But bring your own alpenstock.

NEW YORK.—Col. Jacob Avery, the Chicago political leader, still hasn't abandoned his hope of drafting Eisenhower. Avery's position is that no man can ignore the will of the majority of the people, that the majority wants Eisenhower and that they can express this wish only if he is the nominee of a party. For even if 40 million people were to vote for Eisenhower by writing in his name, these votes wouldn't count in a national election where ballots can be cast only for electors.

Some of the heart-breaking stories told by people who participate in those Tell-Us-Your-Problems radio programs aren't true. A few days ago a woman appeared on a program and stated that she was working as a cleaning-woman to raise funds for her husband, who was accused of a crime. She vowed her faith in his innocence, and her determination to work until she has enough to hire a good lawyer.... Mrs. Sam Leibowitz, wife of the judge and former criminal lawyer, heard the program, telephoned the station and volunteered to help. Mrs. Leibowitz offered to supply an able lawyer who'd work without a fee. . . . The "cleaning-woman" never returned the call.

Sir Laurence Olivier's "Hamlet," one of the most memorable pictures ever filmed, will have its American premiere in Boston on August 18.... William Gropper, the painter, is sketching and making text-notes behind the Iron Curtain. The Leftist Gropper is in Poland and will arrive in Moscow soon. He'll make the paintings and write his full texts after he returns to New York.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Douglas, Dewey Are Old Rivals

By Drew Pearson

Philadelphia.—Should the warring Democrats happen to compromise their differences by picking Justice William Orville Douglas as their presidential or vice presidential candidate, an old, old rivalry with Tom Dewey would be revived.

Pearson

For Dewey and Douglas were members of the same class at Columbia Law School, Douglas at the top of the class, Dewey not so near the top, with both rivals in law-school debates. FDR, who had to run against Dewey in 1944, always said the one reason he liked to have Bill Douglas around was because he knew how to get the best of Dewey.

Should the Democratic lightning strike Douglas at Philadelphia, it would bring belated fulfillment of Roosevelt's original wishes—four years late. For at the 1944 convention which finally nominated Harry Truman as Vice President, Douglas's name was mentioned first in the letter which FDR wrote Bob Hannegan expressing his choice of running mate.

But Hannegan, determined to put across his old Missouri friend, withheld publication of the letter until after the Truman bandwagon had gathered momentum.

Douglas' Handicap

Justice Douglas has suffered politically from one of Franklin Roosevelt's pet policies—his desire to keep the Supreme Court as a protective bulwark against reaction. Fearful that his social program would be hacked down by the judiciary—as it was by the Supreme Court prior to 1936—and worried lest reactionary successors sabotage the New Deal, FDR appointed some of his ablest young executives to the bench. Douglas was one of them.

There his hands have been tied politically, and he has dropped partially out of sight.

When you first meet Douglas, he looks as innocuous as a male ribbon clerk and talks as pleasantly as Robert Taylor. But when the New York financial writers staged their annual dinner back in 1938, they handed the then chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission—Mr. Douglas—a blacksnake whip in token of what he had been doing to Wall Street.

Douglas came to Washington shortly after the financial debacle of 1932, joined the newly created Securities and Exchange Commission, and undertook the job of cleaning up a system of financial brigandry which had skimmed the savings from millions of investors.

Today the Street is an example of virtue compared with what it was then, and one reason was Douglas' whipcracking. Before he finished he had sent Richard Whitney, onetime pillar of Wall Street respectability, to the penitentiary.

Up By the Bootstraps

Justice Douglas got his early training under the late Chief Justice Harlan Stone when the latter was dean of Columbia Law School. Douglas, a raw-boned, gangling youngster from Yakima, Wash., had arrived in New York via the empty freight-car route with exactly 36 cents in his pocket, applied for a small loan from Columbia, and sold papers on the streets of Manhattan to make the loan go further.

Once when his finances were desperately low, and it looked as if he would have to drop out, Dean Stone took two hours out of a busy day to help Douglas get a new job.

The youngest justice of the Supreme Court looks Scotch and is Scotch. Perhaps it is this inheritance, plus the fact that he raised himself by his own bootstraps, which has given Bill certain Calvin Coolidge characteristics. Even with the salary of a justice of the Supreme Court, Bill used to walk from the District of Columbia line to his home a few blocks away in Maryland, in order to save 20 cents extra taxi fare. The border between the District and Maryland marks the taxi zone limit.

And when the Douglases later rented a suite in the Anchorage Apartment House, its owner at one time asked her attorney to bring an eviction suit against the justice of the Supreme Court because the Douglas family kept food in a cold-air locker outside the window and hung the washing up in too conspicuous a place. The attorney, Fontaine Bradley, nearly had a fit at the idea of suing a justice of the Supreme Court, finally persuaded the apartment-house owner that the Douglases were going to move anyway—which they did.

Milly Douglas, the justice's daughter, seems to inherit her father's Scotch independence, and last year amazed social Washington by getting a job as a soda jerker in an Alexandria, Va., drug store.

Wearing the Black Robe

On the Supreme Court, Douglas has been a restless, prodigious worker. Leaving social engagements early, he goes home every night to work on opinions. Along with Justice Hugo Black, he has usually led the court in the number of decisions handed down.

For some time it has been known that Douglas was fidgety on the court and had his eyes on more exciting pastures. In fact, when Harold Ickes resigned as Secretary of the Interior, Truman offered him the Ickes vacancy and Douglas was briefly tempted. But a couple of visits at the White House and the sight of the Missouri gang, specializing on bourbon and branch water rather than affairs of state, convinced Douglas that he could serve his country more effectively on the bench though more prosaically.

Douglas was a close friend and intimate adviser of Roosevelt to the very end. His work was not publicized, because a Supreme Court justice isn't supposed to get mixed up in the administrative branch of the Government. But Douglas helped out on various national defense matters, especially the development of adequate electric power.

Douglas has said he wasn't seeking any political office—which is true.

But if the Philadelphia convention should nominate him, Douglas will serve. For Bill Douglas has never shirked a call of duty from his country.
